FOOTWEAR FOR DIABETICS

For many people, buying shoes is a matter of fashion. If you like the way they look, never mind if they pinch a little here or rub a bit there. For people with diabetes, that kind of attitude can be deadly, as minor irritations can lead to life-threatening infections. Diabetics should shop where sales staffs are knowledgeable about proper fit. Shoes should feel good in the store – no one should fall into the trap of thinking that a tight, slightly uncomfortable shoe will stretch to fit after wearing. Look for shoes with soft and flexible uppers, smooth linings, comfortable arch cushions, snug but not pinching heels, soles that flex at the ball and a roomy toe box.

People sometimes don't realize how their feet mirror their body's general health. And when the body hurts, the pain demands attention, and it is especially important for diabetics to heed this demand. We strongly recommend having foot problems attended to professionally to prevent them from becoming serious, as well as to keep a check on the rest of the body. We may not be able to prevent disease, but we can help deal with some of the serious problems that may accompany it. Hours are by appointment at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy. PH: 617-472-3466.

P.S. A person with diabetes should never ignore any sign of foot irritation or injury. Call your podiatrist promptly about any change.

Council Committee To Meet On Rent Controls Sept. 8

The City Council's Senior Citizens Committee will meet Wednesday, Sept. 8 at 7 p.m. to discuss a proposal to establish rent controls.

The proposal includes establishing local preferences, priorities, and income limits as well as the landlords' rights for a fair net operating income.

Under the proposal, tax incentives could be offered to an owner to continue low-income use restrictions already in place.

The city would recognize a formally organized tenant association which could negotiate housing costs with an owner.

The council is expected to adopt a home rule which, if approved by the state legislature would prevent landlords who obtained low interest construction loans from pre-paying 40-year mortgages and increasing rents at a much high rate.

Residents of three housing complexes are concerned over possible rent hikes. They are at Wollaston Manor, Clay St., Granite Place, Granite St. and Hancock Court, School St.

Residents of other HUD developments could be affected later, according to Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott.

The non-profit organizations which manage elderly housing have been seen as sensitive to the financial circumstances of the seniors, most of whom are on fixed incomes.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi is chairman of the council's Senior Citizens Committee. In addition to McDermott, the other members are Bruce Ayers, Steve Durkin, and Paul Harold.

Both landlords and tenants are expected to attend the Sept. 8 meeting.

Seniors wishing free transportation to the 7 p.m. meeting may contact Sabina Stenberg, senator of the Silver-Haired Legislature, at (617) 472-0742 and leave a message.

Quincy 2000 Store Window Decorating Seminar Sept. 15

Quincy 2000 will host a workshop on decorating store windows for the holiday season Sept. 15 from 8 a.m. to 9:45 a.m. Sally Levine, AIA, Director of Interior Design at the Boston Architectural Center, will present the workshop at Quincy 2000's offices at 1250 Hancock St.

The fee is $15 for members of Quincy 2000 and $20 for non-members, and includes a light breakfast. Contact Marcia Golden at (617) 847-1454 to pre-register.

Manet Health Center Receives Funds For Family Violence Prevention Program

Funding of $15,000 has been provided by the Boston Foundation to continue a community based Family Violence Prevention program serving Germantown and Manet Community Health Center, Inc.

The program is entering its third year.

Director Cynthia Sierra provides direct counseling, crisis counseling, support groups and peer training through the program. She works directly with individuals in need on an appointment and drop-in basis. She also provides training and consultation to the medical staff at Manet Community Health Center, Inc. and other community agencies.

Ellen Hafer, Executive Director of Manet, expressed her appreciation for the Boston Foundations confidence.

"This program is needed and has helped us focus with other agencies and individuals on bringing hope in peoples lives when they are often at their most desperate moments," she said. "These are not services that are normally reimbursable under regular payment mechanisms."

The Boston Foundation has been a creative partner in supporting new community based approaches to improving the quality of life in economically and socially stressed situations. They have particularly emphasized funding projects focusing on disadvantaged and risk youth.

Cindy Rizzo, program officer, Boston Foundation indicated that they "have had a long standing relationship in supporting community health center programs in Boston and look forward to this opportunity to extend that to Quincy and the South Shore."

Hafer said she is "grateful that they chose to move outside of Boston to find this much needed program."

Kathy Quigley, Director of the Germantown Neighborhood Center, sees everyday the benefit and need for the programs services . "It is very important that Cynthia Sierra be able to be involved with families to help brake the vicious cycle of family violence," she said.

The program received $5,000 in funding earlier this year from the State Street Foundation. Its first two years it was funded through the Harvard Pilgrim Foundation. The program has been guided in its development activities by the Germantown Interagency Council, chaired by Charlene MacDonald.

The Boston Foundation funding was critical at this time to continue the program.

How To Build Christmas Parade Float Seminar Sept. 15

The annual How-To-Build-A-Float Seminar will be held Wednesday, Sept. 15 at 7 p.m. at the Koch Park and Recreation Complex, 1 Merrymount Parkway, adjacent to Adams Field.

The seminar is open free-of charge to amateur float builders planning to enter floats in the 47th annual Quincy Christmas Parade Nov. 28, sponsored by the Quincy Festival Committee.

Professional float builders will provide tips on how to construct float entries according to Committee guidelines, criteria, and safety.

The seminar will include a video of last year's float entries and details upon which the floats will be judged in the various prize competition categories. Last year more than 20 floats participated in prize competition.

New entries are expected this year because of the parade theme "Christmas Memories of the Twentieth Century." Each year the Festival Committee conducts a theme contest in the Quincy-South Shore area and the winning 1999 theme was submitted by Mrs. Mary Buckley of Weymouth.

Festival Committee Float Activity Coordinator Paul Kennedy said this year's theme allows a lot of latitude for float builders to focus on traditional Christmas celebrations of the last century. Organization representatives wishing additional information about the float building seminar may contact Kennedy by calling (617) 328-1059.

Following the video showing at the seminar, Bob Rojee, float building specialist, will make a presentation on float building for amateurs and professionals.

Kennedy will discuss float building criteria followed by a question and answer period.

Refreshments will be served. There is no charge for the seminar.

Presidents AARP Chapter To Open Fall Season Sept. 1

The Quincy City of Presidents AARP Chapter will hold its opening fall meeting Wednesday, Sept. 1 at 1 p.m. at 125 Granite St., Quincy.

Normand Goyette, president, will attend.

The speaker will be a member of the Quincy Chapter, Virginia L. Tierney of Quincy who is a member of the National Board of Directors of AARP. Mrs Tierney holds several prominent positions in the national organization. She is chairing the AARP Foundation Board of Directors, serves on the board of trustees for the AARP Group Health Insurance Trust and is on the Board Committee on Membership and Member Services.

Mrs. Tierney has served as vice chair of the Board Finance Committee, was a member of the Board Audit Committee, and a board observer of the AARP Pension/Welfare Trust. She has been a member of AARP's national Education., Advocacy and Community Service Committee and the Massachusetts State Legislative Committee. She has been Area Vice President, Massachusetts State Director, president of AARP Chapter #1139 and chair of the Chapter Legislative Committee.

Mrs. Tierney has been on the Governor's Advisory Council on Alzheimer Disease and is a board member of an Alzheimer Disease Support Group. She is a member of the Citizen's Advisory Committee of the Executive Office of Elder Affairs as well as the advisory council of the Massachusetts Money Management Program. She has also served as a Special Commission on Ethics, and Secretary of the Hingham Council on Aging.

Prior to her retirement in 1981 as an educational administrator, Mrs. Tierney served in a variety of positions at Boston University including director of equal opportunity, director of personnel, assistant to the vice president of finance and assistant dean of the College of Business Administration.

Mrs. Tierney received a Distinguished Service Alumni Award from Boston University, A distinguished Service Award from Affirmative Action Officers in public and private education and a Doctor of Humane Letters Honorary Degree from Nichols College in Dudley, MA.

During 1999, Mrs. Tierney has been traveling throughout the United States speaking on National TV and presiding on panels discussing the plight of seniors who have lost large sums of money to organizations advertising the possibility of huge winnings in national contests.

Ayers Participating In Hearings On Registry

State Rep. Bruce Ayers, a member of the Joint Committee of Public Safety, has been participating in oversight hearings examining the performance of the Registry of Motor Vehicles throughout the state.

Ayers said, "We are very concerned on how to improve the registry's performance throughout the state and if a bill needs to be filed or action needs to be taken, based on the recommendations from the Committee, we will do that.

"We will see if we can improve things. Constituents in Quincy, Plymouth and Brockton have voiced pros and cons related to policies and procedures in the overall management of the various registries."

Ayers added: "By soliciting public comment on how citizens feel that the Registry is performing and seeking suggestions on ways to improve their services, our committee will be making recommendations to Governor Cellucci in late August or early September prior to appointment of the new Registrar."

Anyone wishing to discuss the matter with Ayers can reach him at (617) 772-2090.

Cheney Urges Council Compromise On Highpoint

housing plan for his 75-acre Quarry Street site for 1,641 apartments and is seeking a comprehensive permit from the Quincy Zoning Board of Appeals. The ZBA held a hearing on the permit Tuesday as The Quincy Sun went to press.

Under 1,641-unit plan, 25 percent of the apartments would have to be set aside for affordable housing. If Stratouly were granted permission to construct all the units as proposed, that would mean dedicating up to 410 apartments for affordable housing.

The other units would be 40 percent one-bedroom, 40% two bedroom; and 29% three bed-room.

"I support affordable housing," Cheney told The Sun Tuesday. "But it's too much in one location. My preference is to go back and sit at the table and negotiate a reasonable solution."

Earlier this year, the City Council denied a request from Stratouly for a Planned Unit Development permit to build approximately 1,200 apartment units at market value. The plan also called for $22 million worth of mitigation.

According to Cheney's study, a Highpoint project with 1,641 units (of which 410 are subsidized) would generate 798 additional school children. Annual revenues to the city would total $1,993,900. Cheney derived the revenue figure this way: taxes @ $1,000/market unit, and $660 per affordable unit equals $1,501,600. Excise taxes of $300 per unit would generate an additional $492,300.

However, Highpoint's 1,641 unit/affordable housing plan would create $7,426,429 in costs to the city. That figure is broken down this way: $261,554 (environmental remediation of $3,000,000 amortized over 20 years at 6%); $5,503,800 in education costs; $871,846 per year to pay for a new school projected to cost $10 million; $214,929 in land costs and $574,300 in other municipal costs ($300/unit market rate and $500/unit affordable).

The bottom line: a shortfall of $5,432,529.

Cheney said an apartment complex with 1,195 at market value units makes more financial sense for the city.

"That way, you get all the mitigation and the developer pays for the cleanup of the site. At 1,195 units, the city would end up with somewhere between $16 and $18 million in mitigation, traffic improvements, and $1 million in annual tax revenue.

"The city would end up with probably about 50 new kids in the school system. We wouldn't have to build a new school. We'd also get a new water system with new pipes which would rectify the water pressure problem in that area," he added.

Cheney said he would not appear at Tuesday's ZBA hearing. "This is only a study. It's not a proposal. I am urging compromise between the City Council and the developer," he said.

Without a compromise to the PUD permit, Cheney said the Zoning Board of Appeals could vote up or down on the comprehensive permit which includes the affordable housing units. The comprehensive permit does not require City Council approval.

If the comprehensive permit is denied by the city's ZBA, Cheney said the developer can appeal the decision to the state's Housing Appeals Committee. "The last 15 developers to appeal a ZBA decision within the Commonwealth have won their appeals," Cheney said.

"Every single (Planned Unit Development) permit has been negotiated in the city," Cheney said, noting large-scale projects such as Home Depot, Wal-Mart, Roche Brothers and Marina Bay.

"The City Council should got in and negotiate the number of market value units they can live with. The problem is no one is negotiating and you have to be at the table in order to negotiate and there's no one at the table," he said.

NON-UNIONS

A fracture (broken bone) in the foot normally heals in 4-8 weeks. Unfortunately, a small number of fractures may develop into non-unions. A non-union is defined as a fracture that is not healed at 9 months.

Although the x-ray may still show the fracture line, many patients may be symptom free. Patients who are experiencing pain at the site of the non-union are often treated with a bone stimulator.

A bone stimulator is a device that is placed at the site of the non-union. It promotes bone healing by inducing electrical currents at the site of the fracture. These electrical currents act by creating an environment suitable for osteogenesis, or bone formation.

If you are concerned about a possible broken bone, see a qualified physician for treatment.

If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

Cheney derived the revenue figure this way: taxes @ $1,000/market unit, and $660 per affordable unit equals $1,501,600. Excise taxes of $300 per unit would generate an additional $492,300.

However, Highpoint's 1,641 unit/affordable housing plan would create $7,426,429 in costs to the city. That figure is broken down this way: $261,554 (environmental remediation of $3,000,000 amortized over 20 years at 6%); $5,503,800 in education costs; $871,846 per year to pay for a new school projected to cost $10 million; $214,929 in land costs and $574,300 in other municipal costs ($300/unit market rate and $500/unit affordable).

The bottom line: a shortfall of $5,432,529.

Cheney said an apartment complex with 1,195 at market value units makes more financial sense for the city.

"That way, you get all the mitigation and the developer pays for the cleanup of the site. At 1,195 units, the city would end up with somewhere between $16 and $18 million in mitigation, traffic improvements, and $1 million in annual tax revenue.

"The city would end up with probably about 50 new kids in the school system. We wouldn't have to build a new school. We'd also get a new water system with new pipes which would rectify the water pressure problem in that area," he added.

Cheney said he would not appear at Tuesday's ZBA hearing. "This is only a study. It's not a proposal. I am urging compromise between the City Council and the developer," he said.

Without a compromise to the PUD permit, Cheney said the Zoning Board of Appeals could vote up or down on the comprehensive permit which includes the affordable housing units. The comprehensive permit does not require City Council approval.

If the comprehensive permit is denied by the city's ZBA, Cheney said the developer can appeal the decision to the state's Housing Appeals Committee. "The last 15 developers to appeal a ZBA decision within the Commonwealth have won their appeals," Cheney said.

"Every single (Planned Unit Development) permit has been negotiated in the city," Cheney said, noting large-scale projects such as Home Depot, Wal-Mart, Roche Brothers and Marina Bay.

"The City Council should got in and negotiate the number of market value units they can live with. The problem is no one is negotiating and you have to be at the table in order to negotiate and there's no one at the table," he said.

NON-UNIONS

A fracture (broken bone) in the foot normally heals in 4-8 weeks. Unfortunately, a small number of fractures may develop into non-unions. A non-union is defined as a fracture that is not healed at 9 months.

Although the x-ray may still show the fracture line, many patients may be symptom free. Patients who are experiencing pain at the site of the non-union are often treated with a bone stimulator.

A bone stimulator is a device that is placed at the site of the non-union. It promotes bone healing by inducing electrical currents at the site of the fracture. These electrical currents act by creating an environment suitable for osteogenesis, or bone formation.

If you are concerned about a possible broken bone, see a qualified physician for treatment.

If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

BACK-TO-SCHOOL

A Message From The Education Secretary

Back-To-School Time: Not Just For Kids Anymore

By RICHARD W. RILEY
U.S. Secretary of Education

Back-to-school time has always been exciting for children. It's a time to meet new friends, new teachers, and resume the adventure of learning.

But back-to-school time is not just for kids anymore.

If our schools are going to do the job we expect them to do, everyone must pitch in and help. That includes parents and everyone is the community.

The fact is, schools today can't do the job alone. There are more children in our schools this fall than ever before--more, even, than at the height of the baby boom! There is more diversity--in some schools, students come from dozens of nations. We are living in the Information Age, a time when our nation's economy and security depend more on the quality of education than at any other time in our history. That's why more and more states and communities are requiring students and teachers to reach for high standards of learning, and why the public is demanding real results for its tax dollars.

So I encourage every parent, family, and citizen to use this back-to-school season to make a personal commitment to supporting better education in their community. When children are surrounded by adults and communities that value education, they get the message that their education is important. And they're more likely to buckle down and do their best. When children see that adults and communities don't care about education, they get the opposite message. And we all lose.

To spread the message about the importance of family and community involvement in education, the U.S. Department of Education conducts a national initiative each year called "America Goes Back to School." We hold events all around the nation to stir excitement for the new school season.

We've also prepared a colorful, fact-filled "America Goes Back to School" kit which provides plenty of good ideas for getting involved in your schools and staying involved all year long. It's called, "Challenge Our Students and They Will Soar," and you can get a free kit by calling the U.S. Department of Education at 1-800-USA-LEARN, or by visiting our web site at www.ed.gov/Family/agbts.

Here are a few ideas that can get you started:

• Employers: Be "family friendly." Give your employees the time to meet with teachers and volunteers for school activities. It's good for education, and good for your bottom line. Giving parents flexible work schedules helps you keep your top-notch workers. Also, encourage your employees to be mentors and tutors to young people. Offer students internships and work-study experiences. And invite teachers into your workplace to show them the skills that today's workers must have. This will help teachers to make sure students take the courses they'll need to gain those skills.

• Parents: Try to slow down your lives and help your children grow. Spend at least 30 minutes a day supervising your children's education. Start early, and read to your youngest children. Share books with your older children. Keep in touch with teachers. Make sure your children are doing their homework. Keep TV watching to a minimum. And talk with your children frankly about drugs and violence and the values you want them to have.

• Educators, community leaders and law enforcement officials: Many communities are holding town meetings with mental health professionals to talk about troubled youth and school violence. Think about holding one in your community. Talk about ways to help troubled youth and find ways to connect to each young person to at least one caring adult. Every child should feel that he or she is the most important person in an adult's life. Creating connections and a caring environment in the home, at school, and in the community is an important part of preventing violence. And work with others in your community to develop quality after-school and summer programs. Isn't it better to have children in school where they can continue learning, rather than being at home alone, or going to the mall to play violent video games?

• Teachers and school officials: Make your school parent-friendly. Reach out to families and remove the obstacles that sometimes make them reluctant to get involved in school activities.

• Students: Challenge yourselves! Take the tough courses in middle and high school that will put you on the road to college and careers. Take algebra in 8th grade, geometry in 9th grade, and physics, chemistry and trigonometry in high school. Take four years of a foreign language, and an Advanced Placement art, music, English, or history course. Explore tech prep and other career courses. Studies show that students who take academically challenging high school courses are more likely to attend and complete college and earn more in the work world, regardless of their families financial status, race, or gender.

Elementary school students should focus on reading, reading, and reading--and math, too. Develop those basic skills. And no child should be promoted to a grade they're not ready for. Let's get rid of social promotion. If some children aren't making the grade, give them the extra help they need, either after-school or over the weekends and summers.

At the national level, we're working hard to provide communities like yours with more of the resources you'll need to accomplish these goals. If Congress agrees, we will expand after-school programs, help reduce class size by hiring 100,000 well-prepared

Pointers For Parents

How To Get Kids Ready For The New School Year

(NAPS)—For kids, the end of long, carefree summer days signals the return to school. While facing a new school year can be exciting for children, it can also generate feelings of fear and anxiety. Fortunately, there are ways parents can help their kids make the transition back to school as smooth as possible. Here are some practical tips to follow.

• If possible, visit the school beforehand to show your kids their classrooms, the playground and the bus stop. This is especially important if a child is just starting school or attending a new school.

• If you have younger children taking a bus to school, accompany them to the bus stop for the first few days and introduce them to some of the other kids at the stop. You may also want to include a tag inside their backpack or jacket that contains their name, address and home phone number.

• Explain to your kids how school will be different this year and talk positively about all the new learning experiences that await them. This can help make a child feel good about returning to school.

To help kids get ready for back-to-school, purchase some fun school supplies they can show to their classmates, such as Scotch pop-up tape for kids.

• Have your kids draw a picture of what they think their first day of school will be like. A picture can provide you with a good idea of what your kids are feeling, which you can then discuss.

• Keep your own emotions in check. If you're nervous or sad about your kids going to school, don't let them pick up on your feelings or they may become fearful as well.

• Encourage kids to become reacquainted with school friends they may not have seen during the summer. This may lessen fears about fitting-in in a new classroom.

• Establish a new routine (earlier bedtime and waking time) a week or two before school starts to ease kids into a school-time schedule.

• Set goals for the coming year. Discuss successes of the previous school year with your kids and help them establish goals to work on for the new school year. Goals may include reading more books, or improving math skills.

• Allow kids some free time after school. The first few weeks of school can be very stressful for kids, and they need time to wind down before tackling homework or chores.

• Purchase some fun back-to-school supplies your child will look forward to using and showing to classmates

Study Strategies

(NAPS)—Knowing the best strategies for studying makes learning more enjoyable and strengthens confidence.

The following tips, devised by the education experts at Sylvan Learning Centers, are designed to help students develop good study habits, giving them the competitive edge they need to succeed.

• Plan-Plan-Plan. Plan a set study schedule for the week. Choose 10 hours a week to be used for study time. If you have homework, do it then. If you don't have homework, use the time to prepare for tests or projects.

• Discover your learning style. There are visual (seeing), auditory (hearing), and haptic (doing) learners. If you work in your style, you will spend less time spinning your wheels and more time being effective. Consider other factors like lighting, temperature, and noise levels.

• Keep your old tests and homework. Find a file cabinet to store old chapters and units. Many comprehensive tests will use questions directly from tests you've already taken.

• Work ahead on big projects. Get a large calendar for your desk area and set short timelines for steps of the project so they don't get left to the last minute.

More information about Sylvan Learning Centers, which help children with reading, writing, math, SAT/ACT preparation, and study skills, is available by calling 1-800-31-SUCCESS or access www.educate.com.

Back-To School Time: Not Just For Kids Anymore

teachers, fund safe and drug-free school programs, provide mentors for middle school students and put them on the road to college, and build or modernize schools to alleviate overcrowding and put computers into every classroom. Technology is critically important if we're going to prepare our children for success in the 21st century.

If you want to get involved, you don't have to go it alone. Building partnerships is the key. Join with others in your community to determine your school's needs and then ask teachers and principals how you can support their efforts.

No one stands taller than when they stoop down to help a child. Get involved with your community's young people, and you will stand taller--and feel taller--than you ever have. Back-to-school time is the perfect time to start.

The FHA 203(K) Loan Can Help Improve The Almost Perfect Home

You've found it -- the home of your dreams...almost.

It has the correct number of bedrooms, a nice yard and it's within your price range. There's just one thing (or maybe two...or three): The kitchen needs updating, the heating system needs to be replaced, or perhaps you'd like to add a family room. After making your downpayment, there won't be any money left over to make these renovations.

With the inventory of homes for sale still tight, many buyers are opting to purchase a house that requires some repair work. In essence, a renovation loan allows you to add the mount necessary to renovate your house onto your mortgage, thereby giving you extra cash necessary to make the almost perfect home into the truly perfect home.

One of the best programs for renovation financing is the Federal Housing Administration's 203(k) Renovation Loan. This program offers the advantages of an FHA loan (3-percent down on sale price plus renovation costs, flexible qualifying, and all borrowers investments coming from a gift, etc.) along with a renovation component.

CAROL BULMAN

This government-backed loan may well be called the miracle of the '90s and will help thousands of people who might not qualify under the other programs to realize their dream of home ownership. CFS has a division devoted entirely to the FHA 203(k) loan product.

Here's how a rehab loan works: Once you've found your "almost perfect" property, it's a good idea to meet with a mortgage officer who can help you through the process.

The first step in a renovation loan involves having written estimates prepared by a 203(k) consultant to substantiate the projected cost of making repairs. The lender will use this estimate as a basis for prequalifying the buyer for a loan that combines the purchase price and the cost of making repairs, as well as allowable closing costs.

For example, say a buyer wants to purchase a $100,000 home with $25,000 in renovations costs. Using a rehab loan, the buyer would be qualified based upon $125,000 minus a down payment as low as 3 percent on the total sale price, renovation costs and financeable closing costs.

Beginning at the closing, the rehab loan starts to operate much the same as a construction loan. At the closing, the borrower would make their down payment on the total of the sale price, rehab costs and financeable items. The lender would extend the remainder of the funds needed to purchase the home from the seller. The $25,000 for renovation, however, would continue to be held by the lender in escrow.

From then on, as the renovations are completed, the lender will send the HUD 203(k) consultant out to your property to verify completion of the work. Upon verification of satisfactory completion, monies held by the lender will be released to pay for the work.

So, before you pass on that "almost perfect" property, consider discussing a renovation loan with your mortgage officer. Call CFS to obtain a free copy of HUD's 203(k) brochure entitled: "Rehab a home with HUD's 203(k)."

Carol Bulman is president of Conway Financial Services, a mortgage brokerage firm owned by Jack Conway & Co., that maintains correspondent lending relationships with some of the top mortgage lenders in the east and originates a full line of mortgage products. Jack Conway & Co. is the largest independent real estate company in Massachusetts, with more than 600 agents in 36 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

Builders Licensing Course Begins Sept. 13

The Builders Association of Greater Boston (BAGB) announces a Builders Licensing Course will begin Monday, Sept. 13 in Quincy at the Quincy Crown Colony Office Park.

Sept. 3 Deadline For Final Duplex At Granite Village

South Shore Habitat for Humanity is now accepting applications for the final duplex to be built in Granite Village, a nine-home neighborhood now under construction on Bower Rd. in Quincy Point.

Local families who can demonstrate a severe housing need and who meet residency and Habitat income requirements are encouraged to apply for these 3-bedroom units. Deadline for applications is Friday, Sept. 3.

South Shore Habitat will select families on the basis of severity of housing need, income, willingness to partner with Habitat and residency. Families are chosen without regard to age, sex, sexual preference, disability, race, religion or national origin. Since the houses will be new, construction may be able to be modified within limits to accommodate families with disabilities.

This is a home ownership opportunity. Selected families will purchase the homes at cost and will receive 20-year, zero-interest financing by South Shore Habitat. Each home is estimated to cost $60,000, and the monthly mortgage principal payment will be approximately $250. Those payments are used to finance future Habitat home construction or renovations on the South Shore.

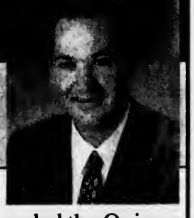
The new homeowners will be responsible for paying property taxes, insurance and upkeep of their homes. In addition, each family is required to complete 500 hours of "sweat equity." That takes the form of helping build the homes by working on Saturdays along with volunteers open construction, landscaping, and site cleanup, or performing other tasks that support South Shore Habitat. Sweat equity hours can be accumulated by any family member; no construction skills are necessary.

To qualify for Granite Village, families must be residents of Quincy for at least one year or former residents who lived in Quincy for at least two years; and have a minimum gross income of $17,000 per year to a maximum of $24,000 for a family of three, $25,000 for a family of four, $27,000 for a family of five or $28,000 for a family of six or more. Extenuating circumstances will be considered.

For more information or to apply, write to South Shore Habitat for Humanity, 28 River St., Braintree, MA 02184 or call 781-843-9080. Applications may also be picked up at the information desk in the Quincy City Hall lobby.

Construction on Granite Village began early in 1998, and the first three families were in their homes by the end of the year. The first duplex is nearing completion, and the second duplex is well underway. The families waiting for those four homes were chosen last August. Plans originally called for building 10 homes, but the land could only accommodate nine.

South Shore Habitat for Humanity is an ecumenical Christian ministry working to build affordable homes in the communities south of Boston. Since its founding in 1986, it has completed 20 homes in 14 communities.



Granite Village is Habitat's most ambitious project to date, and transforming the 3.3-acre former quarry into a flourishing neighborhood has been a tremendous challenge.

SSHH uses volunteer labor and donated land and materials wherever possible to keep costs down, but needs about $300,000 to complete Granite Village. Anyone interested in volunteering or making a financial donation should contact the office at 781-843-9080.

MWRA To Dedicate Nut Island Public Access Area Sept. 10

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority will dedicate the Nut Island Public Access Area to the new Treatment Facility at Nut Island Friday, Sept. 10 from 10:30 a.m. to noon.

"Over the past several years, the Citizens Advisory Committee has worked very hard to make sure that the 14 acres of open space surrounded by the Head Works Facility, will be an important part of Boston Harbor Island and a space for future generations to enjoy the beautiful surroundings," said Council President Peter Kolson.

"Without the hard work and dedication of the Advisory Committee for the past several years, this would not have been possible," added Kolson, who represents Ward 1.

Mistakes Wreak Havoc In Granite 27-18 Loss

NEFL Champs Capitalize On Turnovers

By CHRIS POISSON

David Harris knew what the Quincy Granite had to avoid as they prepared for week two of their inaugural season in the New England Football League.

Even after a 25-0 win against the South Shore Stars in the season opener, the captain was concerned.

"We can't make the mistakes we made against the Stars because this team will capitalize on them," Harris said before Saturday's game.

Well, Quincy (1-1) made many mistakes and "this team," the 1996 and 1997 NEFL champs, Mass Havoc (1-1), easily took advantage of its opponent's blunders, crushing the Granite, 27-18, at Lynn Tech Stadium Saturday afternoon.

The game was not as close as the score indicates. The Havoc had a commanding 27-2 lead entering the fourth quarter before the Granite put two touchdowns on the board.

"Obviously, we got started late offensively, which kept the defense's backs to the wall," said captain Sean Halpin, a linebacker. "The defense was on the field for the whole game."

The defense didn't have much of a chance in this one as the offense turned the ball over on downs, and the special teams kept botching punt attempts, leaving the Havoc in great field position.

"The special teams messed up a couple of snaps and the offense kept giving the ball away on downs," said Halpin. "But we're going to go to practice with a whole new attitude. It's ridiculous. They were not that much better of a team."

Quincy actually had a 2-0 lead in the first quarter when the Havoc snapped the ball out of the end zone on a punt attempt. But that was short-lived.

The Havoc scored a touchdown in the second for a 7-2 lead at the half, and then the floodgates opened as they scored 20 in the third quarter on a series of miscues.

The Granite made back-to-back mistakes on punts and the Havoc scored two TDs on the turnovers.

"Without those mistakes we probably could've gone into overtime or even pulled out a win," said Harris. "Field position played a big part."

Wide receiver Bunny Jefferson, who won rookie of the year honors for the Eastern Football League's Boston Cowboys last season, scored the second of his two TDs on a 20-yard leaping catch.

"He's a great player," said Harris. "He went up three or four feet in the air and caught the ball over a couple of our defenders. He's the only one who could've made that catch."

"Their running game was not a factor at all," said Halpin. "We probably held them under 30 yards. They were just getting great field position and making great pass plays."

Quincy was without the services of offensive lineman Brian Raftery which led to part of the offensive woes early on.

In the fourth the offense finally got rolling. Derek Epps scored on a 40-yard pass from quarterback Liam Higgins for the first touchdown. Tight end Scott Spaulding raced 60 yards on a screen, hurdling a defender on the way, for the second TD.

Defensive back John Skiebekis played well defensively with two interceptions.

"Offensively, we have some more things to work on," said Harris. "It takes time to get an offense you're comfortable with.

"I think you'll see a new football team this Saturday. The loss was an eye-opener and it definitely points us in the right direction."

Saturday, Quincy hosts the defending South champion Tri-Attleboro Rhinos (0-2) at Veterans Memorial Stadium at 7 p.m. The Rhinos dropped an 18-14 decision to the Mass Havoc in week one and Saturday they were shut out by the Boston Bandits, 14-0.

"They're a pretty good team," said Harris. "They have some tough ballplayers. I think this Saturday you'll see a lot better polished Granite football team."

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS (center) holds the "Outstanding Community Meet Award" that was presented by the Hershey National Track and Field Youth Program. City Honored For Outstanding Hershey Track, Field Program

The Hershey's Track and Field Youth Program presented the 1999 Outstanding Local Program Award to the City of Quincy.

The award recognized the long history of the Quincy Recreation Department and the Quincy Track Club's co-sponsorship of a Local Qualifying Meet in the National Program.

The Hershey's Track and Field Youth Program is a free program for boys and girls ages 9-14. Meets are conducted in all 50 states, as well as the 10 provinces and three territories of Canada. These meets promote physical fitness, participation, friendship and sportsmanship.

The award, in "recognition of commitment and dedication to the youth of the community," was presented at the state championship meet by New England Hershey's Coordinator Bill Headlund.

Geoff Hennessy, Director of the Quincy Track Club, accepted the award on behalf of the city.

According to Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, "the Quincy Recreation Department of the Quincy Track Club have been co-sponsoring one of the largest local meets in the state for over 20 years. Thousands of youngsters have benefited by their participation.

Scores have gone to the National Championship as guests of the Hershey Chocolate Company.

Some participants are offered the opportunity to refine natural abilities, while for others the meet may be the spark that ignites an interest in track and field."

The most notable participant in Quincy's program has been Olympic Bronze Medallist Karen Cashman. Cashman, a five-time Nationalist Finalist, often cites the Hershey Program as inspiring her national aspirations in sports.

"The ideals and goals of this program are consistent with the philosophy of our community," said Welch. "We strive in all our efforts to provide opportunities for our youth to achieve. We are honored to be singled out from the thousands of local meets conducted in North America. This is a fine tribute to our staff and citizens who have contributed their time and talent for over 20 years."

Quincy Football Has Edge In Schedule

Presidents May Have 8 Home Games; North Quincy To Host Only 5 Contests

By CHRIS POISSON

The 1999 high school football schedules have been released for Quincy and North Quincy and, at a quick glance, it looks like Quincy has the better of the two.

Both teams will play 11 regular season games, four against non-league opponents. But in terms of home and away games, Quincy has the advantage with seven games on home soil, while North Quincy has only five.

Quincy has the possibility of enjoying eight games at home this year. Catholic Memorial, which Quincy plays in the third week, is still uncertain if it will be able to use its field for the match.

"Having only four away games is a tremendous advantage in itself, said Bob Noble, who was named the interim Quincy head coach after Peter Chella stepped down. "I don't think too many teams can say they have that. Schedule-wise, we're very lucky this year. It will save on the wear and tear."

Quincy will kick off its season Saturday, Sept. 11 at home at 10 a.m. against Plymouth North.

"Right now, I really don't know how they'll be this year," said Noble. "I know they were a senior-laden team a year ago, so I assume they may be inexperienced this year.

"It's a non-league game so we don't see them that much. The last time we saw them was two years ago. We do know what they like to run offensively and defensively and that's what we are preparing for."

After Plymouth North, Quincy hosts Randolph then faces Catholic Memorial - all non-league games.

"It's key to come out of the first three games on a positive note," said Noble. "If we come out of that in a positive fashion, it will set the tone for the rest of the season. And I'm very confident that will happen."

In October, Quincy will enjoy some home-cooking with four straight games at Veterans Memorial Stadium. That mid-season stretch should help the Presidents in their pursuit of the playoffs.

Last season Quincy finished 0-10, the first time it was winless since the 1985 campaign. Noble expects a competitive team this year that should improve remarkably on last season's record.

"I think offensively we'll throw and move the ball fairly consistently," said Noble. "We have a veteran team coming back, although it is a team coming off a 0-10 season. But we were inexperienced last year. You can see what a difference a year makes."

Last week, Quincy participated in the Pigskin Camp at Braintree with over 80 kids on hand. Noble expects between 90-100 participants, grades 9-12, in the football program this year.

The team started conditioning on Monday and double sessions began today (Thursday). Quincy will scrimmage B.C. High Saturday, Somerville (Sept. 1), and play a quad-scrimmage at Braintree (Sept. 4).

Seniors Tim Pezzulo (RB/DB) and Nick DiStasi (WR/LB) have been chosen overwhelmingly by their teammates as this year's captains.

"They're exactly what you look for in captains," said Noble. "They lead by example and they're outstanding citizens in regards to high school. The kids picked them. We didn't. So give them credit."

North Quincy hits the gridiron against Medford Friday, Sept. 11 at home at 7 p.m.

After Medford, North Quincy will host Stoughton and then go on the road, for the first of six away games, to face Whitman-Hanson. North Quincy will have to get the job done away from home if it hopes to reach the postseason, as four of its final five games are away from Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Two of the big guns North Quincy will try to knock off this year are Barnstable (Oct. 8) and Bridgewater-Raynham (Nov. 5).

Last season the Red Raiders finished with a dismal 2-8 record. But one of those wins was a 21-6 triumph against rival Quincy in the Thanksgiving Day game, snapping a four-game losing skid in the annual holiday event.

Head coach Peter Chrisom, Jr. was unavailable for comment on this year's schedule as the paper went to print.

No Recreational Swim Program Aug. 27-Sept. 13 At Lincoln-Hancock

The Quincy Recreation Department announces that its Supervised Recreational Swim Program at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool will be closed from Friday, Aug. 27 at 9 p.m. until Monday, Sept. 13 at 6 p.m.

Quincy Recreation Department's supervised swim program will resume on Monday, Sept. 13 on the new fall 1999 schedule.

The school swim program, including swim meets and practices, will be at their regular schedule during this period.

New schedule is effective Sept. 13: Family Swim, Monday-Friday 6-6:50 p.m.; Scuba, Monday 7-7:45 p.m.; Senior citizens, TBA; Adults, 7:55-8:45 p.m.

Sundays: Youth, 1-1:50 p.m.; Family, 2-2:50 p.m.; Senior citizens, 3-3:45 p.m.; Adults, 3:55-4:45 p.m.

Recreation Department Crowns 3-On-3 Hoop Champs

More than 50 youngsters from seven of the city's 21 playgrounds took part in the Quincy Recreation Department's annual 3-on-3 Hoop Tournament at the Fenno Street playground.

The event was sponsored by Pat McDonough, Jamie Karvelis and Eddie Smith.

Fore River playground took first place in both the Midget and Junior Boys divisions. Giovanni Caesar, Tim Bryson and Steve Farrar were the winners in the Midget Boys division. Alex Scott, Parker Scott and DJ Andrews took first in the Junior Boys. Both teams were coached by Recreation leader Jon Brillo.

The champions in the Senior Boys division were Troy Coleman, Shawn Munchback and Willie Mandrell of Palmer Park. They were coached by Stephanie Wiltshire.

City finalists include:

MIDGET BOYS: Keith Morreale, Steve Howland and Lonnell Moody of Kincaide, coached by Recreation leader Danny Donaghue.

JUNIOR BOYS: Kyle Costa, Andrew Donovan and Keith Nee of Mass Fields, coached by Recreation leader Ryan Herlihy.

City Tennis Tournament Plans Special Honor In Memory Of Henry McAuliffe

The City Park and Recreation Board has voted unanimously to honor the memory of Quincy tennis legend Henry McAuliffe by naming a division in the annual tennis tournament in his honor.

The board acted on a request by players and the founder of the tournament, that started in 1971.

McAuliffe, who was called "The Master," gave willingly of himself for decades to the Quincy Tennis Community said Recreation Director Barry Welch. McAuliffe died in February.

Welch said the request was initiated by Ken Rickson, Joseph Ryan, Michael Kenny and the tournament founder Ken Rickson, Sr. "The dedication recognizes McAuliffe's love of the game that touched hundreds of Quincy tennis players," Barry said.

The board agreed with the group that his contributions to the Quincy Tournament and to tennis in general were substantial. He was designated as a "cheerleader, a motivator of youth, a coach, an unofficial host/volunteer curator of the public courts behind the Voc-Tech school.

"Henry was a master of wit as well as tennis, and was always willing to go the extra mile to make the tournament successful," said Welch.

Longtime tennis tournament Director John Franceschini endorsed the effort to honor McAuliffe. Franceschini recalled the early days of the tournament when McAuliffe would sit for hours in a borrowed lifeguard stand, acting as announcer and referee for the tournament finals.

The board voted to honor the winner of the Men's Doubles event with the Henry "The Master" McAuliffe Bowl effective at this fall's tournament. This is the 25th year of the event, which crowns the top resident tennis players in eleven categories.

There are two other bowls that carry names awarded in the tournament. The Men's Singles event honors Lionel "Shine" Buckley, a retired recreation department supervisor. The Mixed Doubles event is named after the late William F. Ryan, Director of Recreation from 1955-1975.

This year's tournament will be sponsored by the Quincy Municipal Credit Union and the Quincy Recreation Department. Applications are currently available for the tournament, which begins Sept. 8.

For more information call the Quincy Recreation Office, 376-1394.

Quincy Natives Win Figure Skating Medals

Kristina Pan, Courtney Thompson, and Jolene Dooley won medals in figure skating at the inaugural State Games of America in St. Louis, Missouri, Aug. 6-9.

Pan and Thompson were gold medalists and Dooley received a bronze medal.

As gold medalists in the Bay State Winter Games, the Quincy natives earned invitations to compete in the Olympic-style event which drew more than 6000 medal winners in 15 sports from across the country, including 132 athletes from Massachusetts.

Three time Olympic Gold Medalist Jackie Joyner-Kersee, National Spokeswoman for the event, welcomed the athletes and commended them on their hard work and determination.

Bronze medalist Dooley, daughter of Joe and Arlene Dooley of North Quincy, is a graduate of Sacred Heart School. She will enter her junior year at North Quincy High School where she is a Red Raiders cheerleader.

Montclair, Perkins, LaBreque Soccer Tournament Champs

The Quincy Recreation Department sponsored its annual Six-On-Six Soccer Tournament for the city's playgrounds. The event was held at Russell playground and was attended by over 100 children between the ages of 8 and 16.

The teams of six competed in three divisions: Junior Girls, Junior Boys and Senior Boys.

Montclair won the Junior Girls division in a World Cup style shootout. They defeated the girls from District Two who combined for the tournament.

The players from Montclair were Courtney Saylor, Sarah Goreham, Rebecca Goreham, Kerry Rodgers, Michelle Tuori, and Aoife Murphy. Recreation leader Liz Ryan led Montclair to victory.

The Junior Boys Championship team from Perkins defeated Mass Fields. Recreation leader Steve Wiltshire led Perkins to the 1-0 victory in overtime.

The members of the Perkins team were Joe Cafano, Kevin Donavan, Pat Graham, Alex Mendez, Adam Valentino, Terrance O'Connell, Frank McKenna, and Dan Graham.

LaBreque defeated Wollaston in the Senior Boys Division led by recreation leader Kevin Ryan.

The champions from LaBreque were Paul Picarski, Brendan Conley, Josh Giordani, Joey Keefe, Mike Quilty, and Ryan Conley.

Volleyball Competition Raises $1,000 For Beach Cleanup

A dozen teams recently competed in a double-elimination volleyball challenge on Wollaston Beach, raising nearly $1,000 for the Wollaston Beach Cleanup Fund.

"The competition was spirited, the atmosphere was festive, and we raised a good chunk of change that will enable us to sponsor more recreational and educational events along Wollaston Beach," said Douglas Gutro, president of the Ward 5 Community Association, a co-sponsor of the event.

"Their was excitement in the air all day long. It was an action packed, fun-filled day for participants and sponsors," Gutro added.

The event is the only organized annual adult-recreational event on Wollaston Beach.

"It's great to see businesses, residents, and politicians sponsoring teams, having fun in an effort to improve the beach," said Karen Djerf of Tony's Clam Shop.

A team sponsored by Sam Adams Brewery took top honors, edging out Tony's Clam Shop in the championship game.

Event co-sponsors included Tony's Clam Shop, Coca Cola, Ward 5 Community Association, MDC Wollaston Beach Operations, Coffee Break Cafe', Caryn's Corner and Sam Adams.

Jim Rendle, coach of the North Quincy High School girls' volleyball team, led a team of officials that refereed the four-hour event.

BUCKLE UP, BUCKLE DOWN

Parents have more to gain than the incomparable safety benefit when they buckle their children's seat belts. According to medical researchers, children who are buckled into safety seats are not only safer, but they are better behaved. While children who are not buckled up tend to complain, fight, squirm, stand up and grab at the steering wheel, children who are buckled into safety seats displayed 95% fewer incidents of this bad behavior. Moreover, being buckled up affords children a higher position from which to view the road. When buckled up, children also feel more secure, are less likely to get car-sick and are more likely to fall asleep. All these factors lead to a safer driving environment.

All vehicles are equipped with many safety devices and systems and it makes good sense to keep every system, including the safety systems in your new or older car, properly maintained. Rely on your professional service technician. To help you do this, the professional ASE Certified service team at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is available at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). Open: Mon-Fri 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Count on us for propane for gas grills, motor homes and converted vehicles.

Combating Eating Disorders:

A Meal Program For Those Who Choose Not To Eat

The Massachusetts Eating Disorder Association has launched an innovative program to complement the treatment of eating disorders.

Best described as a "meal-mentoring" program, Safe Haven provides a safe and understanding environment for individuals suffering with anorexia, bulimia or binge eating disorder/compulsive overeating. The program offers supervised meals to individuals in their own home, the MEDA office, a restaurant, school and/or clinic by a compassionate and knowledgeable person.

The mission is to prevent individuals from needing inpatient care by providing nurturing staff who can give them tools to help them care about themselves and to aid those in transition from inpatient to outpatient treatment.

Safe Haven can prevent individuals from relapsing into their eating disorder, it can prevent further hospitalization; it can help a client transition from a hospital setting back into the community, and it can also serve as a helpful adjunct to individual, group or family psychotherapy.

"Eating in front of someone else was anxiety-producing but I was able to do it," a former Safe Haven client said attesting to the program's benefits. "I felt the program was incredibly helpful because I was able to prove to myself that I can make commitments and honor them."

The program is directed by Laura Goodman, M.Ed., LMHC, a clinician who specializes in the treatment of eating disorders and is the author of the book, Is Your Child Dying to be Thin? Cybill Bushong, MSW, the Assistant Director of MEDA, supervises the staff involved in the program.

All meal mentors are caring individuals who understand eating disorders and their treatment and have participated in training for this program. Cost for the sessions are reasonable with some financial aid available to those in need.

MEDA was recently spotlighted as the Boston Cares page in the August 1999 Best of Boston issue of Boston Magazine. The ad depicts a woman suffering with bulimia and the negative effects the disorder can cause on the body and the psyche.

For further information about the Safe Haven program or other MEDA services, contact the MEDA office at (617) 558-1881.

Hearing aid "Tips from Tobias"

Stephen P. Tobias
Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist

Why do my hearing aids whistle?
This is probably the most frequently asked question about hearing aids.
The most common reason is that the aid is a bit loose in your ear, allowing the sound to leak out of your ear and re-enter into it's own microphone, hence the term "feedback".
Solution: If the aid is under warranty have it recased, if not have it coated with Ultra Violet plastics (preferred material) or something comparable in order to tighten the fit.
The other reasons for "feedback" are a malfunction in the aid itself or the ear may be impacted with wax.
Remember this, your hearing aid should not whistle at your comfortable listening level unless you cover it, make exaggerated jaw motions or have a profound loss. Have a Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist take care it, because when it whistles you are losing out on what you want to hear!
Now you go and spread the news! -Steve

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

SOME THOUGHTS ON PROGRESS...

Did you know that our forefathers did without sugar until the 13th century, without coal fires until the 14th century, without buttered bread until the 15th century, without coffee and tea and soap until the 17th century, without pudding until the 18th century, without gas and matches and electricity until the 19th century and without canned goods until the 20th century?

To continue with these thoughts... Let us visit a museum... When we see the household utensils, farming implements and clothing that our predecessors used, we wonder how on earth they got along. We wonder, until we remember these crude and clumsy things (to us) were once considered very modern... The people of that era considered them "the last word"...

Each generation starts to build where the previous one left off ...We wonder that perhaps 500 years from now our cars, our planes, our spacecraft and hundreds of other things we think are smart... "the last word," will be shown in museums to the amusement of our descendants...

CRITIC'S CORNER

THE HAUNTING: What makes a scary movie successful? To me, it's the suggestion of horror, not overt gimmicks. It's scarier in your imagination than it is face-to-face. That's why the original movie, "The Haunting of Hill House," based on Shirley Jackson's novel of the same name, is a horror classic. This remake, unfortunately, won't achieve the same notoriety.

Liam Neeson, fresh from his "Star Wars" success, portrays Dr. David Marrow, a psychologist researching people's reactions to fear. He selects three people for his experiment, but he lies to them about his real purpose. He tells them he's doing a study on sleep disorders. What he's really doing is watching them as they react to spooky happenings in a "haunted" house.

The three subjects consist of a woman named Eleanor (Lili Taylor), who is burnt out after years of caring for her sickly mother (now deceased), Theo (Catherine Zeta-Jones) a tough-talking bisexual woman whose banter does little to disguise her insecurities, and Luke (Owen Williams), a bland young man who roams around clutching a baseball glove and ball.

The major focus of the flick is Eleanor. Taylor's performance is wonderful, but even an actress of her talents can't redeem the thin plot. Neeson is hardly used at all, which probably contributes to the overall failure of this film.

What this movie seems to rely most on are tricks and special effects. They do little to inspire the genuine terror of the original 1960s movie. If you're really in the mood for a good horror movie romp, and your constitution can handle it, rent the original. It's much, much better!

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You have traveled to exotic and mysterious places in your mind and have brought back souvenirs from every place. Don't be afraid to share them with people.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Things have gone marching off in a direction that you don't quite understand. You don't need to approve, but don't make a fuss just yet.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You have performed the motions; now you'll have the pleasure of knowing why they were right. Sometimes it's necessary to work the problem several times over in order to understand the answer.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your inner artist, musician or decorator refuses to be pent up any longer. Creativity flows from your fingertips to any available medium.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Nothing seems to turn out quite as you expected, but you're still able to remain positive. Actually, the chaos around you is quite funny; sit back and laugh.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You are a commanding and powerful presence; luckily, you feel benevolent toward fellow humans. Approach all endeavors with passion and precision.

LIBRA (September 23 October 22) Everything and everyone seem questionable, but you're not sure to whom the questions should be addressed. Avoid the counsel of strangers.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) This is not the best time to start new projects, although you may be eager to charge ahead. First, make sure that you haven't started something and forgotten about it.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Let your relationships progress to the next step. Identify what you need to improve; there are areas where you should give more and areas where you could give less.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Anything is up for negotiation at this time, and you are the best person to spell out the terms. Remember the value of a poker face and a steady tone of voice.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Under a calm facade lurks a natural disaster waiting to happen. Yes, that's a metaphor for you; you may want to warn people to look out for an explosion.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your normally hectic pace is a bit calmer at this time, and you find yourself attacking problems in a much more calculated manner. You find that more focused energy achieves greater results.

YOU BORN THIS WEEK: Multifaceted, eclectic and constantly curious, you seem to have a knack for almost everything. You like to have your fingers in many pies at once. Your ideal job is one where you can jump from one task to another at your own pace. You excel at computer science or small business management.

MDA Seeks Volunteers For Jerry Lewis Telethon

The Muscular Dystrophy Association is seeking volunteers from greater Boston to help with one of America's best-known Labor Day traditions, the Jerry Lewis MDA Telethon, set to air Sept. 5-6 on 200 stations nationwide.

Between now and Labor Day, volunteers are needed in many areas, including helping with the local Telethon broadcast on WCVB-TV, Channel 5.

"It's critical that we enlist the support of hundreds of volunteers in the Boston area and in most other cities across the country," said Jerry Lewis, MDA's number-one volunteer and national chairman. "For, without volunteer help, we simply won't be able to do everything that must be done to make this year's Telethon the best in the century for 'my kids.' Please get involved."

Volunteer activities include answering phones, coordinating food and drinks for Telethon workers, helping with pre-Telethon mailings, distributing posters to local businesses, transporting supplies, greeting guests, escorting sponsors, tallying pledge slips, addressing envelopes, videotaping and logging the show, manning a clean-up committee, and much more.

Along with star Jerry Lewis and local station emcees, perennial celebrity volunteers include Telethon anchor Ed McMahon, "Entertainment Tonight's" Jann Carl, broadcasting icon Casey Kasem and VH-1's Cynthia Garrett. McMahon, Carl, Kasem and Garrett are MDA vice presidents.

In addition, MDA needs volunteers to assist with thousands of Telethon-related special events in the Boston area and nationwide.

They're also needed year-round for myriad activities to bolster public support and to help MDA reduce administrative expenses. Volunteer duties include taking tickets, helping with security, arranging food contributions, staffing MDA booths, delivering refreshments to fire fighters during "Fill the Boot" campaigns, visiting people with neuromuscular diseases, becoming a "pen pal", and coordinating educational mailings.

Local businesses can help, too. They can sponsor portions of the local broadcast of the Jerry Lewis MDA Telethon, enhance contributions with "matching minutes" Telethon segments, or work with MDA staff to create a Telethon-related special event.

"Volunteers are the critical link in MDA's lifesaving mission," said MaryBeth Matteo, MDA Regional Director. "We always need help, whether it's preparing or delivering packets for Shamrocks Against Dystrophy or Hop-a-Thons, organizing holiday parties or outings for MDA families, greeting "jailbirds" during MDA Lock-Ups, serving as counselors during MDA summer camps, or transporting equipment and supplies."

Matteo added that those with specialized skills can help as auctioneers, or by taking publicity photos, preparing newsletters, doing accounting, giving presentations, painting signs, or coordinating art for MDA's Art Collection. Most volunteers need to be at least 16 years old.

MDA is a national voluntary health agency dedicated to finding treatments and cures for 40 neuromuscular diseases affecting more than a million Americans. The Association receives no government grants, nor does it seek fees from the families it serves. MDA is the first voluntary health agency to be honored with the American Medical Association Lifetime Achievement Award "for significant and lasting contributions to the health and welfare of humanity."

For more information or to volunteer, call the local MDA office in Boston at 617-368-9155 or MDA national headquarters at 800-572-1717.

Death Quarry May Be Filled In

us as we would like to continue to work with your people, monitoring the progress with the idea in mind that when it is safe to do so, we may again return to the quarry and place investigators in the area to conduct a further search for evidence of human remains."

Meanwhile, Keating said that a description of the woman's body reportedly in the quarry does not match that of Karen Hammond, 21, of South Boston who disappeared in 1994.

Hammond's father Charles was extremely upset that the search was being discontinued, even announcing that he would continue the search himself. When questioned about whether Hammond's personal search seemed too dangerous, MDC Chief of Staff French said, "Yes, it's fair to say it's a public safety hazard."

Keating stressed that he and Det. Lt. Joseph Brooks had updated Mr. Hammond throughout the search and had given him all the information they could.

"There was nothing attached to our investigation that made her (Hammond) the focus of our investigation," Keating said.

Keating said the search of the quarry began in November, 1997 on a tip from a jailed informant that the body of a female murder victim was in the quarry.

That description, Keating said, did not fit that of Miss Hammond.

While searching for that body, divers unexpectedly discovered the body of Patrick J. McDonagh, a 19-year-old student from University College in Galway, Ireland who had disappeared in 1994 while at a quarry with a friend. It is believed he fell into the quarry and drowned.

At the time the divers found McDonagh's body, they reported seeing what they thought was another body.

"They couldn't tell whether it was a man or a woman," Keating said.

Equipment failures and bad weather conditions prevented the divers from immediately retrieving the body. Later a mannequin was found near the area where divers said they spotted the body.

The divers insist what they saw was a body -- not a mannequin.

Mahoney's letter reiterates the district attorney's office's position that efforts to locate a woman's body in the quarry were ceased because search conditions became too dangerous.

"The State Police attached to this office have consulted with the Army Corps of Engineers who advised that they would not send personnel down into the Quarry," the letter said.

Besides the Army Corps of Engineers, the district attorney's office has contacted three private contractors who all agree that continuing the search would be too risky.

French said, "Our primary focus (up until now) has been to assist the DA's office in their investigation."

Keating said that an MDC fill-in "could save money" in the long run if one considers that the overall cost of the latest body search could reach $2 million. He said that the fill could come from the Big Dig.

Keating also said that public safety would be improved by filling in the quarry. Keating notified the MDC the first week in August that State Police personnel from his office would no longer monitor the Quarry during the daytime hours. He also said that teens had been cutting through the protective fences and that the area in general was "not safe."

Keating, in ending the search, cited the near loss of life of one diver and the injury to a cadaver-sniffing dog. He said that the decades of debris, the unstable ledges, and five foot crevices at the bottom of the quarry had already put the search "over and above what was really safe."

"Just going near the edge could cause a landslide," Keating warned.

Union Dropping Complaint, But Cahill Says 'No Thanks'

POINT-WEBSTER MIDDLE School Principal Jim McGuire and eighth grade teacher Mary Flaherty look over renovation plans in the school office. School officials are optimistic renovations will be completed before the school year opens Wednesday, Sept. 8. (Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Noble)

The union says it is dropping the conflict of interest complaint it brought against Councillor Tim Cahill over the Highpoint development but Cahill isn't saying "thank you."

Building Trades Council President Tom MacKay said Tuesday in a statement that he was withdrawing the criminal complaint obtained in Quincy District Court.

"The reason we are dropping the complaint is that we now know the Ethics Commission has conducted an investigation and we feel confident that they will find Cahill guilty and take appropriate action."

But Cahill, when reached by The Sun for comment, said:

"According to my attorney, Tom Kiley, they have no power to drop the complaint. That power rests solely with the District Attorney's office.

"I would prefer being absolved by the District Attorney and not by their (the union's) kangaroo court. They've probably gotten wind that the District Attorney is about to drop the case."

Cahill said that a pre-trial conference set for today (Thursday) has been moved to Sept. 9.

MacKay said another reason the union is dropping the charge is that Cahill invoked the Fifth Amendment and refused to answer any questions about the Highpoint project and his vote against it.

Members of the City Council are being deposed in a separate suit brought against the city by developer Dean Stratouly, head of Congress Group Ventures, Inc., of Cambridge.

MacKay indicated Cahill was not answering questions in the suit against the city because of the criminal complaint pending against him.

By the union dropping the complaint, MacKay said, Cahill "can no longer hide behind the criminal complaint."

"If he has done nothing wrong, then he has nothing to worry about."

But Cahill said:

"I have not been deposed yet so I haven't had an opportunity to claim the Fifth. I reserve the right to do that, however."

Cahill, who has pleaded innocent to the conflict of interest complaint, said:

"The unions have no authority to drop the charge. They had the right only before the case was issued by the Clerk Magistrate. Now only the D.A. himself can decide to proceed or dismiss the charges because of lack of evidence."

The City Council turned down the 1,000-plus unit development on Quarry St. as too large March 2. Councillor Frank McCauley cast the lone "yes" vote. Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, who owns property in the area, abstained from voting and taking part in discussions on the matter.

Voting against the development in addition to Cahill were Council President Peter Kolson, Patrick McDermott, Michael D'Amico, Steve Durkin, Bruce Ayers and Paul Harold.

Cahill maintains he has not benefited in any way from his vote. "I feel I am not in conflict," he says.

The union, however, claims he was in conflict when he took part in the discussions and voted because members of his family own property near the Highpoint site.

MacKay said Tuesday:

"The conflict of interest law prohibits public em-

Beth Ann Strollo Succeeds Rosemary Wahlberg

New QCAP Executive Director

By CRAIG SALTERS

Beth Ann Strollo, associate director for 12 years, will succeed Rosemary Wahlberg as executive director of the Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., Sept. 1.

Strollo, who has been with QCAP since 1984, was named executive director by the Board of Directors at a recent meeting.

James Flaherty, QCAP chairman of the board, said that the board felt "lucky to have her" and that he was "thrilled" that Strollo had accepted the position.

According to Flaherty, a search committee was organized soon after Rosemary Wahlberg announced her retirement after 25 years as executive director. The committee searched both from within and without the agency but, in the end, Strollo seemed the logical choice.

"She is very dedicated to our agency's mission," Flaherty said. "We felt that she was the most qualified and the best choice for our clients."

The QCAP is a non-profit organization that helps low and moderate income families to improve the quality of their lives by

HEAVY SMOKE pours from the 40 foot sailboat The Myth Sunday on the Fore River after its mast struck a 115,000 volt overhead power line. Here small boats rush to the assistance of the boat's four passengers, all of whom were rescued. The explosion destroyed the boat and caused power outages in the area. (Photo by Carolyn Skilton)

Full Moon High Tide Blamed For Sailboat Hitting Power Line

The August full moon and unusually high tides on the Fore River are being blamed for an explosion which occurred when a sailboat's mast struck a 115,000 volt overhead power line.

The explosion destroyed the boat, sent its passengers fleeing, and caused parts of Braintree and Quincy to lose power.

The 40 foot sailboat The Myth went up in flames around 2:30 p.m. on Sunday when its 58 foot high mast struck a power line at a 60 foot height.

The Myth's four passengers -- Jeffrey Thayer, Howard Cannell, Alex LaCrete, and Edward Suplee -- escaped almost immediately. Thayer, Cannell, and LaCrete were rescued by an unidentified fisherman while Suplee dove off the burning boat.

Thayer was placed under observation at South Shore Hospital because of an electrical shock which ran through his body but appears to have done no harm. The other three were uninjured.

A witness, Carolyn Skilton of South Weymouth, was lying on Swift's Beach on the Braintree side when she heard an "extremely loud" boom come from the river. She looked up and saw smoke rising from the boat and smaller boats rushing in to assist the victims.

Skilton said that police and Coast Guard were there within minutes but had some problems with equipment and hoses. Weymouth firefighters also battled small brush fires which had sprouted up on the Weymouth side of the river. There is no word yet as to how those fires started.

Crews were cautious in attacking the blaze because they worried about propane tanks aboard the vessel. Onlookers from beaches and

Quincy Hospital Mammography Facility Receives Perfect Rating

Quincy Hospital's mammography facility, a unit of the Radiology Department, has received a perfect "no findings" rating in a recent annual inspection under the Mammography Quality Standards Act, performed by the Department of Health and Human Services.

Staff from the facility were commended for their effort and attention to developing exceptional operating systems.

The inspection compared specific items in six major areas - equipment performance, technologist quality control, medical physicist survey, personnel qualifications, medical reports and outcome audits - to required standards. The inspection for the Quincy Hospital facility showed that all areas reviewed were in compliance with required standards.

A Thank You From Jerry Lewis For MDA Telethon Support

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As Labor Day approaches, I'd like to remind the people of Boston that the holiday weekend will be much more than a final vacation opportunity before the summer draws to a close and youngsters go back to school. It will be the weekend when, for the 34th consecutive year, some 75 million Americans will tune in to support the Jerry Lewis MDA Telethon.

Tens of thousands more will participate in special Labor Day weekend events in Boston and around the country -- all to help "my kids." I encourage readers of The Quincy Sun to participate in local MDA events orchestrated by dedicated volunteers, and to watch the Telethon on WCVB-TV, Channel 5, on Sept. 5-6.

This year's show will be the biggest and best yet, with Telethon anchor Ed McMahon and I introducing an incredible lineup of stars. Those stars performing, making appeals or cameo appearances include: Jason Alexander, Brandy, Mariah Carey, Carrot Top, Cher, Norm Crosby, Sheryl Crow, David James Elliot, Whitney Houston, Judge Judy, Larry King, Cyndi Lauper, Lucy Lawless, Bill Maher, Maureen McGovern, Tom Petty, LeAnn Rimes, General H. Norman Schwarzkopf, Dian Schuur, Martin Short, Kevin Sorbo, Martha Stewart, Pam Tillis, Alex Trebek, Tina Turner, Shania Twain, and Christopher Walken.

With your support, MDA can continue to provide unparalleled help -- clinics, wheelchairs and braces, support groups, and summer camps for kids with neuromuscular diseases. MDA will also be able to accelerate its research seeking treatments and cures for 40 neuromuscular disorders, including the world's first human gene therapy trials for a muscle-wasting disease.

The help of the great people of Boston makes this progress possible. Thanks and God bless you.

Memories Of Francis 'X'

Millions of viewers will watch the Jerry Lewis Labor Day weekend telethon again this year and millions of dollars will be raised to fight muscular dystrophy.

But I wonder how many know about the "first" that was telecast across the country for an audience of just one--a lonely little boy?

And no money was raised for the MDA.

Jerry Lewis produced that one, too, with a million-dollar cast supporting him.

Sole purpose for the show was to help make this lonely little boy, a victim of muscular dystrophy, happy on his birthday.

It goes back to October, 1957 when I was a reporter at the old Boston Traveler.

A letter from Doris Reynolds, a nurse at the Lakeville Hospital asked us if we could help a little boy who was lonely because no one came to visit him.

He was going to be 9 on Oct. 8. Would we please help him receive a few birthday cards?

Photographer Frank Kelly of Wollaston and I went down to the hospital. We met a handsome youngster with one of the biggest smiles in the world, despite the heartache of loneliness.

Kindly, Dr. Kurt Jellineck filled us in on a tragic background. The boy's mother was dead and his father incarcerated for her death. Two reasons the boy was lonely.

Because of the circumstances we decided not to use his full name. We referred to him as "Francis X." (Francis was his first name) and as "Little Boy Blue."

What did he want for his birthday?

"Four or six cards," he replied. "Funny cards."

Kelly took a touching photo of Francis seated in his wheelchair--back to the camera--looking out the window for the visitors who never came.

The story and photo appeared on Page 1 Oct. 3 -- five days before his birthday. By weekend, the Middleboro post office was snowed under with letters and cards. Thirty extra people had to be hired to keep up with the avalanche.

The story had been picked up by the wire services and carried to newspapers around the country. Ham radio operators were reading it to others around the world.

Before it was over, there would be over 500,000 pieces of mail, $12,000 in coins and dollars bills and three rooms filled with toys and other presents. From people who wanted to be sure Francis wasn't forgotten.

The toys would be shared with youngsters at Lakeville and at other hospitals at Christmas and on birthdays. The money was set up in a trust fund for Francis.

But the most heartwarming part of the story happened the night of Francis' birthday. Jerry Lewis had read the story and swung into action.

A SERIOUS Jerry Lewis and Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth read his story of "Francis X" at Children's Hospital in Boston. The story resulted in a special cross-country closed circuit TV show produced by Lewis that became the forerunner of today's Labor Day Telethon.

He wanted to give Francis something special. And, he did.

Lewis asked Gen. David Sarnoff, head of NBC, for a closed circuit TV to the little town of Lakeville 3,000 miles away. Sarnoff gave the green light.

They said at the time that it cost some $350,000 and took 9,000 people--technicians, engineers and others--to complete the cross-country hook-up.

By telecast time, the audience had grown. Joining Francis in front of TV sets in the recreation hall of the hospital were other youngsters in wheelchairs, beds and on crutches. Parents, doctors, nurses and the media were there, too.

Suddenly, an announcer was saying:

"This program is an NBC closed circuit broadcast for Francis in Lakeville--director from Hollywood--a special command performance."

Francis smiled, giggled and slapped the side of his wheelchair as Jerry Lewis mugged, clowned, sang and spoke directly to him.

And, for the next 75 minutes or so on camera stepped Eddie Cantor, Dinah Shore, Hugh O'Brien, Eddie Fisher, the Skylarks, George Gobel, Pinky Lee, The Mouseketeers, Mary Costa and others.

Each with a personal message for Francis--all doing their thing to make a little boy happy.

There were adult tears in the audience when Lewis and the Skylarks sang a parody to "No Business Like Show Business" entitled "There's No Francis Like Our Francis."

And many more when Dinah Shore serenaded Francis with "You Made Me Love You" and he happily waved back at her image on the screen.

Francis died in November, 1966 a few weeks after his 18th birthday. There is no cure for muscular dystrophy. For years the mail never stopped. He was remembered with cards on his birthday and at Christmas.

The show Jerry Lewis put on that night for Francis turned out to be the forerunner of today's Labor Day telethon.

For those of us who were there, it was a night to remember.

Jerry Lewis, that night, was at his best. An Emmy performance from the heart.

Mickey Mantle set the record for strikeouts in his first year in major league baseball. The Yankee slugger struck out 111 times in 96 games.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920's postcard view of what is now Windsor Road in Atlantic. This view is to the west. In the early 1920's Quincy experienced a great influx if immigrants while hundreds of houses were built to accommodate them, throughout the city. This view shows many multi-family houses under construction. Fond Memories Of Walter Scott Hall

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

A few short weeks ago I was shocked and saddened as I rode down Franklin St. and saw that one more South Quincy landmark was being torn down.

A recent brief news item (not in The Quincy Sun) stated that a "former beauty academy was losing its home," that this 118 year old edifice was being razed to make room for yet another bank.

If the writer of this article had done a little research he would have discovered that this building was once one of the focal points of South Quincy life, proudly known as The Walter Scott Hall. Scotsmen from all over Quincy met in this hall as clansmen and members of the Clan MacGregor.

On each side of the entrance stood respected local businesses. To the left was Ross Insurance Company, owned by the former mayor of Quincy and on the right was Bracci's Barber Shop where men of the neighborhood met not only to get their hair cut, more importantly, to socialize and dissect the news of the day.

Inside and out, on election day, this building became a hotbed of local political talk as it housed the local voting place for Ward 3.

Throughout the years, if you needed a hall in which to hold a special function, Walter Scott Hall was the place. Many wedding receptions were held there. Before they had their own home, the Adams Heights Men's Club held many of their early meetings there. They also held their very first dinner dance at this spot. Many who are, now senior citizens will have fond memories of childhood events celebrated in this hallowed hall, such as Minstrel shows, Punch & Judy performances, magic shows and variety shows.

As I peer in my mind's eye out the window of Bracci's barbershop I see across Franklin Street at the corner of Russel Funeral Home and heading down the street towards Doble's Corner a house still there and then the building consisting of first Lawrence's Pharmacy and then Foy's Market, which had just moved up from its original site on Water St.

Next to Foy's Market was Ralph's Shoe Store which had a large front waiting room where people gathered to just "chew the fat" or, if lucky enough to be able to afford them, wait for shoes. These were the days of the Depression era and people had nothing else to do as jobs were hard to come by. Moving down the street a little further, there was a short-lived coffee shop and Miss Reed's Shop, which was chock-full of yarns and goods women needed for sewing, as well as odds and ends of all shorts. John's Fruit Store was next and just coming into the corner of Franklin St. and Water St., known as Doble's Corner, was Guido Marini's Drugstore and Frank's Barber Shop. The entrance of the barber shop was large and welcoming and men would sit around playing checkers. This was one of the outlets which men who were unemployed enjoyed during the depression.

A few years later, Frank's Barber Shop went out of business and the Thomas Crane Library moved in with what was known as the Baxter Branch. Right up the street on Water St. a new firm known as Whittemore, Durgin Glass Company was established.

Across the street was Pinel's Bric-a-brac shop a combination hardware and "anything you needed" shop. Diamond Cleansers was an innovative new idea just in its infancy, where you could bring your clothes to be cleaned.

Across the street from Diamond Cleansers was a hay and grain store by the name of Brown & Crow. Prior to the proliferation of the automobile, this store catered to the horse and carriage trade and I can still see the horses in the back yard.

These are some of my fond memories from years ago of Walter Scott Hall and the nearby neighborhood.

Automobiles And Air Pollution

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It doesn't take a heightened perception or supernatural vision to see the air pollution in our state. In fact, individuals with less than 20/20 vision can clearly see the haze over Boston from a distance or the thick blue smoke emitted by buses, trucks, and other vehicles, one of the biggest sources of air pollution. It seems common sense to me that this cannot be healthy as the human body has been breathing oxygen since the beginning of humanity, at least as far as I know. So why, considering the incredible advancements in technology are we not making a concerted effort to clean up our act?

Currently, air pollution is killing more than a thousand people prematurely each year in our state alone and this statistic doesn't include those exposed to life-threatening diseases such as cancer. Massachusetts was recently found to be one of the few states that exceeds the national average in cancer rates.

Automobile tailpipes are one of the leading contractors to this rate.

Sport utility vehicles, light trucks, and minivans are legally permitted to emit up to four times as much as your average passenger car. The law that permits this loophole was written when these vehicles were rarely seen on the road -- for only farmers and those who lived in rural areas had these vehicles. Today, however, they make up half the cars on the road, yet the pollution standards for these sport utilities has not changed.

The EPA has taken a positive step at tightening the emissions standards with their proposed ruling, however this simply doesn't go far enough. State law requires Massachusetts to adopt the tightest emissions standards possible. Those standards have recently been adopted in California, and it's time we adopted them here.

The automakers need to be held accountable for the emissions coming from the tailpipes. Governor Cellucci needs to close this loophole and require the tightest emissions standards possible on all automobiles in the state. Otherwise an already severe public health crisis will only get worse.

McIntyre Proposes Naval Base As NASA Headquarters

Sept. 2 - 8

By PAUL HAROLD

Rep. James McIntyre proposed that the nation's space agency (NASA) locate its headquarters in the city at the Squantum Naval Air Station.

In a letter to Sen. Edward Kennedy, McIntyre noted that the site had "all the necessary prerequisites for the space station," including transportation links to water and rail. Additionally, he pointed out the site's proximity to the scientific and technical personnel in the metro Boston area.

McIntyre said that locating NASA in the city would offset the federal government's failure to maintain full employment in the region because of lack of contracts at the shipyard.

GROSSMAN OFFERS TO PAY FOR HOSPITAL'S EXPANSION

Reuben Grossman, former member of the hospital board of managers, offered to pay for two additional floors to the proposed new wing. He said that the three-story addition was short-sighted and that a five-story addition would provide the 72 rooms that were needed immediately.

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa said that the estimated cost of the extra two stories was $248,000, more than the $10,000 gift offered by Grossman. He said that a change in the plans could delay the needed expansion of the x-ray department, nursery and obstetrical units that would be contained in the new wing.

SHEA TAKES OUT PAPERS, BUT DELAYS ANNOUNCEMENT

Scallop and Shrimp Puffs

It isn't that we try to outdo each other when our groups meets once a month (except in the winter when they head South to golf), it's just that we try to present a different appetizer.

And it's what I did last week when they met at our home. I mixed scallops and shrimp together for a new combo, at least for this recipe.

Scallop and Shrimp Puffs

1./2 pound scallops (uncooked)
1/2 pound fresh shrimp (I used cooked)
3 eggs
2-3 tablespoons flour
salt and pepper to taste
3 tablespoons olive oil and smidgen of butter or margarine

Cut scallops and shrimp into small pieces. In a bowl, add three eggs and beat until blended. Add the flour and salt and pepper. Mixture should be almost like a pancake mix, but not as thick.

In the hot oil and butter or margarine, drop by the tablespoons turning and browning on each side. Drain on paper towel. I made them early in the day, and refrigerated them.

When it was time to serve them I wanted to present them differently, so I placed each one in a clam shell and then on a cookie sheet in a warming oven of 250-300 degrees. I served them with a cocktail sauce or a slice of lemon. The group asked for the recipe!

THE DANCE FORCE professional dance team will perform at the second annual Quincy Family Day Sunday at the Fore River Shipyard at 1 p.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Second Annual Quincy Family Day At Fore River Shipyard Sunday

The second annual Quincy Family Day will be Sunday beginning at noon at the Fore River Shipyard.

The non-alcoholic event, featuring music, entertainment, children's rides and a food court, will continue through the day to 8 p.m.

Mayor James Sheets invites residents of neighboring communities to attend.

Al Dotoli of Quincy, a production specialist who worked with Frank Sinatra and other headliners, including Sammy Davis Jr. and The Rolling Stones, will again produce the event.

A major sponsor is the Stop & Shop Company which has arranged for the appearance of Disney Radio. Coca Cola will also present specials throughout the day. The Sons of Italy will also assist.

The Cluster of Clowns will kick things off from noon to 3 p.m. with kids' fun and games.

The Dance Force, a professional dance team with jazz and modern dance routines, will perform for an hour starting at 1p.m. and return for a second show at 2:30 p.m. The Scott "The Cat" Anderson group, featuring music of the 50's, will perform at 4 p.m.

The Anderson group will return at 7 p.m. and perform until closing.

The American Beauty quartet will present 1960's rock from 5 to 6 p.m.

A collection of classic cars and military vehicles will be on display throughout the day.

Children under 12 will be admitted free. A $2 donation is asked of each adult.

In the event of rain, the event will be rescheduled for Monday, Sept. 6.

South Shore Camera Club Moves To New Quarters

Starting its new season, the South Shore Camera Club will be meeting at the Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

The first meeting Tuesday, Sept. 14 will be an Open House featuring a slide presentation on Quincy. Refreshments will be served.

Founded in 1933, the club has about 100 members. Meetings are held every Tuesday night and feature monthly competitions, teaching sessions and presentations by guest speakers.

The club is offering a three-part Introduction to Photography, open to the public, starting with the Sept. 21 meeting at 7:30 p.m.

Those interested in photography, whether beginner or advanced, are encouraged to attend the meetings. Visitors are welcome.

Foot Notes

by Dr. Richard A. Hacker
Surgeon-Podiatrist

SURGERY FOR HEEL SPURS

Heel surgery may help relieve pain and restore mobility for people suffering from chronic heel pain. One surgical option is to separate all or a portion of the fascial tissue from the heel bone. The surgeon makes a small incision on the inside of the heel, carefully cuts away the tissue, then closes the incision with a few stitches. Another procedure involves removing any bone spurs. These operation can be performed separately or together on an outpatient basis using local anesthesia or minimal sedation. After surgery, a plaster cast may be used to immobilize the foot for two to three weeks. When the cast is removed, three to four weeks of physical therapy will accelerate healing and reduce swelling.

Do you have heel spurs or another painful foot problem? Don't hide behind these five dangerous words - maybe it will go away. Feet are vulnerable and prone to complaints, but most problems don't just disappear on their own. Your podiatrist can treat them effectively with medication, surgery or other less invasive procedures such as exercise or orthotics. Don't take your feet for granted - call us at 617-472-3466. Convenient office hours are available here at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy.

P.S. Endoscopic surgery, a less invasive method used to lengthen the fascia or release tension, may also be suggested to relieve chronic heel pain. It requires no post-operative cast.

Senior Complex Proposed For Marina Bay

The Newton Group, LLC, announces it is pursuing Phase III of the Marina Bay Senior Living Campus, which is part of a previously-approved plan to create a full range of senior housing options at Marina Bay in Quincy.

The firm Planned Unit Development application to the City of Quncy which is currently being processed.

Approved by the city in 1996, Marina Bay Senior Living Campus was conceived to provide a continuum of care, allowing Quincy area seniors with varying health needs to "age in place," and to remain near friends and families through independent, congregate, assisted and nursing home living.

The most recently completed stage of the Marina Bay Senior Living Campus (Phase III) was Marina Place. Built and managed by The Newton Group, Marina Place is a 110-unit assisted living and independent living residence that also offers care for early-Alzheimer's patients. Marina Place has been tremendously well-received, and is already helping to meet the critical need for local housing alternatives for seniors in the area. Phase I of the campus, which as been permitted and is currently under construction, will provide the nursing home component.

ARTIST RENDERING OF congregate living facility proposed for Marina Bay by The Newton Group.

Phase III of the campus, which is the subject of this proposal, will round out the senior housing options available at Marina Bay with both congregate and independent living residences. It will include two buildings (one for each type of care) and all units will be market-rate housing. The size, uses and all other aspects of Phase III conform fully with the Planned Unit Development approved by the City of Quincy in 1996.

It is projected that most residents of campus will come from within the city and from a 5 to 10 mile radius around Quincy. In addition, many local residents will likely want to bring parents or loved ones who live in other areas, closer to home at one of the residences. Best faith efforts will be made to ensure that Quincy residents and their families have the first opportunity to occupy the residences.

Congregate Living

Congregate living is an important step that falls between fully independent living and assisted living, which already exists at Marina Place. It is ideal for seniors who can no longer manage their own homes, enjoy the security of having help nearby if needed, would prefer the flexibility of having their meals prepared for them along with having some level of personal assistance, but do not require the more advanced levels of care provided by Assisted Living or Nursing Home residences.

Building #1 will be a 98,900 square-foot facility with six stories, and 100 congregate living residences in a mix of studio, one-, and two-bedroom units. Each unit will include a sleeping area (studio unit) or one to two bedrooms, a livingroom area, a dining area, a full bathroom, and an efficiency kitchen. Though residents may have all three meals prepared and served in the main diningroom, many enjoy the option of preparing simple meals or snacks in their units.

In addition to the congregate living units, Building #1 will promote social interaction through a number of common areas, including a swimming pool, living rooms, multi-purpose rooms for crafts and other activities, a barber shop/beauty parlor, libraries, and other public spaces. A full range of activities will be planned for residents and administered by the 24-hour staff.

Fifty-nine parking spaces will be provided for staff, resident and visitor use.

Independent Living

Building #2 will be a four-story, 45,500 square-foot structure with 37 independent living residents in one- and two-bedroom configurations. As its name suggests, independent living is a senior housing concept that promotes independence among its residents. Each resident lives in a self-contained condominium with one or two bedrooms, a

Quincy Salvation Army Raises $25,993 In Matching Funds Campaign

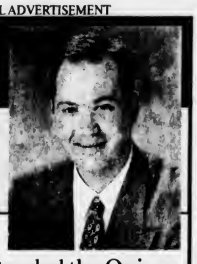
The Salvation Army Quincy Temple Corps raised $25,993 through its recent matching funds program, announces Major Ed Forster, commanding officer.

Area residents and members of the Quincy Corps contributed $8,659.97, which was matched by both territorial and divisional headquarters in New York and Boston.

The one-time program was available for only a 30-day period.

"We are delighted with the generosity of the people in Quincy who responded so quickly to our request during the short time that this matching program was available to us," said Major Forster.

"The money was used for debt reductions as stipulated by the donors of the matching funds. While serious financial concerns continue for us, we are grateful to all who have helped us with this very significant contribution."



The Quincy Temple Corps operates an Adult Day Health Program, a preschool for children, a community center and a full range of spiritually-based programs.

Forster asked The Quincy Sun to relay this message: "Please tell the people thanks from us. We appreciate their kindness to us."

He's Glad To Be Back

New Central Principal Frank Santoro Has Strong Quincy Ties

By CRAIG SALTERS

Frank Santoro is glad to be back.

This fall Santoro succeeds Lou DiMartinis as principal of Central Middle School. Santoro says that the appointment gives him the chance to become even more connected to the city in which he was born and raised.

"I'm overjoyed to have the opportunity to come back home," Santoro said. "I'm a product of the Quincy Public Schools, from kindergarten to high school." Santoro is a 1967 graduate of North Quincy High School.

After high school Santoro earned an Associate's degree at Quincy College and a Bachelors degree at Framingham State. He received his Master's in administration from Eastern Nazarene College.

Santoro began his teaching career in the Boston Public Schools in 1972, teaching primarily in mathematics. He moved to the Brookline Public Schools in 1982 where he taught math and health. He has been an administrator at the Lincoln School (K-8) in Brookline for the past eight years, most recently as the school's vice-principal.

Although he has never taught in Quincy, his roots to the city are strong. He still lives "in the neighborhood" and points out that both his wife Linda and his two children, Lori and Michael, attended Central Middle School. Santoro himself was president of the city-wide PTO when his children were in school and served two four-year terms on Quincy's School Committee in the 80's, the last as vice-chairman.

Santoro hopes that this intimate knowledge of Quincy in general and Central Middle School in particular will allay the fears of some parents. "I know the expectations at Central Middle School are always very high," he said. He noted that CMS had a "very strong parent body" in tune to their childrens' academic needs.

He also wanted parents to be at ease concerning the transition between DiMartinis and himself. Santoro said he was fortunate enough to spend last June sitting in at CMS watching DiMartinis and his staff at work. Also, thanks to his children, the new principal has a first-hand knowledge of the system DiMartinis put in place. Santoro was quick to thank his predecessor for all his help. DiMartinis, who retired this past June, had been principal at CMS since 1982.

Indeed, attachment to Central seems almost a tradition. Vin Moscardelli, principal of CMS from 1970 to 1982, attended then Central Junior High and was a 1955 classmate of Lou DiMartinis at Quincy High School. Moscardelli actually taught Santoro at the then Atlantic Junior High, remembering him as a "good kid" who he was sure would "leave his own imprint" at CMS.

When Santoro was asked if his experience with the Quincy Schools had provided him with any role models for the job, he cited now Supt. Eugene Creedon during his years as principal of the Parker and Broad Meadows Schools.

"The parents knew who he was," Santoro said, adding that CMS parents could expect that same type of community/neighborhood involvement from him.

Santoro said that he had four major goals for his administration: high academic achievement; excellence in teaching; an appreciation for diversity; and the building and maintenance of community collaborations.

More specifically, Santoro said that his goal was "to make the Quincy neighborhood a part of the curriculum."

To do that, Santoro wants to utilize such assets as Butler Pond, the coastline, Quincy's two colleges, and numerous business partnerships. He added that, although Central Middle School has support from many Quincy companies, the next step is to bring those companies into the classroom.

Santoro also wants to remedy a situation in which four of his staff have to travel to teach. He supports the building of a new high school to ease the space issue.

He also said that, for this year, absorbing 11 new staff members (including himself) into the community of CMS would be a top priority.

Santoro said that the new additions would create a "rejuvenation of the staff" and that the combination of new ideas with veterans' experience "should make for a productive year for students."

Central Middle School is the largest, by enrollment, of Quincy's five middle schools.

Tips For Keeping Pets Safe

The Animal Rescue League of Boston reminds dog owners that after a long summer of family togetherness and outings, your pet may be confused by the sudden schedule change at back-to-school time. Often the family pet will try to follow a child to school, only to find he is lost and alone when the school bell rings.

A dog in the schoolyard poses a potential threat to himself as well as to students. He risks the danger of being hit by a car, stolen, teased, or lost. A well-meaning child may be bitten or knocked down by a playful or confused dog.

Be sure your pet is safely in the home or enclosed yard as the children leave for school. Leave plenty of food and fresh cool drinking water if the animal is to be left alone. Should your pet become accidentally unrestrained, his chances of being returned home safely greatly increase if he is wearing an identification tag. Make sure your pet is up to date on his rabies vaccination and give him some extra attention when children arrive home from school. This will help in the adjustment to the change in schedule.

The Animal Rescue League of Boston is a private non-profit humane society founded one hundred years ago. In addition to the headquarters in Boston, the Animal Rescue League has shelters in Dedham, Salem, and East Brewster. For more information contact the Animal Rescue League of Boston Community Outreach Office at (781) 461-8015.

School's Open -- Drive Carefully

Sidewalks, school bus stops and roads will soon be filled with children walking and biking their way to school. With this comes the increased risk of a deadly collision between a child and a motor vehicle, says AAA Southern New England.

"During the summer, drivers forget about school kids, bus stops and crossing zones," said Robert P. Murray, AAA senior vice president of corporate affairs. "We are urging people, especially parents who are dropping their kids off at school, to pay extra attention when driving during the next few weeks to avoid a serious incident."

To help make drivers aware of the dangers, AAA has launched its annual School's Open - Drive Carefully campaign. AAA offices will sport posters and distribute School's Open bumper stickers, the club will distribute educational materials to area schools, and AAA School Safety Patrol members will be using extra caution when directing child pedestrians.

"Kids are particularly vulnerable to being struck by a vehicle because their actions are unpredictable and they are smaller, making them harder to see," Murray said. "We really want to get the word out so we can reduce the risk of a tragedy."

AAA offers these tips for drivers:

- Get in the habit now of recognizing school zones on your route.
- Look for bicycles, children playing, or AAA School Safety Patrol members, which indicate children nearby.
- Scan between parked vehicles and other danger zones for hiding children.
- Drive with headlights on at all times so children and other drivers can see you.
- Be prepared to take evasive action - fast.
- Avoid using cell phones while driving, especially in the hours before or after school.

"Driving always demands our full attention, but this is especially important this time of year," said Murray.

AAA has conducted the School's Open - Drive Carefully campaign for 66 years. The AAA School Safety Patrol program is currently celebrating its 79th anniversary.

The name of the principal of Riverdale High, where Archie comic book characters Archie, Jughead, Betty and Veronica were students, was Mr. Weatherbee.

Keeping Children Safe As They Return To School

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Now that our youngsters are on their way back to school, it's time to think about some of the topics we should discuss with them before this school year.

1. Walk the neighborhood or school route with your children. Show them safe places they can go in an emergency, like a neighbor's home, a store, a firehouse.

2. Make sure children are taking the safest route to school. Some spots to avoid are: alleys, new construction and wooded areas.

3. Encourage your children to walk with friends, not alone, and to stay in open areas where others can see them.

ROBERT HANNA

4. Don't hang house keys around your child's neck. It's a sure sign that you won't be home when they return from school. Put the key inside a pocket or sock.

5. Teach your children to walk confidently and stay alert to what's going on around them.

6. Encourage your children to look out for other kids' safety and report anything that doesn't look right.

MOTORISTS:

1. Watch out for school buses. Motorists must stop behind school buses when the flashing red lights come on. Motorists approaching a school bus from the opposite direction must also stop until the driver turns off the flashing red lights or signals you to pass.

2. School buses come in all sizes and colors. If a vehicle has a sign on its roof that says, "SCHOOL BUS" and its red lights are flashing, you must stop. Some school buses are small vans; others may be passenger cars with a school bus sign on the roof.

3. Penalties for passing a stopped school bus are very severe, as they should be. You may lose your license and incur civil fines as well as insurance company penalties.

4. Use caution after the school bus pulls away from the curb. Children may try to cross the street behind the bus.

Conservation Commission Hears Channel Dredging Proposal

The Quincy Conservation Commission was scheduled to hear last night (Wednesday) at 7:40 p.m. a Notice of Intent for the maintenance dredging of approximately 6.7 acres of approach channel to the Quincy Yacht Club.

The Notice of Intent was filed by the City of Quincy and the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Management Office of Waterways and was to be heard in the second floor conference room of New City Hall.

Council President Peter Kolson, Rep. Steve Tobin, and Sen. Michael Morrissey agree that the dredging is a necessary improvement and cite the severe damage which has been done by commuter boats and heavy traffic over the years.

State monies are now available and a portion of the cost will be paid by the City, as was the case for the Squantum and Wollaston Yacht Clubs.

The project is a joint effort of the City and the Department of Waterways.

nearby homes watched the boat go back and forth between thick, black smoke and bright red flames and watched the burning mast topple into the river bottom. The entir incident lasted about two hours.

Jon Morley, an engineering manager at the Braintree Electric Light Department, estimated that about 3,000 Braintree residents were without power for 45 minutes.

Thayer is an experienced sailor and knows the Fore River very well. He had expected about two feet of leeway for his boat to pass under the power lines but the full moon had raised the water level to its peak

The power lines are owned by Boston Edison and carry electricity to a Braintree substation.

Ironically, Thayer is vice chairman of the Fore River Watershed Association, an environmental group which has been lobbying to put those same power lines underground, citing public safety concerns.

Managing The Stress Of Back-To-School Transition

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Massachusetts' Prevention and Wellness Program suggests the following strategies to manage the stress of back to school and summer-to-fall transition.

Stress is the way our bodies react both physically and emotionally to any change whether it's good, bad, real or imagined. Today, one in ten persons is victimized by stress. A small amount of stress is normal. However, if increased and maintained for long periods of time, stress can overburden the body's system, causing a breakdown.

At times there are situations we can't fix overnight, it's a process. But when you talk with a counselor, a family member or close friend, sometimes it just helps to "release yourself." Your body often will alert that your stress is too high. By being aware of and acknowledging your symptoms of stress, you have already begun your process.

Symptoms

- Increased heart rate or rapid breathing
- Feeling overwhelmed, tired
- Headache, grinding teeth, stomach discomfort
- Difficulty sleeping
- Anxious, confused or forgetful
- Tense muscles -- especially in neck and shoulders
- Irritable

(Call your physician if you have recurrent thoughts of suicide, death, impulses or plans to commit violence.)

Good Habits Are Stress Reducers

- Balance work or school with play
- Allow time for studying instead of cramming
- Take warm showers or baths
- Keep a sense of humor
- Lay clothes out the night before
- Prepare for stressful events
- Don't make small problems seem bigger than they really are
- Talk to someone
- Exercise
- Eat healthy foods

If you continuously follow the strategies listed, you will be able to manage your stress level and have a more enjoyable, stress-free life. For further assistance contact your doctor, clergy, worksite employee assistance program (if your employer has one) or a professional instructor at your health club.

These suggestions were taken from the Decision-Care Guide, a self-care booklet developed by BCBSMA in conjunction with the American Institute for Preventive Medicine and also from How to Cope with Stress by Dr. George Rubin.

BSCSMA's Prevention and Wellness Program started in January, 1995 with a series of initiatives designed to promote preventative health to nearly two million members. For more information about this program, call 1-800-262-BLUE.

Hearing aid
"Tips from Tobias"

Stephen P. Tobias
Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist

How do I clean my aid?
First you must know that approximately 90% or more in-the-ear style aids needing repair are due to wax entering the receiver. Careful cleaning and office visits can save you $100.00-$150.00! There is not much that we can do about the ear producing wax. The glands responsible for this in our ear canals have a mind of their own and sometimes produce much more wax than is needed for protection of the ear. Yes, protection. Ear wax is not DIRT! It's natures way to keep out infection, insects and more. Wax should be removed by medical personnel only. Keep out the swabs, bobby pins, pens etc. Your focus should be on wiping off the aid at night and every time you remove it from your ear! A careful visual examination under a bright light and magnifier is the best way to see what your doing. If you see wax, carefully remove it with the tools provided by your specialist, without pushing it in further. When in doubt bring it to a Hearing Instrument Specialist.
Now go and spread the news! -Steve

Granite Lay Down The Law

Defense Shines in 20-6 Triumph Over Tri-Attleboro

By CHRIS POISSON

All-Pro Ty Law brings justice to the New England secondary, but the Quincy Granite actually have the law on their team.

Defensive back Louis Boullard is a Milton police officer off the field, and Saturday night he laid down the law on the field with two fourth quarter interceptions, including one he returned 60 yards for a touchdown in the final minute.

Boullard's play highlighted the effort of a smothering defense, as Quincy (2-1) shut down the defending league champion Tri-Attleboro Rhinos (0-3), 20-6, at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"This was mostly a defensive game," said captain David Harris. "It was the best we've played all season."

Along with Boullard, Al Casey shined on the defensive line, recording five quarterback pressures and seven tackles.

"Our defensive line did an outstanding job," said Harris. "Al "Head Case" Casey was unbelievable. He's a beast. He was laying it down."

Running back Will Felix got the Granite on the board first with a 3-yard run in the first quarter. Paul Doherty's PAT gave Quincy a 7-0 lead.

The Rhinos gave the Granite some problems with their ground game early on, particularly on the sweep plays. And midway through the second quarter they scored a touchdown.

The Rhinos ran a sweep towards Harris who appeared to have the running back for a loss in the backfield. But he managed to shake off a few tackles for a 20-yard TD run, pulling his team within one, 7-6.

"I was holding him up, waiting for someone to come over and help me knock him down," said Harris, who had five tackles and four QB pressures. "But he squirmed his way out and got into the end zone."

The score remained 7-6 at the half and for third straight week Quincy's offense struggled to mount any kind of an attack in the first 30 minutes of play.

"We were frustrated. We knew we had to do a lot better," said Harris. "In the third our offense opened up with some nice drives and we played well.

"We still have some work to do. Building an offense isn't easy to do. It takes time. But every game we look better. It's a matter of time before we put more points on the board."

Quincy didn't score in the third but its offense looked sharper. If it weren't for a clipping penalty, wide out Derrick Epps (two receptions for 23 yards) would have had a 70-yard TD catch. Quincy committed 11 penalties for 80 yards.

At the start of the fourth, Quincy's punting game, which plagued them in the loss to the Havoc in week two, came back to haunt them. A bad snap led to a blocked punt and the Rhinos recovered the ball at the Granite 15-yard line. But the defense bailed out the special teams in this game.

Linebacker Sean Halpin (five tackles) stuffed a run up the middle on first down. And then on third-and-six from the 11-yard line, the Rhinos tried a sweep and once again Harris was there to stop it. This time he was able to strip the ball and defensive back Bob Chiavaroli (five passes defensed) recovered the fumble.

"We could have packed it up and let them score," said Halpin. "But with our backs against the wall we came up with a big play and that gave the offense some momentum."

Indeed. The play energized the offense as it marched down the field for a score. Wide receiver Bill MacDougall (two receptions for 38 yards) and tight end Scott Spaulding came up with some clutch catches. With about five minutes left, Felix (10 carries for 45 yards) finished the drive with a 9-yard TD scamper, breaking four tackles on the way. The PAT failed giving and Quincy had 13-6 lead.

The Rhinos put together several drives to try to tie the game, but Boullard ended both threats with interceptions. It was his second one with 30 seconds remaining on the clock that sealed the win.

TWO MEMBERS of the North Quincy High School boys' soccer team were recently selected to play for the Metro soccer team at the Bay State Games. Rick Loughmiller (left), midfielder-defender, and Steve Rochon, forward-midfielder, helped the Metro team shut out three of its opponents and compile a 3-1-1 record. Rochon scored two of his team's nine goals and Loughmiller provided man-marking and solid defensive strength. This record put them into the Gold Medal game against Southeast, the team that had handed them their only loss. Metro lost this evenly-played championship game, 1-0, giving them the Silver Medal. Steve and Rick were disappointed with the loss, but pleased to have competed against some of the state's best soccer talent. The Bay State Games, dubbed "Massachusetts Own Olympics," provide an opportunity for the state's best athletes to complete with one another. UMass Boston hosted the soccer competition.

Degan Memorial Road Race Sept. 12

The Seventh Annual William F. Degan Memorial Road Race will be held Sunday, Sept. 12 at 10 a.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

This 10k & 5k road race is being held in honor of Bill Degan (Deputy, United States Federal Marshal Service, Lieutenant Colonel, U.S. Marine Corp), who was killed in the line of duty in Aug. of 1992 while working for the Marshal Service.

Last year's event had over 1,800 registered runners and the Degan Memorial Committee anticipates over 2,500 this year. Participants include many law enforcement agencies and military personal from different parts of the country.

Degan felt very strongly about drug abuse, education, sports and the community. The Memorial Committee hopes, through annual scholarships and grants to different youth organizations, Degan will be remembered for the "Hero" he was, and some good may come from a terrible tragedy.

The beneficiaries of this year's event will be organizations that Bill would have supported.

The Memorial Committee made a donation to the Steeves Family of Wollaston to help Carol Steeves with the upkeep and maintenance of her power wheelchair.

In a letter to the Degan Memorial Committee, the Steeves family said the following:

"We would like to take this opportunity to thank you again for your more than generous donation to Carol with the proceeds from the Degan Memorial Road Race. This money will help her in countless ways.

"It is really impossible to express in words how grateful we are for your generosity. In Carol's race you have truly been the encouraging presence on the sidelines, the smiling faces who have again taught us all a wonderful lesson about the kindness of 'stranger.' But of course you are no longer strangers to us for the special way you have touched Carol's life and that of our whole family. Thank you again."

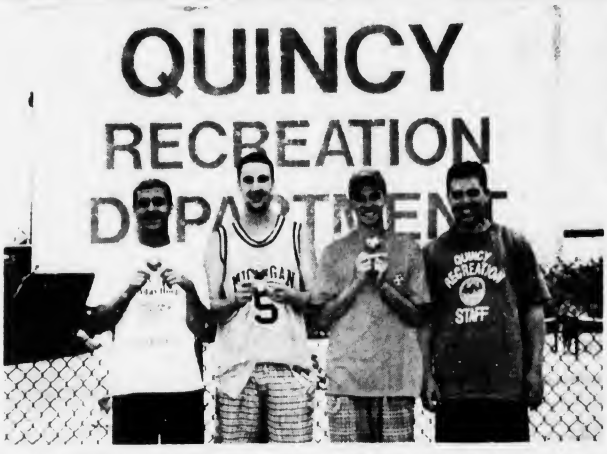
ATHLETE'S FOOT

Athletes foot is an infection of the skin due to fungus, also referred to as Tinea Pedis when located on the feet. Fungi are microscopic creatures that thrive in warm, moist, dark environments (ex: shoes and socks can cause the feet to become moist and create a similar environment).

Fungus can be found in many places, although normally the skin acts as a barrier to protect us. However, in the correct environment, as mentioned above, fungus can thrive and cause an infection. Symptoms of tinea pedis include stinging, burning, itching, scaling and small blisters.



The good news is that these infections are usually very easily treated with medication. Prevention is also a key such as changing socks when they become moist, cleaning the bath shower regularly and avoid walking barefoot in areas where fungus can thrive.

If you are experiencing these symptoms, see a Podiatrist for treatment.

If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

Quincy Residents In Bike Trek To Fight Lung Disease

Quincy residents Doug Haskins and Brady Davenport, joining other bicycling enthusiasts from throughout the area, will pedal from Plymouth to Provincetown in September to raise awareness and funds for the American Lung Association.

This will be the sixth time for Haskins, a member of Team Mohawk, and the first for Davenport.

The 15th anniversary Autumn Escape Bike Trek will be Sept. 17-19. Individuals from local towns are putting their time and energy into the fight against lung disease. Many suffer from lung disease or know someone who does.

"What is unique and special about this event is that these people come together for a weekend, united in making a difference in the fight against lung disease," said Martha Waldron, executive director of the American Lung Association.

Over the 3 day/160-mile trek, Haskins, Davenport, and other cyclists will tour the Cape Cod Canal, the Falmouth Shining Sea Bike Trail, the Old King's Highway, and the Cape Cod National Seashore. Each cyclist pays a $35 registration fee and raises a minimum of $375 in pledges. A two-day Saturday to Sunday option is also available.

Trekkers who participate at this level must raise a minimum of $275 in pledges. Money raised through trekker pledges and donations will qualify cyclists to win incentive prizes. Prizes include L.L. Bean products, a weekend getaway to the Sonesta Beach Resort in Bermuda and much, much more.

The Autumn Escape will provide camp accommodations in Sandwich and Brewster, breakfasts and dinners, a sagwagon to carry gear, a mobile bike repair shop, experienced leaders, frequent rest stops and plentiful snacks. A communications and check point team will be in place to ensure safety and provide encouragement.

DOES IT ALL COME OUT IN THE WASH?

If you want to preserve the finish on your vehicle, don't wait until the weekend to wash off bird droppings on the paint. These excretions are highly acidic and will eat into the clear coat in relatively short order. It also pays to rinse off your vehicle after rainy weather if your geographic region experiences acid rain. Otherwise, acidic contaminants in the rain water will remain on the paint surface after the water droplets have evaporated. These will create crater-like indentation on the vehicle's surface if not removed. When you do wash your car, be sure to use a dedicated car-wash formula. Dish soaps are often too harsh and may strip away the wax and dull the paint finish.

Maintaining your car and its appearance will help retain its value. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is very proud of our ASE Certified technicians and of the equipment they have on hand to properly service every system in your car. Whether your car needs a simple tune-up or major repairs, see us first. We use the AllData CD-Rom based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. If you are in the market for superior service that you can count on, then see us today at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: Avoid washing your car when the sheetmetal is hot.

Quincy's David Gunther, a junior at Stonehill College in Easton, was named to the Dean's List for the Spring 1999 semester.

Fall Sports Season Means More Than Just Football

The football season is about a week away and if you're not a fanatic, the thought of watching NFL, college and high school games may give you a migraine.

Don't panic. If you want a change of pace look in your own backyard as both Quincy and North Quincy offer a variety of boys' and girls' high school varsity sports, in addition to their pigskin programs.

Quincy's soccer season begins Monday, Sept. 13 with the boys at Randolph and the girls at home. North Quincy boys also start Sept. 13 when they travel to Dedham. The girls open Wednesday, Sept. 15 when they host Silver Lake Regional.

If you enjoy cross country it's right around the corner. North Quincy boys and girls hit the trails this Saturday, Sept. 4 at Freshpond, Cambridge. Quincy boys and girls race 10 days later, Sept. 14 against Bridgewater-Raynham.

QUINCY, NORTH FOOTBALL PREVIEWS IN NEXT ISSUE!

The golf season tees off Sept. 9 with the Quincy boys taking on Bridgewater-Raynham and the North Quincy boys at Plymouth South.

Volleyball's sets, spikes and digs are coming your way soon. The Quincy girls hit the courts Sept. 13 against Medway, while North Quincy is set to serve Sept. 15 against Dennis-Yarmouth.

And if none of these sports appeal to your interests, North Quincy offers swimming. The girls' varsity dive into the pools Sept. 9 against Stoughton.

Doherty Helps Seadogs Win Bronze Medal

The South Shore Baseball Club's 16-and-under Seadogs captured a bronze medal in the recent Junior Olympics/AAU National Championships at Jacobs Field in Cleveland, Ohio.

Chris Doherty of North Quincy played first base for the Seadogs.

"Chris has fine defensive skills," said Seadogs manager Rick DelVecchio. "He's excellent fielding bunts and hits the ball well to opposite field. Nobody works harder than Chris."

The Seadogs won nine of 10 games in the tournament, including a 6-3 victory against the New Jersey Riptide in the bronze medal game, for the highest finish ever by a New England team in the 16-and-under division at the Nationals.

"There were a total of 53 teams in this national tournament and I'm proud that we finished third," said DelVecchio. "This group of kids have a lot of talent. Usually, teams like this have a few talented players, and the rest are good. We have talented players at every position. When coaches set out to create a team, they look for power, speed, pitching and defense. We don't lack any of those components. They do any one of these things to win, which is extremely rare for a team from this area.

livingroom, dining area, full bathroom and kitchen.

Like traditional condominium living, residents take care of their own meals and services. In addition, a condominium association will determine other services that might be desirable to residents. Building #2 will have no common areas or shops to compare with the congregate or assisted living residences, nor will there be assistance with the activities of daily living, such as dressing and bathing, or the other services that are or will be provided to varying degrees at other buildings within the Marina Bay Senior Living Campus.

Independent living residents enjoy the fact that they no longer must care for a large home, and live in a community of other seniors with whom they share interests and experiences.

Because a higher percentage of residents at independent living residences drive than at nursing homes, assisted living or congregate living facilities, Building #2 will have 68 parking spaces for residents, visitors and maintenance staff.

Both the congregate and independent living residences will be able to share and exchange services with the existing Marina Place Assisted Living residence that was completed in Phase II.

Both Buildings #1 and #2 will be designed with a residential feel similar to the Marina Place assisted living residence. Wood and red brick will be used throughout, though the buildings will each have unique design characteristics.

The buildings have been conceived architecturally to complement and blend in with the other residences at Marina Bay Senior Living Campus, but also with other buildings within the Marina Bay community. Once completed, the campus will have a common architectural look that will be appropriate to Marina Bay and the community at-large, and will be surrounded by landscaping and pathways interconnecting the four buildings.

The landscape design for Phase II will be completed by Mary Smith Associates, a renowned local landscape architect who also designed Phases I and II.

Pending final approval by the City of Quincy, Building #1 will take approximately 14 months to be completed, while Building #2 will take approximately 10 months.

Pastoral Sailings At Union Congregational

The annual Pastoral Sailing Program started Sunday, Aug. 29 at Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., Wollaston and will continue from 2 to 5 p.m. on Sundays through Oct. 3.

Rev. John Swanson, pastor, will be offering cruises and sailing lessons on his 26 foot sloop "Freebird" on Quincy Bay. The program is open to members and friends of Union Church.

Houghs Neck Congregational

Sunday's worship service Sept. 5 at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave. will include the Dedication of a new sound system in the Sanctuary in memory of Edward Francis James.

It is the gift of his son and daughter-in-law, Ronald and Lou, and wife, Lillian. The service will be conducted by Rev. M. Alicia Corea and Dr. Peter V. Corea, co-pastors.

The Sacrament of Holy Communion will be observed.

United Methodist

Holy Communion will be observed at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

Florence Hunter, lector, will give the sermon.

Virginia Hawesa will be the greeter and Keith Eisenhauer and John O'Connor will be ushers.

Following the service, the coffee hour in Susanna Wesley Hall will be hosted by Esther Paulsen, Margaret Troup and Frances Blair.

First Presbyterian

Sunday activities at First Presbyterian Church, 270 Franklin St. begin with Sunday School at 8:30 a.m. and worship service at 9:30 a.m.

Communion will be served.

Pastor Stan Johnson will be preaching. A children's sermon will correlate with the pastor's message.

Young Sang Korean Church will meet at 12:30 p.m.

The Lord's Planting

Guest preacher Stephen Donahue will give the sermon "The Testing of Your Faith" at the 11 a.m. service Sunday at the Lord's Planting, Quincy Foursquare Church, 65 Newbury Ave., North Quincy.

Fellowship will follow the service. All are welcome.

Also on Sunday's schedule:

Prayer meeting, 7:30 to 8:30 a.m.; animated Bible stories for children, adult Sunday school and discipleship classes, 10 to 11 a.m.; and children's Sunday school, 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

SENIOR LIVING

by Laura Andrus and Joan F. Wright
Director of Marketing Director of Community Relations

DEPRESSION AMONG THE ELDERLY

The morbid sadness or melancholy that characterizes depression should be distinguished from grief, which is a realistic and normal reaction to personal loss or tragedy. While depression among younger people is thought to be endogenous (related to internal characteristics of the individual), the elderly are more given to exogenous depression (which arise in response to events that occur outside the individual). Symptoms may include weight loss, loss of appetite, severe fatigue, sleep difficulties, low activity and interest levels, severe pessimism and difficulty making decision. When family members observe these symptoms, they should encourage counseling or psychotherapy as means to determine the source of the depression. Family members should also include themselves in the treatment programs to lend their encouragement and support.

It's hard for many of us to seek help; however, life can become much easier when we have the right help for the circumstances which challenge us. At Marina Place, (617-770-3264), a senior living residence, we bend over backwards to offer seniors a place where independence and support go hand in hand. To inquire about our services or for a look around, stop in at Four Seaport Drive.

P.S. In diagnosing depression in the elderly, it should be taken into account that the depression may either be drug-induced or associated with an illness.

Bethany Congregational

Bethany Congregational Church, Spear and Coddington Sts., Quincy Center will have morning worship with Holy Communion Sunday at 10 a.m.

Rev. William Harding, pastor, will conduct the service and preach a sermon entitled, "Bread For the Journey." Scripture reader will be Darryl Mikami. Music will feature guest organist Norman Corey and soprano soloist Pauline Anderson. Childcare will be provided for infants and toddlers during the worship period.

Assisting the pastor in serving Communion will be members of the Diaconate Margaret Kelsey, George Baker, and Ruth and Harry Byorkman. Following the service George and Jean Baker will host a Fellowship Hour in Allen Parlor.

This Sunday is also Pantry Shelf Sunday with all foods collected going to the Interfaith Social Services Pantry Shelf in Wollaston.

Church School classes will resume next Sunday, Sept. 12 at 10 a.m.

Quincy Point Congregational

Leighton Foss, Interim Pastor, will give the sermon "Why We Do The Things We Do?" at the 9 a.m. service Sept. 5 at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

The Deacon of the Day will be Caryl Dreghorn, and the organist will be Judy Roberts.

The Quincy Jewish Committee would like to extend its wishes for a Happy, Healthy and Prosperous New Year, 5760, to the Jewish families of Quincy.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Labor Day, today, for most Americans has become a traditional last-fling-of-the-summer weekend . . . It is much more than this conception . . .

Labor Day has been a national holiday since 1894. It became a holiday in recognition of those men and women who are the working segment of our nation. (Originally it was probably meant only for those who were employed in factories; to the workers in the nation's industrial development). But not today . . . the labor force today is the secretary, the farmer, the school teacher, the office manager, the executive, the fireman, the law officer, plus hundreds of others.

Today, we are concerned about the number of unemployed . . . those who want jobs and can't find them - those who can't hold on to jobs - but at the same time, we need to appreciate and praise the millions who are on the job everyday . . . on every conceivable job one can think of . . .

We need to provide education, both from books and learning to do with our hands, so that every man and woman is capable of working. Above all, we must instill on our younger generation the convincing thought that there is no shame, no stigma, no disgrace in honest labor . . . Perhaps more than anything else, we need also, all of us, young and old alike, to go back once more to the realization that a day's pay deserves a day's work . . .

Rev. Charles McEachern, 82
Former Pastor Of Wollaston Baptist

A memorial service for Rev. Charles L. McEachern, 82, of Brookfield, former pastor of the Wollaston Baptist Church in Quincy, was held Aug. 28 at the East Brookfield Baptist Church.

Rev. McEachern died Aug. 12 at Harrington Memorial Hospital in Southbridge.

CRITIC'S CORNER

RUNAWAY BRIDE: It wasn't long ago that audiences thrilled to the chemistry between Julia Roberts, starring as a quirky prostitute, and Richard Gere, the man who falls in love with her, in "Pretty Woman."

Gere and Roberts reteam in this latest flick directed by Marshall. Gere is cast as USA Today columnist Ike Graham, a guy who doesn't quite exercise the best journalistic ethics when facing a deadline. Cynically, he loosely reports the facts, some of which are not exactly factual, but suit his purpose.

The fun begins when Ike writes a column about a woman in Maryland who has a penchant for leaving men stranded on the altar. He claims that she's done this at least six different times. Alas for poor Ike, his editor (Rita Wilson) sacks him when she finds out that the subject of the article actually only abandoned three grooms. Thus motivated, Ike decides to find the woman so he can do a magazine article and perhaps retrieve his job and reputation.

Once in Hale, Md., a town Graham likens to the TV burgh of Mayberry, he encounters Roberts' character, Maggie. Bingo! Fortuitously, she's getting set for her fourth wedding. When she encounters Ike, she laces into him for writing what he did. Instead of taking offense, Ike is (naturally) enchanted by her.

The comedic love story takes off from there in a predictable, but delightful, fashion. In addition to the duo, Marshall has brilliantly cast Joan Cusack as Maggie's best friend, Paul Dooley (think basset hound) as the bride's father, and Hector Elizondo as a friend of Ike's and a fellow journalist.

Rated PG, this is a summer winner!

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You may feel as though you are looking at the world out of very gloomy, cloudy glasses. Surprisingly, the process of helping someone else to find his way may clear your own vision.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You feel you have settled on a plan that will improve the world considerably. Experiment carefully within your own surroundings before you try to change anyone else's lifestyle.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You are surprised when a beautiful friendship blooms out of nowhere. The world is a friendlier place than you might have assumed.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A certain amount of lively discussion and friendly argument makes life much more fun. If you stop talking for a while and listen, you may even learn something.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Question your decisions and double-check your answers. In a time of general confusion, it's easy to mistake arrogance for intelligence.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Although you have been the center of attention, others also need time in the spotlight. Take a look at what your peers are doing, and get ready to be gracious.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Financial and personal issues may trouble you. Your partner is your greatest ally during these times.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You are irresistible right now, as a lover, salesman, teacher or friend. Remember that although you are multifaceted, you still have much to learn from others.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Monitor the controlling aspect of your personality or else other people may call attention to it rather loudly. It is enough of a responsibility to be in control of yourself.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although your energy is abundant, you may lack constructive ways to channel it. You have several good ideas; now is the time to implement a few of them.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Too much of a good thing can spoil the overall mood – even if the good thing is you. Ease up on the world around you. In doing so, you give yourself a break.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Tension between you and an acquaintance is so great that the air seems to crackle. Exploring this tension may lead to great personal growth.

YOU BORN THIS WEEK: Gadgets and contraptions fascinate you, as do formulas. You like to put things together in odd combinations just to see what will happen, and you are always eager to test your inventions out on yourself and your friends and family. Luckily for them, your success rate is fairly high.

Appliance Outlet Celebrates Opening

The Appliance Outlet celebrates the opening of its new retail store today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. at 49 Billings Rd. in North Quincy.

Mayor James Sheets, Quincy 2000 officials, Councilor Bruce Ayers, and area business owners will attend the ribbon cutting ceremonies.

This is the Appliance Outlet's 10th store in the region.

The city recently put the final touches on a $4 million streetscape revitalization program in North Quincy in which the power lines were buried, the streets and sidewalks were upgraded, and historic period lighting fixtures were installed.

These improvements have made the district more attractive and will help attract businesses and customers to the area, Quincy 2000 said.

Invest In Children Plates Available At Two Local Automobile Dealers

Quincy-based auto dealers South Shore Buick and Quirk Ford are selling Invest in Children license plates on site through the Registry of Motor Vehicle's Drive Program.

Created by the United Way's "Success by 6" initiative, the license plates cost $70, the proceeds of which go to a fund administered by the state Office of Child Care Services.

The fund will award grants to non-profit child care centers for learning materials, teacher training, and other improvements.

Through the Registry's Drive Program, customers may avoid a separate trip to the Registry by registering their vehicle and ordering their license plate at the dealership at the time of purchase.

New QCAP Director Montclair/Wollaston Speaker

Beth Ann Strollo, newly appointed executive director of Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., will speak at the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at Work Incorporated, 3 Arlington St. at the corner of West Squantum St.

Strollo will speak about various community programs, such as Energy Conservation, Community Care for Kids, The Quincy Family Network, Housing Program, Southwest Community Center, and First Time Home Buyers. She will also discuss her goals for QCAP.

This will be Strollo's first speaking engagement as QCAP's executive director.

Joseph Dennehy Named VAVS Representative

The Disabled American Veterans organization of Boston announces that Joseph Dennehy of Quincy has been named the VAVS (Veterans Administration Voluntary Service) representative at the West Roxbury VAMC for the 1999-2000 membership year.

Dennehy serves under Edward R. Finn, the newly elected state commander of Massachusetts.

The DAV is a non-profit organization of more than one million wartime disabled veterans.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known To Fail)

"Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herin you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herin that you are my Mother. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3X). Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3X). Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light roads so that I can attain my goal. You gave me divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all the things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine." The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days, the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted. Thank you. K.M.D. 9/2

Funding Approved For Expressway Sound Barriers

State Sen. Michael Morrissey and Rep. Bruce Ayers report Governor Cellucci has signed into law a capital supplemental budget, which includes funding for the second phase of the sound barriers along the Southeast Expressway.

The cost of the second phase of the project is approximately $2 million.

"The appropriation will help speed the process for this project considerably," said Morrissey.

The first phase of the project is currently underway. Sound barriers are being placed on I-93 southbound side from Squantum St. exit northward to approximately 400 feet north of Lochland St. in Milton. Barriers will also be placed on the I-93 northbound side from the Squantum St. overpass to approximately 400 feet north of Guilford Road in Milton and from Hall Place northward to Bates Ave. in Quincy.

"Unfortunately, the Massachusetts Highway Department (MHD) has encountered unexpected delays when large boulders were discovered at the Lochland St. location in Milton," said Morrissey.

""The boulders are being removed and new structural supports are being installed," added Ayers.

The second part of the project goes from State Street in Milton to Bates Avenue in Quincy, from Squantum Street to Adams Street in Milton on I-93 South and from Squantum Street southward to Antwerp Street in Milton on I-93 North.

"A 1998 study ranked this area as the noisiest stretch of the expressway," said Ayers. "The eight inch thick sound walls are 8 feet by 15 feet high. They should help reduce noise levels."

"The project has encountered unexpected delays but we are confident that the completion of this project will improve living conditions for those along the expressway," said Morrissey.

ployees including elected officials from participating by voting, discussing, delegating or otherwise acting in any matter that affects their own financial interests or the financial interests of their family members."

Mackay cited a report that the Highpoint project "will cost the city $3 million for the clean-up costs and $1 million in legal fees."

"In addition," he said, "Congress Group Ventures has filed for a comprehensive permit for 1,640 units, 25 percent will be affordable housing units. The affordable housing portion of the plan is expected to cost the city $5.5 million annually."

Over $10,000 was raised at a July fundraiser to help Cahill's legal defense against the conflict of interest charge.

Mackay said now that he is dropping the complaint, Cahill should return the money to those who donated it.

"They (the union) have already cost me a great deal of money-- thousands in legal fees-- and tried to ruin my reputation," responded Cahill.

As for the union dropping the complaint, Cahill said:

"They're not doing me any favor. It doesn't surprise me that they want to drop it. But the blood's already been spilled. I'll go the distance."

QCAP Has New Executive Director

minimizing the effects of poverty and promoting self-sufficiency. QCAP programs include Energy Conservation, Community Care for Kids, The Quincy Family Network, Housing Program, Southwest Community Center, and First Time Home Buyers.

Although Flaherty is enthusiastic about Strollo's appointment, he is also aware of the big shoes Strollo has to fill. Rosemary Wahlberg started as QCAP executive director in 1973 with a modest budget and a staff of 14. She leaves an organization with a budget of $150 million and a staff of 150 after earning an impressive reputation in Quincy politics.

"Rosemary Wahlberg is an institution," Flaherty said. "After 25 years at the agency, it's difficult for anyone to step in, but we feel confident that Beth Ann Strollo is the person to bring us into the new century."

Strollo herself is an admirer of Wahlberg's achievements. "Rosemary Wahlberg is a tremendous mentor, an inspiration to me and many others, and I'm honored to follow in her footsteps."

Strollo thanked Wahlberg for her "subtle guidance" and said that the best way to honor Wahlberg's legacy was "to make sure that this agency continues to provide services to our clients with the dignity and respect that they deserve."

Both Strollo and Flaherty agree that the QCAP's most immediate goal is to find a site for a Headstart program in Quincy or the immediate vicinity. Strollo said that another goal of hers would be to "build upon the collaborative relationships" that QCAP already had in place, such as housing agencies, public schools, child care centers, adult basic education centers, and agencies assisting the Asian community.

"The QCAP is more effective serving its clients in partnership with existing entities," Strollo said.

Strollo, an Ohio native, is a graduate of Wittenberg University in Springfield, Ohio and a CPA. She is married and is a member of the Quincy Family Network Council and the Quincy Community Partnership for Children's Council. She is a past member of the Quincy Fair Housing Commission.

OPEN DOORS School of Energy Healing

School of Energy Healing

OPEN DOORS School of Energy Healing has graduated four classes since starting its program in April 1997. Many graduates have gone on to study various healing modalities, have opened individual practices or volunteer their time providing healing at OPEN DOORS. The School continues to expand, providing not only a multi-leveled energy curriculum but also provides classes in Reiki, Essene and a wide array of other modalities. Many c;asses now offer continuing education credits for Nurses, bridging holistic and traditional medical practice.

The core energy school program classes are as follows: Level I is a 6 month program geared to the individual who wants to learn the basic principles of energy healing with the focus on self healing and exploring different practices to heal others. Classes are limited to 16 students and start on October 13. $975^{00}, payable in four installments.

Level II is for students who have completed Level I and want to build upon skills gained. It is comprised of some group work as well as individual work with a mentor. The program is 3 months long and limited to 16 students. Classes for Level II start on September 16, 1999. $500^{00}

Level III, Community Service Program, begins Fall 1999. Call for details.

Informational Presentation:

Wednesday, September 1 at 7:00PM or Monday, September 27 at 6:30`

Magnetic Products Can Help You

- Live Healthier with More Energy
- Recover Faster from Illness and Injuries
- Relieve Aches and Pains of Everyday Life
- Reusable Self-Treatment Products
- Economical Drug-Free Natural Pain Relief with No Side Affects

How Magnetic Therapy Works

The treatment involves the placing of simple, natural, safe magnets of the correct strength and configuration on the body tissue to improve immune function, reduce inflammation in one-third of the time, increase blood flow and oxygen intake, alkalize and energize the system, and in short, allow the body to heal itself. When magnetic products are applied to the body, the magnetic field attracts and repels charged particles in the blood, creating movement and heat. This process causes blood vessels to dilate, increasing circulation and accelerating healing.

EXPERIENCE THE TRANSFORMATIONAL AND HEALING POWER OF THE DREAMWEAVER!

The DREAMWEAVER is a gentle healing process. Sound is delivered to the body through the use of a vibroacoustic mat. Music vibrates the body with sound from above and below. This produces deep relaxation and alignment in the body, mind and spirit. Your tensions melt, your Chakras align and you move to a new level of awareness. Sound vibrated through the body is used for a wide range of applications from stress management to relief of pain; from emotional release to the expansion of creativity and consciousness.

DREAMWEAVER is available for walk-in appointments, ranging from 15 minutes to 2 hour sessions on Saturdays (12-9) and Sundays (12-9). Other times can be arranged for sessions a half hour or longer.

A Note from Richard Lanza ...

We are approaching a New Age and with it comes a great deal of personal uncertainty; but, also opportunities for new beginnings. We are at a crossroad. We can either feed into our fear and separation, or we can accept that each one of us is personally responsible for the world we create. We are one. Divine consciousness resides in us all.

Humanity is the Messiah and we are slowly awakening to that experience.

Through personal healing, within ourselves and with others, our own growing inner stability and shared communication has a global effect. Once we establish peace within, it is reflected in the world we live in.

OPEN DOORS has been an organization dedicated to supporting all individuals and belief systems which foster healing, consciousness and peace.
Thank you all for supporting this organization over the past year.

Peace and Prosperity,

Richard Lanza

35-40% Turnout Seen In Only Preliminary Contests

Wards 1, 6 In Election Spotlight

Voters will go to the polls in only two wards in next Tuesday's preliminary election but the results will have a major impact on who two new city councillors will be.

Two open seats guarantee two new faces on the 2000-2001 City Council.

Five candidates seek the Ward 1 seat Council President Peter Kolson is leaving to make a run for councillor at-large.

Four contenders are after the Ward 6 seat Bruce Ayers is vacating to concentrate on his duties as state representative.

When the results are in next Tuesday, the field will be narrowed to two candidates in each of the two wards.

They will be the nominees and will square off in the final election Nov. 2 with the winners that date becoming the new councillor in Wards 1 and 6.

City Clerk Joseph Shea is forecasting 35 to 40 percent turnout in both Ward 1 and Ward 6.

"There has been good campaign activity in both wards," he says. "And the voters in those two wards seem very interested in who their new ward councillors are going to be. And there has been some early absentee activity."

The candidates, in the order in which their names appear on the ballots:

Welcomes Cellucci's Support

Time Running Out But Sheets Still Confident On Hospital

By CRAIG SALTERS

With time running out on the Oct. 1 deadline, Mayor James A. Sheets remains confident that Quincy Hospital will be saved.

"I'm still optimistic," Sheets said. "We're still working on funding, both state and federal."

Quincy Hospital needs to erase its operating debt by Oct. 1, the end of the fiscal year. To do that, it needs roughly $12 million from the state, $23 million from the federal government, and $33 million from city funds.

If the funding does not come through, Quincy Hospital will be unable to affiliate with Boston Medical Center and will shut down.

Governor Cellucci allocated $12.1 million in a supplemental budget filed earlier this summer. However, the Legislature does not want to set a precedent of bailing out troubled medical institutions, so support is limited.

Mayor Sheets praised Governor's Cellucci's recent remarks in support of the bailout. Cellucci argued that since Quincy Hospital and Hale Hospital in Haverhill are the only two municipally owned hospitals left in Massachusetts, no dangerous precedent would be set by a one-time bailout. Cellucci also cited the loss of jobs and the need for accessible healthcare.

Legislators responded that Medicare reimbursement rates, and not ownership, was the real issue, and that every Massachusetts hospital with a similar debt to Quincy Hospital's would expect similar treatment.

Oct. 1 Starting Date For Concourse

The Massachusetts Highway Department has received the $5.3 million necessary to begin Phase I construction of the Quincy Center Concourse and construction will begin Oct. 1, announces the office of the Quincy Department of Public Works.

David Colton, commissioner of the QDPW, attended a Pre-Construction Conference Friday at MHD's District Four Construction Office in Arlington. There it was announced that SPS New England, Inc., of Salisbury had been awarded the contract to build a two-lane, two-way road connecting Burgin Parkway to Hancock St. by crossing over the MBTA railroad tracks.

Appropriations for the project were included in a Capital Supplementary Budget recently passed by the Legislature.

Mayor James Sheets welcomed the news, saying that he had been involved in this "important project" for nearly a decade. "Over the years we've lost some pretty good potential customers, but this will open up the Parkingway to new retail," Sheets said.

Tom Fabrizio, the current contract manager at the Quincy DPW who has worked on the project since his days as a councillor, said, "Phase I will bring definite improvements and better access to Quincy Center. You will now have a state-of-the-art road that will bring traffic from Route 3 and Route 128 directly into Quincy Center. It will be a big economic catalyst."

Fabrizio praised the mayor's citizen advisory committees who have been working with the DPW and MHD for the past five or six

McFarland Has Votes For City Auditor Post

Michael McFarland will be the new city auditor, succeeding Robert Foy who has held the post 17 years.

McFarland, present school committeeman for former executive secretary to Major James Sheets, has more than enough votes among the nine city councillors to be elected, The Sun learned Tuesday at presstime.

The matter was on Tuesday night's city council agenda to be voted on for a three-year term starting Oct. 4.

However, it appeared the actual vote might not come until the next council meeting Tuesday, Sept. 21.

MICHAEL McFARLAND

Councillor Frank McCauley says he would like to see the job advertised to attract as many qualified applicants as possible.

He had planned to introduce a resolution for a solicitation procedure but if he finds that McFarland does have the votes to be elected he will drop that plan.

However, he said, he will then move to have the actual vote postponed until the Sept. 21 council meeting. This can be automatically done by a councillor objecting to a vote on a matter the first night it appears on the agenda.

"I think he should at least come before the council before we vote," McCauley said. "We might have questions. This is an important position."

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi said he was ready to vote for McFarland Tuesday night.

"He is extremely qualified professionally and has had experience in many segments of government. I think he is a great choice."

Raymondi said by voting Tuesday night it "would give Bob and Mike some time together for a smooth transition."

Foy informed the City Council in July that he will be 73 in September "and it is my desire to retire."

"It is very important that a new city auditor be appointed so that there will be a smooth transition in the office," Foy said.

During his 17 years as auditor, Foy has served during the administration of five mayors: Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, McCauley and James Sheets.

McFarland, who has two years to go on his school committee term, told The Sun he has checked with the Ethics Commission regarding serving in the dual role of city auditor and school committeemember.

"They said there was no conflict," McFarland said. "They said the interaction between the two is so minimal."

McFarland said with no conflict, he will complete the two years remaining on his school committee term.

McFarland, owner of Barry's Deli in Wollaston, was named city purchasing agent and parking clerk by Mayor Sheets in February, 1994 and served until December when he was named executive secretary to the Mayor, serving until June, 1997. During that time he prepared municipal budgets for fiscal years 1996, 1997, and 1998.

He then returned to his private business and was elected to the school committee of which he is chairman of the Rules Committee and a member of the Finance and Building Needs Committee.

He is a member of the Board of Directors of the Quincy Retirement Board, and the Colonial Federal Savings Bank.

He is a former vice chairman of the Bridgewater Credit Union Board of Directors and a former internal auditor of the Howard Johnson Restaurant Division.

McFarland graduated cum laude from Suffolk University in 1977 with a B.S. degree in Business Administration with Concentration in Accounting.

He is a past president of the Quincy Rotary Club and active in a number of community organizations and causes.

He is married to the former Martha Sinclair. They have three children, twins Brian and Ryan, 14, and Tara, 9.

years. He said that, after a request by the DPW, SPS Developers were willing to meet with the advisory committees and the QCPBA (Quincy Center Professional Business Association) on the project.

Fabrizio said that the project is broken down into two phases with a total cost of nearly $8 million. Phase 2 involves connecting Hancock St. to the intersection of McGrath Highway and Southern Artery. Ultimately, the road will provide major east-west access to Quincy Center.

Although phase 2 is not as extensive as phase 1, Fabrizio said that it involves the difficulty of possible land takings.

Mayor Sheets said that the project was entirely state-funded and that he had commitments for phase 2 funding. Fabrizio called funding for phase 2 "ongoing" but was hopeful that a decision could be made by next year.

A groundbreaking with Mayor Sheets is tentatively scheduled for late September.

A Message From The Superintendent:

Welcome To A New School Year

EUGENE CREEDON

Dear Parents and Guardians of Quincy Public School Students,

It is a pleasure for me as the Superintendent of the Quincy Public Schools to welcome you and your children to another school year.

The summer has been a busy one, filled with exciting summer learning programs. Our school buildings have all experienced a complete and thorough cleaning and are ready to receive approximately 9,000 children and young people.

As our schoolhouse doors open, some 75 new teachers will greet your children. This is the largest group of new teachers to join the ranks of Quincy teachers in many, many years.

Probably no other area is of greater concern to us, as I am sure it is to you, than the health, safety, and security of your children as they spend the day in their school. Please let me assure you that security procedures are well known to our staff and reviewed frequently throughout the year. Last year, we implemented a locked door policy and Mayor James Sheets provided us the funding to install security cameras and an intercom system in all our schools.

The sophistication of our security equipment, as well as the many violence prevention and guidance programs that integrate with the regular curriculum, is the foundation of our approach to school safety and security.

Once again, as has been the case for the past five years, we are opening a new school. Point Webster Middle School after a year of reconstruction will once again take its place as a neighborhood middle school.

The opening of a new school is a significant event and our gratitude is with out measure. We are grateful for the support of Mayor James Sheets, the commitment and vision of the Quincy school Committee, and the financial support of the Quincy City Council. Most importantly, we are grateful to you and all the taxpayers of the City of Quincy.

I want to close this letter with a fervent plea. Please become involved in your child's school. Get to know your principal and teachers. Nothing assures success in school for students more than your involvement in your child's education.

As always, I am available to assist you in any way I can.

Eugene W. Creedon

An Open Letter

Senior Citizens: Quincy Hospital Needs You!

JOHN NOONAN

Dear Senior Citizens of Quincy:

According to the latest City of Quincy Voting and Resident List compiled by the City Clerk's Office there are 18,500 individuals living in Quincy who are sixty years of age and older who may be considered as our elderly population.

In the not too distant future that population will be augmented appreciably by the baby boomers, many of whom have already reached the age of fifty.

This open letter is directed to those of you who are concerned about the future of the Quincy Hospital which has fallen into a critical condition and is in need of emergency measures.

Those of you who were born in the 1920's are part of what is being called today the greatest generation. You survived a great depression. Many served with great distinction in the armed forces during World War II and Korea. Others worked in our defense plants, shipyards, and industries. You went on to build this city into what it is today.

All the while there was a vital component of your community, the Quincy Hospital, that played an important role in your life and the lives of your family.

Quincy Hospital opened its doors as a small health care facility in 1880 to care for generations of families who worked in the quarries, the Fore River Yard during World War I, or who were stricken during the devastating smallpox and influenza epidemics of that era.

That privately operated small bed-capacity health care facility survived primarily because of endowments, gifts and bequests, and to a small extent on charges to patients. The hospital officials were forced to seek help from the city of Quincy in order to remain open and provide the increasing demands for health and medical services.

The city fathers agreed in 1920 to provide the financial funding necessary because they too felt Quincy was too big and growing not to have its own community hospital

In 1920 the Mayor and City Council approved the necessary appropriation making Quincy Hospital a vital link in our municipal government institutions.

The Quincy City Hospital was there for us when we needed it. I was born at the hospital in 1920, the same year that women were allowed to vote in city government elections for the first time.

Years later my wife gave birth to a son and daughter at the Hospital. Generations of sons, daughters, grandchildren and great grandchildren were also born there. These offspring are now the city's future.

I know full well how important the Quincy City Hospital has been over the years to my family. My father suffered a heart attack one year and was rushed to the Emergency Room for treatment of a serious condition. He later recovered and was able to return to New York State where he was a Member of

Name One For Kilroy

Jim Sheets still has high hopes of seeing Quincy built ships once again passing through Fore River bridge, destination around the world.

The first one, it has been suggested, should be named the James A. Sheets for all his efforts--and frustration he has seen--in trying to get the once humming shipyard open, up and running.

If everything jells--and there is still some jelling to do--and those supertankers we've heard so much about become realities, what will their names be?

Well, we doubt we will see the good ship Paul Harold steaming out of the yard heading for the open sea.

But ships do need names. And if Sotirios Emmanouil one day should find himself standing around holding a bottle of champagne with no ship name for the christening, I happen to have one: the James J. Kilroy.

Kilroy, you might say, was the phantom of World War II who seemed to be everywhere but never actually seen. But his calling card: "Kilroy Was Here," was left around the world.

It became as famous during the war as "Remember Pearl Harbor" and "Praise The Lord and Pass the Ammunition."

And, it all began right here at the Fore River shipyard.

Kilroy, a former Boston city councillor and state representative from Jamaica Plain, was a rate setter at Fore River when the yard was turning out some of Uncle Sam's mightiest warships.

He would check the tanks of ships under construction and figure out how long it should take and how much it should cost to test the tanks for water tightness. Then he would assign the job to various work gangs.

Some of the men were giving him a bad time one day in 1942, Kilroy recalled after the war. They claimed he was making cost estimates without first inspecting the job.

"One day," he said, "I was emerging from the tanks of a corvette when I overheard one worker saying to another: "Hey, was Kilroy really here to inspect this job?"

That did it!

Miffed at what he heard, Kilroy pulled a yellow crayon from his pocket and scrawled on the tank hatch for all to see: "Kilroy Was Here!"

And, from that day on, he scribbled the same message on other ships he inspected for the benefit of any doubters.

"Soon the whole yard was in on the act," Kilroy laughed.

"Kilroy Was Here" began appearing everywhere in the yard. On ship bulkheads, tool shacks, lunch pails, etc., etc.

And "Kilroy Was Here" sailed with the Quincy ships around the world. The crews picked it up and left it throughout the Pacific: on a wall of the ritzy Royal Hawaiian Hotel in Honolulu. On coconut trees on coral islands. And even outside the Imperial Palace in Tokyo.

And it got to Europe, too, to London, Paris, Rome, Berlin. Scrawled on buildings, billboards, guns, planes, tanks. Even on a general's helmet and an admiral's gig.

"Kilroy Was Here" became a morale booster. Wherever soldiers, sailors, marines and pilots went, Kilroy seemed to have gotten there first. Which was always good for a laugh or a joke.

"It scared the hell out of me back home," said Kilroy. "I lived in fear someone here would jail me for defacing property."

The world wondered who the devil this Kilroy was.

After the war, the American Transit Association conducted a nationwide contest to find him and authenticate that he originated the slogan.

Jim Kilroy proved it was him and his slogan.

And for the prize, he received a 22-ton trolley car. Don't laugh. He converted it into a playhouse for his nine children.

And, on that trolley, they say, someone came along and scribbed: "Kilroy IS Here."

Jim Kilroy died in 1962 at age 60.

His name belongs in World War II lore along with Roosevelt, Churchill, Hitler, Stalin, Mussolini, Eisenhower, MacArthur, Halsey, Tokyo Rose, Axis Sally, etc.

The James J. Kilroy.

Why not!

the State Assembly and Assistant Speaker of the Assembly.

In 1992 I suffered a stroke attack that was most serious and could have been quite devastating had I not been rushed to Quincy Hospital and treated. A few years later I suffered another stroke and again I was rushed by ambulance to the Quincy ER.

Had I been forced to be taken by ambulance to another hospital during both stroke attacks the outcome would have been much different. Strokes must be treated as soon as possible by trained medical personnel and specialists. Quincy Hospital has them all.

According to Quincy Hospital emergency room statistics some 30,000 patients were seen during 1998. Of that number an estimated forty percent of those seen were senior citizens from the Quincy area.

Efforts by city leaders and the local state legislative delegation have been working tirelessly to keep the Quincy Hospital open but your help is needed.

It is ironic that as we celebrate the Labor Day holiday weekend some 1100 employees of Quincy Hospital are facing loss of their jobs by the end of September.

Mayor James Sheets and his assistants, the members of the Quincy City Council, our Quincy state delegation Hospital CEO Jeff Doran, and other top officials are pulling out all the stops as the deadline countdown October lst begins.

Petitions are being circulated around the city, hundreds of letters have been written, and many personal phone calls made to legislators at the State House. But much more needs to be done.

Jack Doyle and Rene Buisson, two Hospital officials, can provide sample letters to write or additional petitions to be circulated to senior citizens in housing facilities or neighborhood community centers.

If you wish to help in any way call the Public Relations Department of Quincy Hospital (617) 376-4017 for sample letters or petitions. Arrangements can be made to have letters or petitions picked up and forwarded to the appropriate key legislators at the State House.

Quincy seniors have always been most responsive to important causes. This call could be a matter of life or death because if Quincy Hospital closes where can our fast growing senior population turn to for basic health and emergency services needs.

Thank you in advance for your usual excellent cooperation.

Sincerely,
John Noonan, Chairman
Council on Aging

Affordable Housing Won't Happen Until We Demand It

Recently, both Sen. Mike Morrissey and Senate President Tom Birmingham paid a visit to the residents at 91 Clay St, Wollaston Manor.

Residents there are concerned that their apartment building which was federally-financed with a U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development mortgage could be converted into market rate apartments if the mortgage holder decides to pay off his mortgage early.

According to Birmingham, "Retaining and increasing affordable housing is crucial." For that reason the State Senate is pushing an "Enabling Act" to alleviate early buyouts by HUD apartment owners.

Actions speak louder than words. Sens. Morrissey and Birmingham showing up at Wollaston Manor to comfort elderly tenants is a sad reflection of failure on the part of government.

Too often whether it's affordable housing, Medicare or Social Security, the elderly are left less secure. Sound bites don't pay the bills.

Affordable housing like affordable health care won't happen unless and until we demand it. Until then, we will just move from crisis to crisis. Actions always speak louder than sound bites.

There Could Be A Taxpayers' Rebellion

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Because Congress can tax without limit there can be a taxpayer rebellion that could be a Civil War.

Plea For Eisenhower To Visit Shipyard

By PAUL HAROLD

Senator Charles Hedges, in a letter to President Dwight Eisenhower, made a please for the President to visit the Fore River shipyard to see why the carrier Forrestal should be built here.

Hedges said that a visit would indicate the capabilities of the yard to build the $209 million ship. Without additional contracts, Hedges said that the talent built up in the area would migrate elsewhere. The yard had 9,563 workers in 1952 and was down to 7,000. Without new contracts, a lay off of 5,000 workers was projected.

Meanwhile, U.N. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge referred to Senator Leverett Saltonstall, a letter sent by the Fore River Long Service Club, asking for support for new contract work at the yard.

BOSTON GEAR STRIKE IN FIFTH WEEK

The 12,000 C.I.O workers at the Boston Gear Works continued their strike for a wage increase, lowering their request to 18 1/2 cents an hour raise.

Both sides were meeting with Federal mediators in Boston, with no settlement in sight. The union had reduced its demand from the original 30 cents an hour raise down to 20, then 21 and finally to 18 1/2 cents. However, the company refused to budge from their original offer of a 6-cent raise.

CHIMINIELLO WON'T RUN FOR SCHOOL COMMITTEE

Col. Dominic Chiminiello announced that he would not run for re-election to the school committee because he was on active military service and his future was uncertain. He was the high vote getter, having served four years on the committee.

Chiminiello's open seat was eyed by children's specialist Dr. Charles Djerf, who was making his first bid for elective office. Other newcomers included Atty. George Flavin and Charles Shea, both candidates for city council. There was a total of 35 candidates for the city council and 20 for the school committee.

Super Clam Loaf

Just a couple of hours of low humidity, and I make a run for the range, stove that is. This time, I had some fresh minced clams in the freezer (just in case). Instead of a chowder, the minced clams went into a clam loaf which turned out like a huge stuffed clam!

Clam Loaf

1 pound fresh minced clams
(canned can be used, but fresh are tastier)
1 egg (beaten)
3/4 cup seasoned bread crumbs
1 tablespoon fresh parsley (chopped)
1 cup mashed potatoes (I used instant)
1 tablespoon chopped onion
2 tablespoons melted margarine or butter about 2-3 tablespoons cooking sherry

Mix the bread crumbs, butter or margarine with the sherry, and then add all the rest of the ingredients and blend. If needed, add a little more bread crumbs. The clams usually have some juice which is even better. Place in a greased loaf pan. I topped it with some shredded cheddar (optional). Bake in a 350 degree oven for about 40 minutes. It can also be baked in a round cake pan.

I served it with lemon slices, creamed peas and sweet potatoes.

If there are any leftovers, they can be sliced and sauted and are almost like a fish cake and quite delicious!

Marina Place Hosting Entertainment Programs

In celebration of National Assisted Living Week, Marina Place, an assisted living residence in Quincy, will hold several entertaining programs for South Shore seniors to enjoy.

The public is invited to attend the events free of charge. Reservations can be made by calling (617) 770-3264.

Activities scheduled are:

• Rene Rancourt presents his musical variety show Wednesday, Sept. 15 at 7 p.m. Rancourt is well known for his singing of the National Anthem at the Boston Bruins games.

• A Scottish and Irish song and dance program offered by The Caledonians on Thursday, Sept. 16 at 2:30 p.m. Attired in full highland dress, the Caledonians provide a funny and entertaining program.

• Derek Mann, cruise director for the Royal Viking Line and Cunard, will share his travel perspectives in his "Around the World in Slides" program Friday, Sept. 17 at 2 p.m.

Assisted living, one of the fastest growing segments of the senior care industry, is an option for seniors who wish to maintain independence and privacy but receive support with daily living. Marina Place, located at Four Seaport Dr. in Marina Bay, Quincy, provides private rental apartments, a full range of personal care services, 24-hour staffing and supportive programs and activities. Respite care and a Memory Impairment Care Program is also available.

For more information on Marina Place, call (617) 770-3264.

Entertainment Scheduled For Quincy ArtsFest

Organizers of the second annual Quincy ArtsFest announce a full schedule of entertainment has been added to compliment the festival's artwork.

The Quincy ArtsFest will take place Saturday, Sept. 18 and Sunday, Sept. 19 at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex in Quincy's Merrymount Park.

"This year's Quincy ArtsFest will feature a great entertainment lineup that will significantly compliment the art and photography displays," Quincy Park Executive Director Thomas Koch said.

"We have assembled a diverse lineup of some of the most talented entertainers in the area. We believe that the Quincy ArtsFest will be the finest, free, family-oriented festival of arts and entertainment to be found," Koch added.

The Quincy ArtsFest will feature art and photography from more than 400 of the South Shore's finest artists and photographers. Members from art associations in Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Boston, Marshfield, Hingham, Scituate, Cohasset, Milton and others will participate in this year's show.

The show will be open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Sunday. Admission to the Quincy ArtsFest is free all weekend.

The entertainment schedule is:

Saturday, Sept. 18

10:15 to 11 a.m.: Peter Panic, award-winning juggler.

11 a.m. to 1 p.m.: Sally Rodgers, renowned folk singer and children's music recording artist.

1:30 to 3:30 p.m.: "Mixed Emotions", from the Riverside Theatre Works, mix of lively Broadway showtunes.

4 to 6 p.m.: "Sophisticated Ladies," from the Riverside Theatre Works, sultry jazz music singers.

6 to 8 p.m.: "Made in the Shade," toe-tapping, hand-clapping, Dixieland band.

Sunday, Sept. 19

10 a.m. - noon: Joe Lundbohm, contemporary soft rock singer.

Noon - 12:45 p.m.: Forbes School of Irish Step-Dance, over 25 dancers ranging from age 3 to 18.

1 to 3 p.m.: "Wildest Dreams," an exciting, worldbeat concert band.

"Through the help of our newest sponsor, the Best Western-Adams Inn, we are now able to conduct one of the best festivals of art and music on the South Shore. I encourage you to bring the entire family down to the Quincy ArtsFest and enjoy the sylvan park setting, the art and photography displays, the entertainment, food, and a host of other fun activities at this wonderful event," Koch said.

Along with art displays and entertainment, the Quincy ArtsFest will feature a variety of art demonstrations, an edible art program, rock-painting and face-painting.

For more information, call the Quincy Park Department at (617) 376-1251 or the Quincy Art Association (617) 770-2482.

500 Attend Alumni Big Band Summerfest Finale

The 1999 Summerfest Concert series concluded Sept. 1 with the Alumni Big Band entertaining an audience of nearly 500 people at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre.

The band was featured with Steve Marvin, a popular vocalist known throughout the Greater Boston area and this year's nominee as the top male vocalist by the Boston Music Awards program.

The evening brought back a bit of nostalgia for Summerfest producer Joe LaRaia since the Alumni Band first appeared on the lawn in front of City Hall back in 1983, the first year of the concert program. The Sept. 1 performance completed the 17th Summerfest concert series.

Marvin goes back even further having entertained the audience at LaRaia's inaugural reception as Quincy's new mayor at the State Street Complex in 1976.

All the concerts are taped by Quincy Access Television and are shown on the local cable station, Channel 3.

Central Junior High School Reunion Oct. 16

Graduates of Central Junior High School from 1965 to 1975 are invited to attend the second Central Junior High School reunion Saturday, Oct. 16 from 7 p.m. to midnight at the Braintree DAV Hall, 240 Liberty St., Braintree.

Tickets are limited and are available on a first come, first served basis. Tickets are $30 per person and must be purchased in advanced before Sept. 30.

Make checks payable to Central Reunion and send to Jo-Ann (Grazio) Bragg, 74 East Elm Ave., Quincy, MA 02170.

A group photo of classmates will be taken at 9 p.m. An 8 x 10 copy of the photo will be available for $10 each.

For more information, contact Jo-Ann (Grazio) Bragg at 617-471-3822, Mike Kelly at 781-659-7113, Barbie Braveman at 781-545-0377 or Mike Polvere at 617-770-0436.

PAT and TOM WILLIAMS

They're Raising Funds To Fight Leukemia

Quincy attorney Tom Williams and his wife, Pat, will be taking a walk . . . a very long walk, so that children everywhere will continue to be able to do so.

The pair will be embarking on a 26.2 mile walking marathon on Oct. 25 in an effort to raise funds and awareness for the Leukemia Foundation. Tom and Pat will be competing in the Dublin Marathon, a race run annually in different places all over the world in hopes of raising funds for further research for leukemia and melanoma. The duo will be included with over 5,000 participants in the race, both runners and walkers.

With the assistance of coach Howie Jacobs, owner of Toodie's Fine Jewelry in Quincy Center, who has dubbed the team "The Road Warriors," training begins at 5:45 a.m. each morning as the Williams navigate the streets of their hometown of Norwell.

"We usually try to walk around places where there is the least traffic," Pat Williams says. "And we also try to include hills which can be extremely tiring."

Pat and Tom started out walking four miles a day at a steady clip, and since have increased to more than 16 miles on some days.

Along with Jacobs, the Williams meet with their coach, Francine Hughes, in Boston once every two weeks, gaining valuable insight from this six-time marathon runner. "Francine helps us with our stretching exercises and trains us to walk more rapidly. She also has us doing some real challenging hills in Boston," Pat says.

The goal of the campaign is not so much athletic as it is charitable. The Williams will hold a fundraiser at Mount Blue Restaurant in Norwell Sunday, Sept. 12.

Dubbed an Irish cocktail party, the event will include food, drink, and entertainment courtesy of Dennis Curtin's Irish Band. There will be also be a demonstration of Irish stepdancing.

Donations are $50 per person and reservations are encouraged. For tickets and more information call (617) 847-4200. Donations payable to the Leukemia Society of American can also be mailed to Tom Williams, 21 McGrath Highway, Quincy, MA 02169.

Constitutional Convention Re-Enactment

The National Park Service, Adams National Historical Park invites visitors to help re-enact one of our nation's greatest dramas, the passage of the United States Constitution by the Constitutional Convention on Sunday, Sept. 19 at Adams National Historical Park, 1873 Carriage House, 135 Adams St., Quincy.

The program will be held from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2 to 4 p.m.

Members of the audience will assume the roles of various delegates to the Convention and will represent their state in a debate that will determine the fate of a nation. Led by George Washington (portrayed by a Park Ranger), the debate becomes heated as the time draws short before the final vote is called.

After the debate each delegate signs his or her name to the document, rings the Liberty Bell, receives a copy of the United States Constitution, and the Massachusetts Constitution to keep as a memento to their great efforts in the service of their nation, and savors their victory by eating a slice of Constitution Cake.

The program commemorates the actual passage of the U.S. Constitution by the Constitutional Convention on Sept. 17, 1787.

The program is free of charge, has a limited capacity and will be reserved on a first come, first serve basis. Those wishing to attend are recommended to call the Adams National Historical Park Visitors Center at (617) 770-1175 to reserve a place.

Limited street parking is available on Adams Street.

Bellotti Names Moscato Chief Information, Technology Officer

Sheriff Michael Bellotti has named Ronald J. Moscato of Quincy as the Chief Information and Technology Officer at the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office and Correctional Center.

Moscato's immediate responsibilities are to modernize the Correctional Center's technology infrastructure and to address any Y2K issues.

"I'm very pleased to have someone of Ron's caliber and expertise at the Sheriff's Office," said Bellotti. "In the short time that he has been here, he has already made an impact in getting this office technologically up-to-date."

Moscato's career in corrections spans more than 20 years. He started as a Corrections Officer in 1976 at MCI-Concord. With a background in teaching, he also taught some GED courses there.

In 1984, after working in several other positions, Moscato was named Deputy Director of Information Systems for the Department of Corrections. When he left the DOC to come to the Sheriff's Office, he was the Information/Technology Planning and Purchasing Coordinator. He was also the Y2K Coordinator for DOC.

SHERIFF MICHAEL BELLOTTI (right) with Ronald J. Moscato whom he has named Chief Information and Technology Officer at the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office.

"I'm looking forward to this new challenge at the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office," Moscato said.

Moscato completed his undergraduate work at Westfield State College. He also has an MBA from Babson College and a master's degree in education from Boston University.

He lives in Quincy with his wife Anne and their two daughters.

Senior Living

by Laura Andrus and Joan F. Wright

Falls experienced by seniors can lead to debilitating injury that compromises their independence. Everything possible must be done, therefore to prevent falls from occurring in the first place. With this preventive approach in mind, it should be recognized that 60% of falls occur at home. One quarter of these falls result from such hazards as slippery flooring, poor lighting, inadequate footwear and cluttered foot-traffic paths. Once these circumstances have been properly addressed, seniors can adopt two measures that are proven to help them avoid falls. The first involves exercises that increase physical strength and balance. The second involves a review of medications that cause dizziness and vision impairment. With proper foresight, most falls can be avoided.

Taking the time to exercise each day can be a bother, but the increased well-being you will experience make it worthwhile--to say nothing of your increased safety. Marina Place, a senior living residence, offers independent and assisted living. From our picturesque location to our lovely amenities, you'll find pleasure and comfort as well as the assistance you need for daily life. For more information, call us at 617-770-3264. (Four Seaport Drive).

P.S. Tai chi (a set of exercises that combine mental concentration, coordination of breathing and movement) has been demonstrated to improve balance and decrease the risk of falls in seniors.

MWRA To Open Nut Island To Public Use Friday

The MWRA will host a ceremony Friday, Sept. 10 at 10:30 a.m. in preparation of the official opening of Quincy's Nut Island to public access.

Last year, MWRA reclaimed 14 acres of open space on Nut Island after dismantling the old Nut Island Treatment Plant. In July 1998 the Nut Island Headworks was placed into service on the island.

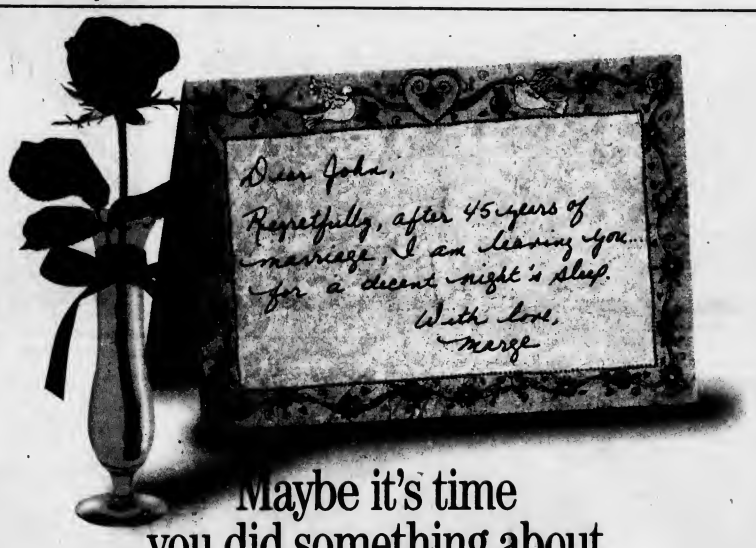
The facility screens and degrits wastewater generated by the MWRA's southern sewage collection system before discharge to the Inter-Island Tunnel, which transports its flows to the Deer Island Treatment Plant. The wastewater is then processed at Deer Island in accordance to environmental standards. Before the headworks came on-line, South System wastewater was treated at the old Nut Island Treatment Plant and discharged into Quincy Bay.

The 14 acres of newly landscaped land surrounding the new headworks facility will be opened to the public as part of the new Harbor Islands National Park Area.

The Nut Island Citizens Advisory Committee, elected and appointed officials of the City of Quincy and MWRA have worked together since 1984 to assure that this space would stand as a legacy of the Boston Harbor Project.

The public is invited to attend the dedication ceremony, which will run from 10:30 a.m. to noon at Nut Island in Quincy.

Since parking is limited on Nut Island, MWRA is running shuttle busses from Marina Bay, Quincy.



For directions to Marina Bay, call MWRA Public Affairs at (617) 788-1120.

Food Fest Raises Over $122,000 For Father Bill's Place

THERE WERE GOOD reasons for the smiles at the fifth annual Food Fest & Auction for Father Bill's Place held recently at Summer House in Marina Bay. The event raised over $122,000 for the interfaith homeless shelter. From the left are Executive Director David Phillips, Leanne Shaughnessy, Fr. William McCarthy (after whom the shelter is named) and Al Shaughnessy, owner of Shawmut Crane and Rigging, South Boston.

IT'S GOOD! -- Joan MacDonald of Quincy, Joan Griffin, Milton, and Dotty Scully, Quincy, sample the fare at Father Bill's Place annual Food Fest and Auction. A large number of restaurants, bakeries, specialty shops and wine sellers donated food and other items to make sure the event was its most successful in five years.

THE SUMMER HOUSE at Marina Bay had a full house all night for Father Bill's Place fifth annual Food Fest & Auction that raised over $122,000. An estimated 1000 people attended during the night.

DAVID PHILLIPS, (left) executive director of Father Bill's Place, is congratulated by his predecessor, Joseph Finn, for the large turnout and more than $122,000 raised at the fifth annual Food Fest and Auction.

STEVEN SHAUGHNESSY of Shaughnessy Crane, South Boston, a major sponsor of Fr. Bill's Place Food Fest and Auction, entered the highest bid for the mystery envelope at the auction. Sean McDonough, CBS sportscaster and honorary co-chairman, is shown in center and Jim Wells, of Abbadessa's Ristorante and committee chairman, is at right.

Durkin Donates $250 To Ward 5 Association

Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin recently contributed $250 to the Ward 5 Community Association, bringing to $1,250 the amount he has allocated to the association.

The Ward 5 Community Association was established in the spring of 1997 by a group of young Wollaston community activists.

Durkin has worked closely with the association over the past three years, particularly on the issue of water quality at Wollaston Beach. He serves as chairman of the Wollaston Beach Task Force.

Henry Bradley To Receive Jewish War Veterans Citizen Of The Year Award

The Quincy Jewish War Veterans Post 193 will recognize Henry Bradley, director of Quincy Veterans' Services, as its 49th annual "Citizen of the Year" at an awards breakfast Sunday, Nov. 14 at 9:30 a.m.

Bradley will be honored for his many years of devoted service in helping the elderly, children, veterans and to the community.

Among the invited guests will be Mayor James Sheets, Senator Michael Morrissey, friends and members of the Post and past recipients of this award.

Bradley has served the city as its veterans' services director since May, 1990. Previously, he was a Quincy police officer for 21 years. He was also been employed as a general contractor and as a police officer for the New York-New Haven-Hartford railroad.

For his police work, he has received many letters of commendation and an American Legion Medal of Valor for apprehending a Viet Nam veteran with a shotgun at Mount Wollaston Cemetery. He also received a Milton American Legion Award for capturing a holdup man in a Quincy drug store.

HENRY BRADLEY

Bradley served in the military for 36 years, retiring in 1993 as a first sergeant. He served in the Air National Guard (1957-1961), U.S. Air Force while stationed in France (1961-1962), and the Air National Guard and Army Reserve (1962-1993).

He is the recipient of the Army Commendation Medal, Meritorious Service Medal and the Army Achievement Medal.

Bradley has been active for many years in veterans, charitable and community organizations.

He is a past state commander of the American Legion, Department of Massachusetts; a past National Executive Committeeman of the American Legion; past commander of the Morrisette Post; and past commander of the Quincy Veterans Council.

He served three years as commander and eight years as adjutant of the T.F. Fitzgerald VFW Post. He is a past commander of the Milton American Legion.

In addition, Bradley is a member of the Redberry Council Knights of Columbus, Catholic War Veterans and the Joseph Webb Masonic Lodge in Boston.

He also serves as a board member of the Quincy Teen Mothers Program and chairman of the American Cancer Society's daffodil program South Shore region from Quincy to Plymouth. He also initiated a men's benefit walk to raise funds for prostate cancer research.

Bradley is a graduate of Dorchester High School and Quincy Junior College. He is presently studying for a degree at University of Massachusetts in Boston.

He and his wife, Rosemarie (Muscato) have two daughters, Helena Rose, a legal secretary, and Annette Marie, a registered nurse.

We need you.

ELECT
WILLIAM F. WEED

CANDIDATE FOR CITY COUNCIL
WARD 1 -- DEMOCRAT

THE REAL CANDIDATE FOR WARD 1

ISSUES AFFECTING WARD 1:

TRAFFIC SAFETY ON SEA STREET.
2000/2001 CITY BUDGET WILL BE CHANGED IF I AM ELECTED.
HOW MUCH WILL THE HOSPITAL REALLY COST QUINCY TAXPAYERS?

Committee to Elect William F. Weed Jason Kane, Chairman

VERC CAR RENTALS, 231 Southern Artery in Quincy, has donated a 1995 Chevrolet Corsica to the Quincy Police Department, announces Chief Thomas Frane. The vehicle will be used by the Traffic Division and will be assigned to Officer Kevin Mormino, department Safety Officer. The department greatly appreciates the generosity of Verc Rentals, Frane said. From left, Jack Kelly, manager of the Quincy office; Capt. Terrance Kelly, Traffic Division commander; Safety Officer Kevin Mormino and Sgt. John Barnes.

"He's been with us from the first day," Sheets said of Cellucci, but warned that the real decision "still comes down to the Legislature."

Sheets also noted that recent progress with the unions had lowered the need for federal assistance to less than the original $23 million.

The hospital appropriation is currently in the hands of the House Ways and Means Committee chaired by Paul Haley, D-Weymouth.

AIDS Consortium Accepting Applications For Volunteers

The Quincy/South Shore AIDS Consortium is accepting applications until Sept. 30 for volunteers to serve people living with HIV and AIDS in Quincy and other South Shore communities.

Volunteer opportunities include providing concrete services such as transportation, meal preparation, light cleaning, errands and shopping, as well as providing emotional support or becoming a companion.

To volunteer, call Sheila Dworkin, HIV Volunteer Program coordinator at (617) 472-2828 ext. 2038. A 10-hour training will be provided. (Dates to be announced.)

The Quincy/South Shore AIDS Consortium includes community residents, service providers and consumers. QSSAC provides services to people living with HIV and AIDS in Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Randolph, Milton, Norwell, Hingham, Hull and Scituate.

Mahony Addresses Issues At Coffe Hour

Shirley Erlander of Squantum recently hosted a coffee hour for Ward 6 council candidate Maryann Mahony who spoke to a group of residents on the issues of education, community development (including Marina Bay, Louisberg Square, and Squantum Gardens), public safety, protecting seniors, preserving open space and Wollaston Beach.

Mahony addressed the concerns of those present on a variety of topics, including those mentioned above.

After the coffee hour, Mahony attended the Quincy Citizens and Wollaston Park Association meeting. She was inadvertently given incorrect information regarding the presentation time of the Ward 6 city council candidates; thus her remarks were only made to a small group of residents.

Foot Notes

by Dr. Richard A. Hacker
Surgeon-Podiatrist

CLUBFOOT

Clubfoot, or equinovarus, is a common birth defect caused by a combination of hereditary and other factors that may affect prenatal growth. The foot twists inward and down and the heel cord is often tight, making it impossible to bring the foot to a normal position without help. If both feet are affected, the toes point toward each other. The painless condition does not cause problems until the baby tries to stand or walk. If left untreated, the ankle remains twisted and the foot cannot move normally. An awkward gait develops and can lead to infection, calluses, slowed growth in the leg and arthritic symptoms. When just one foot is affected, that foot and calf become smaller than the other.

Whether feet are brand new or have a few miles on them, don't wait to see if their problems will "just go away." Some conditions like clubfoot definitely won't and most others probably won't, and you certainly don't want to be left with more serious, harder to fix problems later on. Feet of all ages deserve the comprehensive professional attention you'll find at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy. Please call 617-472-3466 for an appointment.

P.S. Treating clubfoot usually involves casting the affected area or performing surgery to correct the condition.

Uvanitte Honored As Member Of Allied Presidents Club

Donald Uvanitte, vice president and top salesperson for Allied American Insurance agency, Inc. was given an unprecedented honor as he became one of the first members in the company's Presidents Club.

The group was established to recognize outstanding sales performance, according to Mark I. Levine, executive vice president of the Natick-based insurance agency with 19 offices in Massachusetts, Vermont and Connecticut.

DON UVANITTE

Uvanitte was one of seven Presidents Club members. A Quincy resident, he is the resident manager of Allied American's new Quincy office at 382 Quincy Ave.

"Don made an enormous contribution to the overall success of our company in 1998," said Levine. "Because of his hard work, he set a very high standard for our entire organization."

To express its appreciation to the first members of the Presidents Club, Allied American Insurance President and CEO Hope Aldrich, Levine and Executive Vice President John Koegel hosted the group to a recognition award meeting at Jacksonville, Florida's Amelia Island Plantation.

"We just wanted to say 'thanks for what you've accomplished,'" Levine said. "They've earned it."

Registration For Ricciuti Memorial Golf By Sept. 15

Deadline for registration for the Pete Ricciuti Memorial Golf Tournament to be held Oct. 4 at the Wollaston Golf Course in Milton is Sept. 15.

Cost is $200 per person which includes green fees, cart, dinner and a donation to the American Diabetes Association.

To make reservations, call 1-800-229-2559, ext. 136.

Project S.A.F.E. Smoke Detector Program Underway

The third annual "Project S.A.F.E." program is underway to identify Quincy seniors in need of smoke detector inspections and installations, announces Sharron Beals, executive director of Beechwood on the Bay.

Project S.A.F.E. (Smoke Alarms For Seniors) is a city-wide effort to identify need, provide information about fire safety and smoke detectors; and inspect and install free fire detectors in the homes of seniors "at risk."

The smoke detector project is an extension of Beechwood's city-wide Senior S.A.F.E. program, designed to assist seniors remain independent and in their own homes as long as possible."

Senior service providers, elected officials, clubs, community centers, churches and Quincy seniors (living in their own homes) are encouraged to call if they, or any senior they know:

- Has less than three smoke detectors.
- Has detectors that need checking, repair or replacing.
- Has any questions about smoke detectors.
- Is interested in receiving fire safety information.

The Beechwood Project initiated in 1997 in partnership with the National Fire Protection Association, Quincy Fire Department and Quincy Rotary Club. This year, the partnership has expanded to include the city's two other service organizations: Quincy Kiwanis and Quincy Lions.

A city-wide installation of smoke detectors (for seniors living in their own homes) by volunteers from the Quincy Fire Department, Quincy Rotary, Quincy Kiwanis and Quincy Lions will be held Saturday, Oct. 2.

For more information about Project S.A.F.E. or other city-wide senior programs for "seniors-at-risk" call 471-5712.

a. 12 tons
b. 24 tons
c. 60 tons
d. 120 tons

2. Let's say your vehicle is due for an Enhanced Emissions & Safety Test. When is the best time to go?

a. Any Tuesday around 1:17 a.m.
b. The last week of the month like everyone else
c. Let me check with the Psychic Friends Connection
d. Early to mid-month

3. What happens to air pollution when it rains?

a. It gets wet
b. It comes back to earth and seeps into the soil
c. It comes back to earth and runs off into lakes, streams and other bodies of water
d. b and c

4. While the safety portion of the Enhanced Emissions & Safety Test is conducted every year, how often do you have to get a biennial emissions test?

a. Every other year

ENHANCED EMISSIONS & SAFETY TEST
Coming in October

If you want to know about the upcoming enhanced emissions test, take this simple quiz.

To locate a licensed testing station, or for more information, call toll-free, 1-877-387-8234 or visit http://vehicletest.state.ma.us.

ANSWERS: 1.d. Air pollution will be decreased by 120 tons a day. States with similar emissions testing have seen a 25% decrease in air pollution from vehicles. 2.d. To avoid waiting in line, don't wait until the end of the month to have your vehicle tested. 3.d. When it rains, air pollution returns to earth to become soil and water pollution. 4.a. Because the new emissions test is better and more comprehensive, you only have to take the test every other year. The safety test, however, is still required annually. 5.a. Keep your car properly cared for and the test should be a snap. 6.d. No one in the Commonwealth benefits from air pollution, and it's toughest on our children, the elderly and those who work outdoors.

First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop Starts Sept. 18

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., a MHFA and HUD-approved First Time Homebuyer's Counseling Agency, will hold a First Time Homebuyer's Workshop on Saturday, Sept. 18 and Sept. 25 at the South Shore Savings Bank, 1530 Main St., Rt. 18, Weymouth, from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to qualify for the many different mortgage options available through the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs and other financing options.

Agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. The focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. The fee for the workshop is $40.

For more information and registration forms, call Deborah Mullay, at (617) 479-8181 x172.

The workshop is sponsored by the Department of Housing and Community Development and the Town of Weymouth.

First Time Homebuyer's Workshop starts Sept. 18.

THIS 7.15 ACRE tract on Southern Artery has been sold by Daniel Flynn to Quirk Auto for expansion.

Flynn Sells Southern Artery Site To Quirk For Expansion

Daniel J. Flynn & Co. CEO Dan Flynn sold 7.15 acres of prime undeveloped real estate along Southern Artery, Route 3A, in 0Quincy, a site formerly owned by Stop & Shop Supermarket Co.

The land, located at 600 Southern Artery, was purchased for $3.5 million by Daniel Quirk, owner of Quirk Auto Dealers. Quirk will use the site to expand the operation of his car dealership. An adjacent parcel of land will be developed as the site of a new CVS Pharmacy, part of the Tide Mill Project.

"This is a great deal for the city of Quincy," said Flynn and Co. President Paul Talkowski. "This stretch of Route 3A has always been critical to Quincy's economy, with several major retailers making their homes there. The new CVS and the expansion of the Quirk dealership will give an added boost to the area."

Daniel J. Flynn & Co. is a full service real estate firm specializing in commercial sales and leasing, residential real estate and real estate auctions. For more information, call (617) 479-9000.

BACK-TO-SCHOOL

Keeping Kids Safe Online

(NAPS)—It's school time again! Time for bookcovers, new pencils and, yes, homework. This year, more kids than ever will be venturing online for help with their studies—research and homework help—as well as to participate in chats, games and other fun.

But while the Internet can be a valuable resource, it is also riddled with content that may be inappropriate for children. Parents and teachers alike need to be aware of the tools available to protect children online, so kids can surf with confidence.

One such tool is Internet filtering software, which screens inappropriate material and makes it inaccessible to children. Available absolutely free, ZeekSafe is a proprietary software download that blocks access to more than 100,000 Web sites containing pornography, violent content and extremist speech.

ZeekSafe also includes an obscenity filter which blocks millions of additional pages containing any of more than 100 words and phrases deemed inappropriate. The filter scans Web addresses, page names and metatags (keywords) for objectionable words and phrases for added protection. The ZeekSafe filter is parental password protected and includes free, automatic updates every two weeks.

Filtering software isn't the only tool that parents have at their disposal to protect children on the Web. Internet sites made just for children often have resources that kids can use for homework; and many have filtering technology built-in to ensure a safe Web experience. Zeeks.com (http://www. zeeks.com) is such a site, and serves as a free, safe, all-in-one Internet destination for kids ages 6 to 13.

Designed with children in mind, this leading Web site for young surfers serves as a portal or safe "gateway" for kids, with original content in an engaging environment, including interactive games and "closed loop" e-mail. (Children can only send and receive e-mail from designated pen pals; all unsolicited messages are forwarded to the parents' e-mail address.)

Zeeks.com also has supervised chat rooms, so youngsters can talk to other children through the Net without worry, in addition to a safe search engine. There's also safe e-mail, a personalized calendar and cool Web authoring tools. In fact, ZeekSafe can be downloaded from the site, distinguishing Zeeks.com as the first children's Web site to offer protective Internet filtering software free of charge.

New Partnership To Improve College Access For Urban Youth

According to the most recent United States census, only nine percent of African-American and eight percent of Latino populations in Greater Boston have earned a bachelors degree; significantly fewer than the 21 percent of white and 16 percent of Asian-American populations in the region.

In an effort to address this alarming statistic, the Nellie Mae Foundation recently awarded a $200,000 grant to the Boston Educational Collaborative of Emmanuel Gospel Center to improve access to college in several eastern Massachusetts communities.

With significant help from the Higher Education Information Center of Boston, and other partners, including the Ten Point Coalition and several ethnic churches, a pilot project will be initiated this month to establish higher education resource centers in Greater Boston and Brockton area churches. Additional partners in the program include Boston College's AHANA Program and Eastern Nazarene College's Academic Assistance Program.

The partnership utilizes existing community strengths and resources in an exciting new way to expand educational opportunities in low-income communities. The collaboration will make it easier for African-American, Caribbean, and Latino students in grades five to 12 to access college planning information and guidance, motivational and educational activities, and support to stay in school and continue on to higher education.

With help from this initial grant from the Nellie Mae Foundation--the largest it has approved this year--the collaboration will draw upon the churches' unique capacity to engage young people by involving youth workers and ministers with state agencies in programs and services that improve their chance to attend college. This church-based model recognizes that convenience and high trust levels are key factors to successfully drawing urban youths to educational resource centers.

With a $10,000 planning grant from the Foundation, members of the partnership convened to develop objectives, coordinate logistics and move the program from concept to reality. The $200,000 grant will now enable the centers to organize, hire staff, and begin operating.

It is anticipated that five resource centers will be established during the program's 3-year pilot phase. Each will be staffed and equipped to provide the full range of college-related information and services currently offered by HEIC in downtown Boston, including one-on-one advising, assistance with test preparation and college financial aid applications, and access to college search programs. HEIC has demonstrated success in providing students with free, quality information about financing and completing post-secondary education since 1984.

"The Foundation's contribution will allow us to address the inequality of access to higher education for underprivileged inner city youth," said Doug Hall, director of Emmanuel Gospel Center. "By combining HEIC's resources with the community involvement and outreach capacity of churches, the initiative can significantly improve accessibility of relevant college information in a convenient and safe local site."

What's New In Preparing For College Entrance Exams

News of Education
Helpful Hints From The College Board

(NAPS)—Many people are seeking information on helpful ways to prepare for college entrance exams.

For the more than two million students taking the SAT this year and in future years, there are more and more helpful ways to prepare for the SAT, Advanced Placement examinations and other college exams.

There are many books, Internet sites and software that can offer test-taking tips, strategies and practice questions. Here's a sampling:

• 10 Real SATs by the College Board, the official sponsor of the SAT. The book features practical advice for approaching the SAT as a whole and specific strategies for each type of verbal and math exam question. The book, at $17.95, has been named a best seller in Amazon.com's reference category.

• Students taking the SAT II: Subject Tests may want to check out Real SAT II: Subject Tests, also $17.95 from the College Board. Colleges typically require or recommend these tests because they help measure a student's knowledge or skills in a particular subject and the ability to apply that knowledge. The book describes each test and includes test-taking strategies and practice tests in 18 different subjects.

• The APCD Series is a series of CD-ROMs that provide students with the guidance and practice they need to help prepare for Advanced Placement exams. The CDs come in versions for U.S. History, English Literature, English Language and European History. The home version costs $49, plus $5 for shipping and handling.

• One-on-One with the SAT is a preparation software package that offers hundreds of real SAT questions. Guessing and eliminating features help users develop an effective guessing strategy.

• EssayPrep is The College Board's new online essay evaluation service that lets students practice essay writing. It costs $15 for AP exams and $10 for SAT II Writing.

The College Board also offers information on choosing a college and how to pay for an education. To order any of the college prep books or software, or get other educational information, you can visit www.collegeboard.org.

College entrance books and software are doing good by helping many students do well on standardized exams.

Study Tips

• Find a Special Place to Study—Clear yourself a nice, open space to study—free of distractions. Don't study on your bed—your mind may start to associate the bed with work, making it hard to fall asleep.

• Set Manageable Goals—Break big, daunting projects into smaller—and doable parts. You'll feel a sense of accomplishment after an evening's work.

• Take Advantage of New Computer Software—The latest educational software—such as the Higher Score series from Kaplan and Knowledge Adventure (800-542-4240 or www.knowledgeadventure.com)—offers highly personalized study plans designed to meet individual learning needs. In fact, several new CD-ROMs—Higher Score Middle School, Higher Score High School, Higher Score Mathematics and Higher Score Guaranteed on the SAT/ACT & PSAT 2000 Edition—are guaranteed to raise your scores—or your money back.

• Take a Hike—When you're in the middle of studying and hit a wall, take a short brisk walk to clear your mind.

STUDENTS PARTICIPATING in the Quincy Public Schools Summer Scene program recently attended field trips to the National Adams Historic Sites throughout the city. The field trips provided students with rich curriculum experiences designed to complement the program's theme, "Hometown History." Park rangers engaged the students with historical reenactments of the Boston Massacre, authentic costumes, and games of the Revolutionary time period. "The field trip to the Adams' Birthplaces in historic Quincy allowed the students to go back in time, and ahead in understanding," said fifth grade teacher Leo Sullivan. Here, third grade Summer Scene students salute John Stanwich, Adams National Historic Park ranger.

Stamos Reports 70 Campaign Signs Destroyed

Ward 6 Candidate Jim Stamos reports that approximately 70 of his campaign signs were destroyed between midnight and 3 a.m. Monday.

Stamos said that his signs were destroyed in the Squantum, North Quincy, and Atlantic sections of Quincy and on Billings Rd. near the business district.

According to Stamos, Quincy Police are investigating the incident as more than random vandalism because of the amount of signs damaged and the fact that his signs were the only ones targeted.

He added that his supporters, especially seniors, were nervous because the vandals had trespassed on private property late at night. He also said that it was a clear violation of both election laws and his Civil Rights.

"I wouldn't want this to happen to any candidate," Stamos said.

Stamos said that he and his supporters had been picking up sign debris for over three hours and had noticed pieces floating in the bay.

Stamos estimated the total damage at $700.

Thornton Still An Official Candidate For Ward 6 Seat

The question around Ward 6 Tuesday is whether Jens Thornton is still a candidate for that city council seat.

The answer around City Hall is that he is. Period.

Jim Stamos, one of the four candidates for the council seat, said Bruce Ayers is leaving. Thornton told him he was dropping out of the race and was going to support him.

Thornton, Stamos said, then set sail on a cruise to Bermuda with his wife Carol to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

City Clerk Joseph Shea said whether Thornton wants to drop out of the race or not, he is still an official candidate.

"It's too late," said Shea. "Aug. 12 was the deadline for candidates to withdraw nomination papers. He didn't withdraw them.

"Besides," said Shea, "the ballots are all printed and Jens Thornton's name is on them as a candidate and will remain on them as a candidate.

"He can tell people he has dropped out but his name will be there when they go to the polls next Tuesday."

Shea also noted that he has 8,000 ballots for the Ward 6 preliminary runoff which cost $1,300.

Shea said that if by chance, Thornton was one of the two nominee winners Tuesday, he would then have time to drop out of the final election because those ballots have not been printed.

"He could decline the nomination," Shea said. "I have never heard of it happening but it could."

Wards 1, 6 In Spotlight Next Tuesday of 51 Glover Ave., North Quincy, accounting operations.

Maryann P. Mahony, 60, of 18 Hummock Rd., North Quincy, personnel manager.

The positions on the ballot were drawn by the candidates in an Election Department lottery.

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. in Wards 1 and 6 only.

Shea said expects to have the official vote tabulations completed by 9 p.m.

His forecast of a 35 to 40 percent turnout is considerably higher than the vote cast in the last city preliminary election in 1997.

Two years ago there were preliminary contests for councillor in three wards.

Only 11.01 percent of the voters cast ballots in Ward 1 where Peter Kolson (731 votes) and Gretchen Grant (163 votes) were nominated over Joseph Kasparian who had 97 votes.

The Ward 3 turnout was only 9.77 percent with incumbent Patrick McDermott (587) and Linda Tracy (146) winning the nominations over Robert Boussy who had 69 votes.

The highest turnout was 23.57 percent in Ward 6 with incumbent Bruce Ayers (1,097) and Brian McNamee (397) winning the nominations over Joseph Newton who had 386 votes--just 11 behind McNamee. Newton did not seek a recount.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico are unopposed making them virtually assured of re-election Nov. 2.

There will be contests Nov. 2 for mayor, councillor at-large, Ward 3 and Ward 5 council and school committee.

There were not enough candidates for a preliminary election run-off for those office s.

Shea advised voters who are confined because of illness or will be away election day that they have until noon Monday, Sept. 13 to obtain absentee ballots.

Scholarship Established In Memory Of Joseph Conti, Jr.

Twin Rivers Technologies has made an initial $25,000 donation to a scholarship fund in memory of Joseph Conti, Jr., an employee who was killed in an accidental flash fire at the plant March 11, 1999. Conti's family has been actively involved in the planning of the fund which now totals $35,000

The scholarship will be given annually to a recipient who meets specific criteria based on Conti's own life and established by his family. It will be awarded to a resident of Quincy who attends Massachusetts Maritime Academy after graduating from either Quincy High School or North Quincy High School. He or she must have a graduating grade point average of 3.0 or above, be a participant in sports programs or activities, be of high moral character and have demonstrated leadership and citizenship qualities. Those who apply must write an essay, as well as supply two faculty letters of recommendation. The Conti family will be included in the selection process.

The scholarship fund will be established within the Massachusetts Maritime academy Foundation and will be called the "Joseph Conti, Jr. Scholarship Fund." The Academy Scholarship Committee, appointed by the president of the Academy, shall determine the recipient in consultation with the Conti family. Annual reports will be made to the principal donors of the Fund. The first recipient will be a graduating senior of the Class of 2000.

At the time of his death, Conti was a 32-year-old refinery technician at the Twin Rivers Technologies plant in Quincy, who manufactures natural oils and other products used in personal care and industrial products. A four-year employee of Twin Rivers, Conti served as an officer in the Merchant Marines for six years. He was a graduate of the Massachusetts Maritime Academy in Buzzards Bay and a 1985 graduate of Quincy High School, where he was know for his athletic ability. He played both baseball and football and had been inducted into the Quincy High School Baseball Hall of Fame. He was also a player in the Cape cod Baseball League and a member of the South Quincy Bocce Club and Merchant Marine Unit. A resident of Hanover, Joe grew up in the Houghs Neck section of Quincy. Conti is survived by his parents, Joseph and Joan, and a sister and brother-in-law, Kim and Peter DiBona.

Joseph Conti Sr. said, "Our family is appreciative for Twin Rivers' sincere effort in establishing this scholarship fund in memory of Joey."

Jim Ricci, president of Twin Rivers Technologies said, "We talked to Joe's family about what would be the appropriate way to honor him and they came up with this very targeted scholarship. Joe was an exemplary employee, and his co-workers and all of us at Twin Rivers were devastated by his death. Those fellow associates have contributed to this scholarship fund in addition to the company's donation."

Donations to the Fund can be made care of The Joseph Conti, Jr. Fund, c/o Massachusetts Maritime Academy Foundation, Massachusetts Maritime Academy, Buzzards Bay, Massachusetts.

For more information, contact Paul Angelico at Twin Rivers at (617) 472-9200.

Joe Newton

Candidate for Ward 6 City Councillor

Dear Voter,

I am a lifelong resident of Ward 6 and attended the Quincy Public Schools. I am a strong advocate for the every day issues that effect the quality of life in our community. I will work hard to ensure that our community decides what happens in our neighborhood. I believe that being your City Councillor is about Public Service, not politics. May I ask you for your vote September 14th.

Fall Is A Good Time To Take Stock Of Health

Fall can be a time of renewal and a time for breaking bad habits and starting good ones.

The physicians of the Spaulding Rehabilitation Hospital Network view September as an ideal time to take stock of your health and to start taking better care of yourself. The following reminders can put you on the road to good health.

• Promise to take responsibility for your own health. Most of us can do more to improve our health. Take a good hard look at your lifestyle and ask yourself if you have any self-defeating habits. Do you smoke? Do you avoid regular exercise? Do you maintain a balanced diet of lean meat, fresh fruit, vegetables, and low-fat dairy products, or do you survive mostly on fast food and sugary snacks?

• If your diet is less than ideal, make a commitment to yourself to eat better. Begin the day with some kind of breakfast, whether it is a whole grain cereal with milk and a glass of juice or a slice of toast with peanut butter and a glass of milk. For lunch and/or dinner, include some protein, grains, and vegetables in your meal choices. Making these changes is not difficult, once you become mindful of what you eat. Soon, you will make better choices automatically and on a regular basis. And you'll find that you are maintaining your weight and looking better, too.

• Get into the habit of exercising regularly. Exercise helps reduce the risk for developing a range of medical conditions. It also helps you maintain or lose weight, strengthens bones and muscles, increases energy and reduces stress, and contributes to a sounder sleep. Fall is a great time to initiate a walking or running program; everyone feels energized by the brisk, autumn air. Start by convincing a friend to take a walk around the neighborhood after dinner.

• Schedule and keep regular medical check-ups. Fall is also an ideal time to review your upcoming medical appointments and to schedule those you've been putting off. Early detection is the best protection from serious illness or disease. Follow your physician's advice about getting important tests and screenings. Be sure to do self-exams to catch problems at the earliest stages, when they are most treatable.

• Keep your chronic conditions under control. This fall, learn all you can about any disease or chronic condition you may have. Through attention and care for yourself, you'll be able to make more intelligent decisions about treatment.

• Pay attention to your mental health. Fall is a good time to take stock of how you feel about who you are and what you do. This means becoming more aware of how you react to stressful situations and learning to manage stress better. It can also lead to understanding the importance of maintaining a positive attitude. Exercise and relaxation techniques can help you keep your spirits up. A reduced risk for hypertension, heart disease, and backaches are additional benefits of positive well being and good stress management.

Hearing aid
"Tips from Tobias"

Stephen P. Tobias
Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist

Should I keep my batteries in the refrigerator?

Absolutely not! Todays hearing aid batteries are made with zinc. They have a good shelf life, but If put in the refrige-rator, they will accumulate moisture and cause corrosion in your hearing aid. When zinc air batteries are fresh they have a guaranteed shelf life of one year. Buy them fresh! When they are on sale at pharmacies or discount stores, it may be because they are an older batch. It is much easier to monitor their freshness in a Hearing Instrument Specialist's office where we do not sell many other products. A fresh battery will give you consistant life. An old battery might go dead at any time. You may save a couple dollars but you'll save more dollars by doing business with your specialist. Customers that buy batteries from me on a regular basis get more "freebies" when they come in for service. It's my way of thanking them for being a dedicated customer. Keep your batteries in a dry cool place, like a desk drawer and order a 4-6 month supply at a time.

Now you go and spread the news! -Steve

Defense, Running Attack Raiders' Keys

North Quincy Kicks Off Friday Vs. Medford

By CHRIS POISSON

Like its adversary, North Quincy High School is looking to rebound after a dismal 1998 season.

The Red Raiders stumbled, finishing with a disappointing 2-8 record. Their only celebration came in the Thanksgiving Day game when they beat rival Quincy, 21-6, to snap a four-game losing streak in the annual contest and claim city bragging rights.

If North Quincy is to turn things around it will have to adjust quickly to the loss of seven players to graduation, including its three captains and starting quarterback.

"The numbers are down a little bit, but we have a good senior class this year that's working hard," said head coach Peter Chrisom, who replaced Ken McPhee after he stepped down to become the Social Health Coordinator for Quincy Pubic Schools. "The senior leadership should be a big strength for us this year. A lot of them played last year, so we're hoping it can carry over to the younger kids."

Fullback Brian Deptula, who led the team in scoring last season, is one member of the class of 2000 who is being counted on to create a powerful rushing attack. With senior Steve Minukas also lined up in the backfield, assistant coach Tom Carter believes this is an area North Quincy will excel at.

"We should be all right," he said. "We should be able to run the ball fairly well. We have Brian Deptula. He's a boy in a man's body. Stevie Minukas at tailback will do well for us, too."

Chrisom is hoping his running game can shoulder much of the offense early on, as his passing game will need time to develop. Chris Bregoli's departure has left a void at quarterback, one of the most visible positions on the field.

As of right now, there's no front-runner to take over the starting job. Sean Adams and Max Repoff are battling it out in camp for the spot.

"Our weakness is primarily inexperience at quarterback, skill positions and depth," said Chrisom. "Right now we have two quarterbacks - Max Repoff and Sean Adams - and it's up between the two of them. We haven't come to grips with a starter yet."

Who ever gets the starting nod, he'll be throwing to an inexperienced receiving crew, which is comprised of mostly underclassmen and two seniors - Mike Delrosso and Jody Bravo.

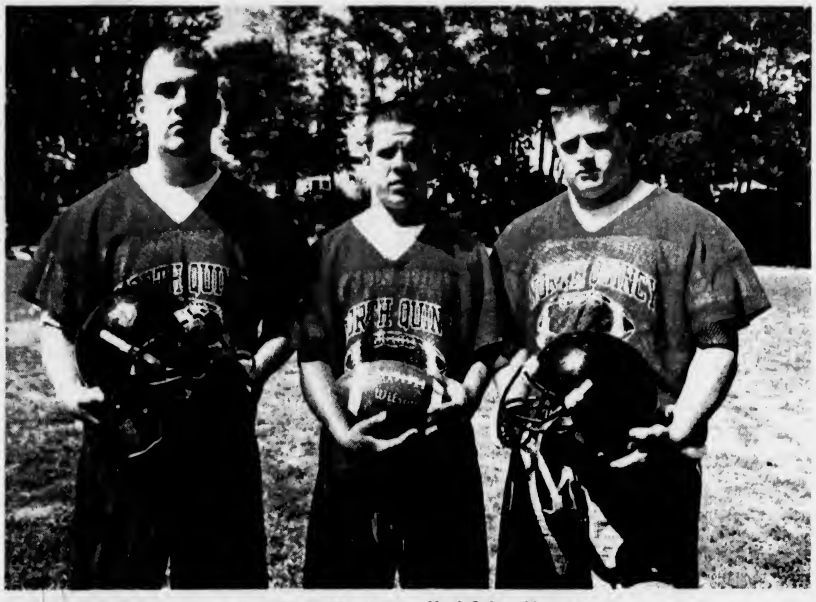
Bravo will be the go-to guy as he was the team's second leading scorer last season.

On the defensive side, most of last year's starters are back. Tri-captains Deptula (LB), Bill Griffin (DT), Ryan Murray (S), along with Joe Donahue (DT) and Paul Skarzenski (DT) are the backbone that will be looked at to keep the Red Raiders in games.

"We're expecting a lot of things out of our defense this year," said Chrisom. "Defense is going to keep us in the games until the offense comes around."

North Quincy kicks off its season at Veterans Memorial Stadium this Friday at 7 p.m. against Medford, a team it hasn't faced in seven years.

"What I know about them is they're very similar to what we were last year; they have a lot of people coming back," said Chrisom.



Medford is the first of three straight non-league games, which should give a good indication as to what type of team North Quincy will be before conference play rolls around.

"If we stay healthy we should hold our own in this league," said Carter.

"We're in a tough league," said Chrisom. "We want to be as competitive as we can. We have a good group of kids. We have some that played a lot last year, and they have a lot of payback to do this season."

The following is the 1999 roster:

Freshmen: Jim Coughlin (RB/DB), Sean Dolbeare (FB/DB), Ryan Farnham (RB/DB), George Phipps (OG/DT).

LISTEN UP!

Drivers who place a high degree of emphasis on their vehicle's sound system should give it a thorough test drive when considering the purchase of a car. To begin with, the controls should be easy to reach and use, without the driver having to take his or her eyes off the road. Consumers should test a vehicle's radio reception on both the AM and FM bands while driving over preferred routes. Of course, the sound of the system should be tested using the prospective owner's own cassette or CD. The sound should not distort when the volume is set at regular listening levels. And, outside noise should not interfere with the listening environment when driving at highway speeds.

Passing Game, Line Presidents' Strengths

Quincy Hosts Plymouth North Saturday

By CHRIS POISSON

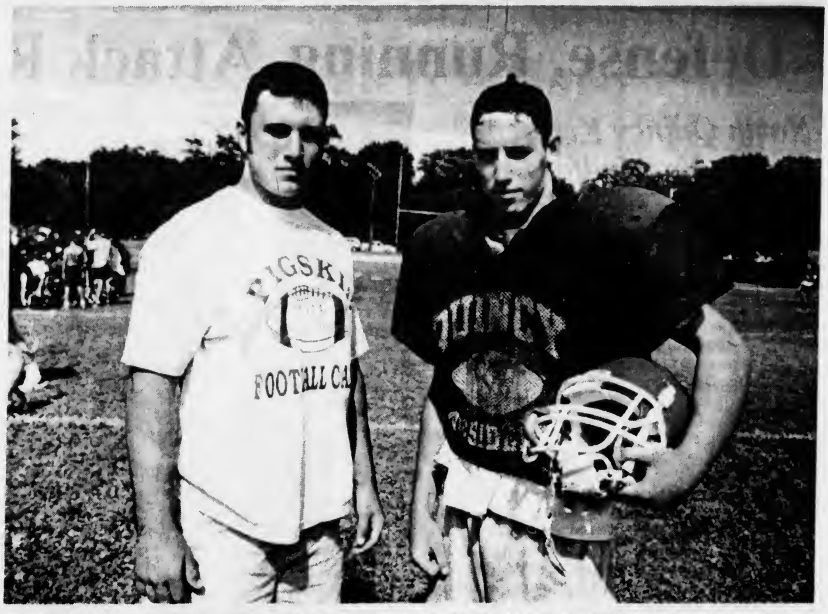
Quincy High School hasn't tasted victory since Thanksgiving of 1997, when it shut out rival North Quincy, 7-0, in the annual holiday match-up.

The Presidents hobbled along last season, dropping all 10 of their games, marking the first time they were winless since the 1985 campaign.

The 1999 season, however, brings greater expectations. Bob Noble, the assistant coach for the past 14 years, takes over the reigns of Peter Chella, who stepped down to become the assistant principal at Point-Webster.

Although last season was disastrous, most of the players are returning and Noble believes their experience should lead to a winning season.

"We're a far more experienced team than we were a year ago," said Noble. "A majority of the kids who will see quite a bit of playing time played last year. Hopefully that will translate into us being far more competitive and winning our fair share of games."



Noble plans to keep the system relatively the same, except he wants to make one small change offensively. And that's to air it out more, which he considers one of the team's strengths.

"If we do anything different, we're probably going to be a little more wide-open in throwing the ball," said Noble. "It's a philosophy of mine. We're going to throw the football."

So the Presidents will be counting on their quarterback, senior Dan Kelly, the way the New England Patriots rely on the right arm of Drew Bledsoe.

"We feel we have one of the better quarterbacks in the league in Dan Kelly," said Noble. "And we have a receiving core that all started last year."

Quincy has a talented trio of receivers to compliment Kelly this year. Co-captain Nick DiStasi, Jeff Peterson and Andy Tam should carry the load as they all caught 15 or more passes last season.

CAPTAINS NICK DISTASI (left) and Tim Pezzulo were chosen overwhelmingly by their teammates to lead a Quincy squad that was winless last season.

QUINCY HEAD COACH Bob Noble will enjoy his first season as the man on the sidelines as Peter Chella stepped down after last season. Noble was the assistant coach for the past 14 years.

The Presidents will need some kind of running game to keep opposing defenses honest if they're to achieve a potent passing attack. Noble feels that with his backs and offensive line, they will be able to do that.

"Do I think we have the potential for a decent running game, yeah," said Noble. "I think we're going to be able to move the football. All our offensive linemen are back from a year ago. That year under our belts I think will be a big plus for us."

Co-captain Tim Pezzulo should get most of the carries out of the backfield, with Russell Mullen and senior Chris Regens also getting their chances. Regens has a pulled hamstring and is listed day-to-day. He should be ready for the season opener against Plymouth North, Saturday at 10 a.m.

Quincy's experience should help on defense, which played well in a scrimmage against BC High a few weeks ago. DiStasi, and Joe Duffy lead the linebackers with Peterson, Regens, Chris Ricupero and Sean Fitzpatrick applying pressure from the defensive line. Pezzulo (DB) and Tam (S) anchor the secondary.

After last season. Quincy has established some simple guidelines.

"Our first goal is to be competitive because quite frankly a year ago we weren't," said Noble. "Our second goal is to win our first game. Our third goal is to win at least our first three games."

Quincy's first three games are all against non-league opponents, which should help prepare the team before conference play gets underway. Quincy's schedule is also in its favor as they have seven games at the friendly confines of Veterans Memorial stadium.

But before Quincy starts looking down the schedule and setting their sights on a postseason berth, Noble just wants to see a competitive team.

"First and foremost I want to see us compete on a much more consistent basis than a year ago, and then we will go from there," he said. "I think we have the talent to win our fair share of games this year. We have to prove we can win some games. Our lack of winning at this point, in terms of this group, is a weakness. But they're also a good group. I think we'll surprise a lot of people."

The following is the 1999 roster:

Junior Rangers Home Opener Saturday At Youth Arena

The Quincy Junior Rangers will play their home-opener against the UMass Junior Minutemen, Saturday at the newly renovated Quincy Youth Arena at 7:50 p.m.

The Rangers are in their first year of Junior Hockey and they are scheduled for 60 games this season, 36 against league foes. The other teams are the Boston Jr. Blackhawks, Conn. Whalers, Springfield Jr. PICS, Staten Island Sabers, and the West River Wolves (NH).

The Rangers will have a strength and conditioning coach with full use of the Quincy YMCA which includes state of the art treadmills, life cycles, two Olympic swimming pools, nautilus and free weight equipment.

The players also receive first class travel and lodging, and full uniforms, which include gloves, two sets of jerseys and socks, helmets, pants, equipment bags and team sweat suits.

General manager and coach Tom MacDonald said the objective of the league is "to offer local hockey players another option of furthering, maturing and developing their careers before moving on to college. It bridges the gap between high school and college, by giving players the necessary tools by playing a longer season along with a higher level of competition."

MacDonald also said the league places an emphasis on the importance of higher education. The players will be given a complete SAT course.

Joining MacDonald on the bench are assistant coaches Bill Innocent and Kyle Robertson.

The regular season ends March 12 and the playoffs begin on March 17. The top four teams earn a berth, and a total of three points wins the two-game series.

Tennis Tournament Underway At Russell Park

The 28th annual Quincy Tennis Tournament is underway at the Russell Park Tennis Courts behind Quincy High School. Recreation Director Barry J. Welch announced that matches will be played evenings from 6 to 9:30 p.m. and weekends from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Tournament Director John Franceschini will host a tribute to Henry McAuliffe on Saturday, Sept. 18 at 1:30 p.m. at the courts. Friends petitioned the Park and Recreation Board to recognize McAuliffe for his work in the Quincy Tennis Community. The men's doubles events winners will receive the McAuliffe Bowl, which was dedicated by the Board.

Friends are welcome and refreshments will be served. In event of rain the tribute will be held at the Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway.

The tournament is co-sponsored by the Quincy Municipal Credit Union and the Quincy Recreation Department.

Women's Self Defense Class At YMCA

The South Shore YMCA will be offering a new Women's Self Defense class beginning tonight (Thursday).

Through lecture and physical scenarios, students are given the opportunity to explore new strategies for keeping safe, while learning basic self-defense techniques.

The six-week program will be held Wednesdays from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. For further information, call 479-8500.

Men's Basketball League

The South Shore YMCA is offering a Men's Fall Basketball League beginning Thursday, Sept. 16.

Games will be played Thursday and Friday evenings. Registration is underway.

For further information, contact Gayle Laing at 479-8500.

Registration Sept. 21, 28 For St. John's Baseball League

St. John's baseball registration will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 21 and Tuesday, Sept. 28 at St. John's Lower Church from 6 to 8 p.m. for girls and boys between the ages of 7 and 12.

The fee for Farm League, ages 7 through 9, will be $45 per child. For the Little League, ages 10 through 12, the fee will be $50.

All children who participate in the leagues are required to wear gray baseball pants. The charge for these will be an extra $7.

There will be a $5 late fee for registrations after Sept. 28 and no guarantee of placement.

For further information call (617) 472-6554 and leave a message.

Sons Of Italy Golf Tournament At Presidents Golf Course Sept. 27

The Quincy Lodge 1295 Golf Tournament will be held Monday, Sept. 27 at Presidents Golf Course in North Quincy, 8 a.m. "shotgun" start.

The cost is $100 per player/$400 per team and includes: green fees, golf cart, shirt, cash prizes, merchandise prizes, and lunch at SOI Lodge. If you wish to sponsor a hole, your name will be recognized; the cost is $100.

President Of Administrative Personnel Association To Address Local Chapter

The Quincy-based South Shore Chapter, International Association of Administrative Personnel will sponsor an Impact Night Tuesday, Sept. 14 at 6 p.m. at 50 Braintree Hill Office Park, Braintree.

Cynthia Lively, CPS, International President IAAP, of Greenfield, Mass., will be the keynote speaker. Lively is currently administrative assistant to the headmaster of Eaglebrook School in Deerfield, Mass., a position she has held the past 20 years.

All office professionals, secretaries, executive secretaries, administrative secretaries, managerial assistants, are invited to attend the meeting to learn more about the association.

"Forging Pathways: Vision 2000" is the theme chosen by Lively for the 1999-2000 IAAP year. "Forging Pathways relates to our need as an association facing many changes to move ahead, focusing on the need to forge forward with speed and efficiency against the challenge facing us with an effort that will bring us all together in common unity," Lively said during her recent installation speech in Portland, Ore.

The South Shore Chapter IAAP meets on the second Tuesday of each month at the Quincy Neighborhood Club with dinner followed by an interesting and informative professional speaker.

Membership in IAAP (formerly Professional Secretaries International) provides benefits and services to meet the professional needs and personal needs of the administrative personnel. IAAP is a resource to help personnel advance in their careers.

Present membership includes 27 affiliate organizations, chapters in six countries, members in 47 countries, and overall the association is represented in 57 countries throughout the world.

For more information on Lively's visit, or other South Shore Chapter events, contact Betty Scansaroli at Nellie Mae (781-849-1325, ext. 2457).

Stranger Danger

Back-to-School time is a perfect time to talk with your children about Stranger Danger. We all know that it is sometimes difficult to reach youngsters with this important information, but if parents make a game out of it, instead of giving a lecture, it is often easier and the message may last longer.

When you are alone with your children, driving in the car, or just sitting at home at a quiet moment, ask your child what he/she would do in the following situations:

1. If a stranger offered the child a ride?

Answer: Never go near a stranger's car, even if the stranger calls you by name. Always run away and tell someone a teacher, parent or police officer.

2. If a stranger offered the child candy or gifts.

Answer: Never take candy or gifts from a stranger. Make sure that you run away and tell someone, a teacher, parent or police officer.

3. If a stranger asked the child to help look for a lost pet.

Answer: Never go with a stranger to help look for a lost pet. Make sure that you run away and tell an adult (parent, teacher, police officer).

4. If a stranger grabbed you or touched you.

Answer: Run and scream and tell your parents, teacher or police officer. If you see a stranger grabbing a friend, remember as much as you can about what the stranger looks like. If he is in a car, write down the license plate number and make sure you tell someone.

5. If you are home alone and a stranger comes to the door, what would you do?

Answer: Never open your door to a stranger, keep it locked and talk through the door. Tell the stranger that your mom or dad is taking a nap and does not want to be disturbed. If the stranger insists that you open the door, or will not go away, call 911 immediately.

Remember: A stranger is anyone who you or your parents don't know well. Strangers can be young or old, male or female, and can dress just like ordinary people.

The two things a child must do when approached by a stranger are:

1. Run away
2. Tell a parent or teacher or a police officer

Try this game with your children. It will make them think on their own and will help if a situation with a stranger arises.

CHOOSING DAY CARE WISELY

Here are a few guidelines for choosing a day care for your child:

1. Find out as much as you can about the program's reputation and whether there have been any past complaints. It is licensed or regulated in anyway?

2. Learn about the teachers and caregivers. What are their professional qualifications? Are background checks run before they are hired?

3. Make sure you have the right to visit anytime, without an appointment.

4. Find out how children relate to staff. Are they happy and involved, or do they pull away from staff members?

5. Ask about the philosophy or discipline.

6. Make sure there is parent involvement such as group meetings, and parent conferences.

These guidelines can also be applied to aftershool programs and babysitters. In any child care situation, it's a good idea to drop in unannounced periodically. Never give the organization blanket permission to take your child off the premises.

Finally, talk with your child daily about how things are going to investigate problems that worry you or become chronic. Compare notes with other parents.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

People make various provisions in their wills. As we all know, a will involves arrangements for giving, while living. Cash, property, commendations, awards, wardrobes, etc. are all left behind when the time comes. In one way or another such things are left behind to serve others. This sort of thinking prompts this question: "What is one of the greatest gifts you can leave to others?"

An unknown author answers the question rather nicely... Read it ... "If I can leave behind me, here and there ... A friend or two to say when I am gone ... That I had helped to make their pathways fair ... Had brought them smiles when they were bowed with care ... The riches of this world I'll carry on ... If only three or four shall pause to say ... When I have passed beyond this earthly sphere ... That I brought gladness to them on a day when bitterness was theirs ... I'll take away more riches than a billionaire leaves here"...

HOCUS-FOCUS

BY HENRY BOLTINOFF

Find at least six differences in details between panels.

Difference: 1. Baseball has been added. 2. Building is gone. 3. Catcher's shoes are different. 4. Fence has been repaired. 5. Pitcher's pants are longer. 6. Boy's hat is different.

CRITIC'S CORNER

THE SIXTH SENSE: The ultra-talented Haley Joel Osment portrays troubled 8-year-old Cole, a moody, withdrawn child given to playing with his toy soldiers obsessively. His musings on paper always seem to focus on violent imagery. This is a disturbed kid. Cole's mom, aptly portrayed by Toni Collette, believes the boy is suffering trauma as a result from her recent divorce. Thus, she takes the child to a psychologist, Malcolm Crowe (Bruce Willis), in an effort to help the boy.

It takes several sessions for Crowe to discover the real reason behind Cole's problems: he is able to view past events and can see and hear spirits. He's deeply affected by these visions, including "witnessing" hangings at his school which had been the site of a 19th-century prison. Crowe sets out to help the boy harness these abilities for good. If he can control what's happening to him, perhaps the child can come through this unscathed.

Filmed with a somewhat dream-like quality, the flick will move along too slowly for those looking for instant "spooky" gratification. However, the surprise ending delivers such a boffo slam, the audience won't be disappointed.

Both Willis and Osment give the performances of their lives. The boy in particular is breathtakingly talented. I would point out to you that he played Candice Bergen's son in the still-missed popular sitcom, "Murphy Brown." He also gave an outstanding performance a few years back on a "Walker: Texas Ranger" episode wherein he played a young boy dying of AIDS (infected through his drug-using mother). As for Willis, his performance is strong, steady and low-key, perfect for his character. I'd say it's his best work to date.

Don't miss this PG-13 flick. It's one of the best this summer.

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 10) A chapter of your life has ended, and a new one is beginning. The changes may make you nervous and somewhat irritable.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You are ready to tackle any new problem or learn any new lesson; you know how to ask questions.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Life is calm, and your path is smooth. In fact, it seems too smooth to be exciting; a bit of conflict would motivate you to achieve greater results.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You are inspired as a stand-up comedian, and the world is your open mike. Use your wit to make friends, not enemies.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You notice that the people around you seem controlled by outside forces. Although you are in control of your own fate, you are not sure which steps to take.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You are in a powerful position. You have enough resources to make the best decisions and enough charm to bring anyone over to your side.

LIBRA (September 22 to October 22) Keep your financial advice to yourself for now. Although others may not spend their money the same way you would, they have the right to make their own decisions.

SCORPIO (October 23 November 21) Enthusiastic participants are so much more productive than forced ones. Luckily for you, all your team members are willing and eager.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 December 21) As much as you might wish you could vent your frustrations, now is not the time to do so. The confidant you choose may not be as sympathetic as you think.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Let old habits and fears fall away in order to make yourself more streamlined. A new system is coming into play, and you want to work with it.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Spend some money on yourself and your loved ones. You work hard, and now is the perfect time to spoil yourself a bit.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Obsess a little on the state of your romantic life. You may conclude that there are changes to be made as soon as possible.

YOU BORN THIS WEEK: Originality and a dramatic flair distinguish not only your appearance, but your entire life. Perhaps you flaunt an odd hairstyle or some flashy foreign jewelry. Or maybe you have a gazebo in the backyard made entirely out of bamboo. Whatever the details are, the important fact is that you are absolutely one-of-a-kind.

Scott Deware Commended For Escape School Program

SCOTT DEWARE (fifth from right) New England coordinator for the SCI Escape School and president of the Deware Family Funeral Homes of Quincy, receives a commendation from the Navy Blue Angels flight demonstration team.

Scott Deware, New England coordinator for the SCI Escape School and president of The Deware Family Funeral Homes of Quincy, recently participated in the presentation of the nationally known SCI Escape School child abduction prevention program at the Brunswick Air Show in Brunswick, Maine.

During the weekend event the world famous Navy Blue Angels flight demonstration team commended Deware and the SCI Escape School for its efforts to help keep the nation's children safe.

The Escape School program was created to help children avoid being abducted and give them techniques to escape if abducted. The program has been presented throughout the U.S. and has been highlighted on many national TV shows including The Oprah Winfrey Show, Sally Jesse Raphael, Good Morning America and 48 Hours. It has also been featured in The New York Times and Parent Magazine as well as many local and national publications.

SCI Escape School is different than other programs because it teaches children to identify strangers not by what they look like, but how they act. The program also teaches that all the rules change in a dangerous situation.

"SCI Escape School is a wonderful way to teach children how to recognize potentially dangerous people and situations, and how to escape when they find themselves in places they should not be," said Deware. "One of the reasons abductors are so successful is that we don't teach our children how to get away from them. Our ignorance helps the abductor," he added.

SCI Escape School is sponsored nationally by neighborhood funeral homes and cemeteries affiliated with Service Corporation International (SCI). In the Quincy and South Shore area you can contact the Deware Funeral Home in Quincy.

The Escape School is offered as a free program - there is no cost to a community to host. The people who work at these SCI affiliated firms are concerned with the quality of life in their communities. As parents and grandparents themselves, they are dedicated to ensuring the safety and well-being of all children.

For additional information regarding SCI Escape School, including how to host a program, call the Deware Funeral Homes at (617) 472-1137 or the SCI Escape School at 1-800-9Caring.

HR Logic, Inc., a Professional Employer Organization (PEO), announces the appointment of Maria Tunnissen of North Quincy to the position of benefits specialist.

Established in 1997, HR Logic has grown substantially by capitalizing on small and mid-sized companies' growing need for human resources outsourcing.

As benefits specialist, Tunnissen will be responsible for administering all benefits plans and will serve as HR Logic employees' primary customer service point of contact. In this capacity, she will interpret and trouble shoot benefit-related issues. In addition, Tunnissen will develop future benefit plan offerings.

Prior to joining HR Logic, Tunnissen served as benefits coordinator for Andersen Consulting. She received her associates degree from Brooks College in Long Beach, CA and is currently enrolled in the Human Resources Certificate program at Bentley College in Waltham.

HR Logic, Inc., provides an integrated, cost-effective solution to human resources and benefits management.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known To Fail)

"Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herin you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. (Make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herin that you are my Mother. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3X). Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3X). Say this prayer 3 consecutive days. You must be published and it will be granted to you. H.R.H. 9/9

Hospital Has Free Emergency Pre-Registration Forms For Children

The Quincy Hospital Emergency Department is offering free pre-registration forms which allow the staff to take care of a child even if a parent isn't there to sign a consent form.

This involves filling out a form with the child's name, birth date, medical history, allergies or medical conditions, and any other information.

To request a free Quincy Hospital pre-registration form, call (617) 376-4016.

Lisa Barrett Cadet At Coast Guard Academy

Coast Guard Cadet Lisa M. Barrett, daughter of George E. and Debra J. Barrett of 609 Willard St., Quincy, recently enrolled as a cadet at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, New London, CT.

Barrett will undergo four years of study in engineering, mathematics, physical and marine sciences, management and government, Coast Guard history, military justice, marine biology, computer science, physics and a variety of elective courses leading to a baccalaureate degree.

She will also participate in summer on-the-job training, which gives her the opportunity to gain professional experience aboard Coast Guard vessels and at shore installations. Training cruises provide practical instruction in basic seamanship, navigation, ordnance, gunnery and communications.

Dr. Clifford Hersey New Presidential Assistant At ENC

Dr. Clifford B. Hersey of Quincy, former director of the Center for Academic Services at Eastern Nazarene College (ENC), has been appointed to a new position with the college as Assistant to the President for Communication and Public Relations.

Dr. Hersey will be supervising the efforts of the college in the areas of publications, public relations, alumni/ae affairs, electronic communications, and special events. For the next two years, an additional responsibility will include managing the college's centennial celebrations, due to begin in May of 2000 and proceed through the following year.

Dr. Hersey has been associated with the college since 1979, and has served various capacities in both administrative and teaching areas. He holds both the master of education and doctor of education degrees from Boston University, as well as a master of divinity degree from Nazarene Theological Seminary. He earned his BA degree from ENC in 1976.

DR. CLIFFORD HERSEY

In addition to his responsibilities with the college, Dr. Hersey serves as a parent representative to the School Reform Council at North Quincy High School, as well as serving as president of the trustee board for the Second Church in Dorchester.

He and his wife, Sue Hersey, a music teacher in the Quincy Public Schools, have two children, Janelle, 17, and Joshua, 13.

POOR CIRCULATION

Poor circulation, or Peripheral Vascular Disease, is a common condition seen by Podiatrists. Many people with poor circulation complain of their feet being cold all of the time and sometimes of cramping in the calf when walking or exercising. Due to the decrease in circulation getting to the feet, it is important to have good foot care.

Here are a few hints: Cut the nails straight across following the natural shape of the nail. Never cut out ingrown toenails. Never cut your own corns or calluses and never apply strong medications to remove them. Most importantly, if you have thick nails or nails that are difficult for you to cut, especially if you have poor circulation, see a Podiatrist for evaluation and treatment.

If you have been told by your doctor that you have poor circulation or you have any other problems related to your feet, contact a qualified podiatrist.

If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

GREGORY HANLEY

RUSSELL PATTEN

JOSEPH NEWTON

JAMES STAMOS

The nominations for the vacant ward council seats were nailed down Tuesday by Gregory Hanley and Russell C. Patten, III in Ward 1 and Joseph J. Newton and James Stamos in Ward 6.

Hanley and Newton topped the vote in their respective wards with Patten and Stamos taking the second spots.

The voter turnout was 24.9 percent in Ward 6 and 23.5 percent in Ward 1.

Voters will decide Nov. 2 which two of the four nominees will be the new ward councillors.

Peter Kolson vacated the Ward 1 seat after five terms to run for councillor at-large. Bruce Ayers is leaving the Ward 6 seat to devote more time to his duties as state representative.

The only preliminary election contests Tuesday were in Wards 1 and 6.

Hanley, 33, of Shed St., Germantown, a sales manager, led the five candidate field in Ward 1 with a vote of 830. Patten, 24, of Babcock St., Houghs Neck, a recent law school graduate, won the second nomination with a vote of 539.

In the third spot was William F. Weed, 48, of Curlew Rd., Adams Shore, a court officer with 374 votes.

Behind him were William P. Ryan, 46, of Mallard Rd., Adams Shore, an EMT, with 114 and Gretchen C. Grant, 70, of Bicknell St., Germantown, at home, with 53.

Holiday On Bonds Payments Will Also Help

New Federal Funding Sources Seen For Quincy Hospital

By CRAIG SALTERS

Mayor James Sheets announced Tuesday that Quincy's Congressional delegation has identified sources of federal funding for Quincy Hospital and has relayed that information to the State Legislature.

Sheets, who met last week with Senators Edward Kennedy and John Kerry and Congressman William Delahunt, received assurances that, before Congress breaks in November, it will pass legislation to remedy the problems created by the original BBA (Balanced Budget Act) which caused the extensive reduction of Medicare payments to Quincy Hospital.

"It will be a national fix," Sheets said, estimating the amount of funding available from $7.5 billion to $20 billion. The actual amount, Sheets said, is difficult to quantify because Congress is still debating which programs will or will not be funded, but Sheets said that "the fixes will occur in those areas that impacted Quincy Hospital."

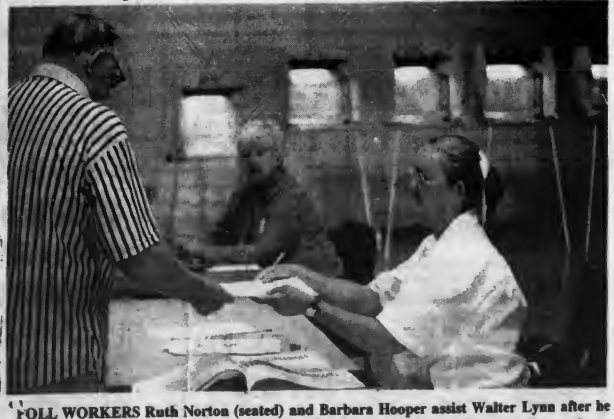
In the meantime, with Quincy Hospital perilously close to it Oct. 1 deadline to affiliate with Boston Medical Center or shut down, Mayor Sheets announced that Quincy has an "interim funding piece" in place to substitute for the federal funding which would not be available for at least 10 to 12 weeks.

The interim funding will come from money saved by Quincy not having to pay either the principal or the interest on the city's bonds. The exemption will be in effect on a month to month basis and end after the arrival of federal funds. The money saved would have to be paid back but gives Quincy the flexibility to give extra funding to Quincy Hospital until federal relief arrives.

Sheets emphasized that the relief from bond payments was separate from any other form of federal assistance and that it was already in place. "It's in writing," Sheets said.

As for the long-term future of Quincy Hospital, Sheets says that state funding is still essential and that he was eager to see how the State Legislature, most notably House Ways and Means Chairman Paul Haley and Speaker of the House Thomas Finneran, evaluate the new information.



"It's wait and see," said Sheets, who added that he has spent the last two weeks "totally involved" in the hospital's situation.

Although Sheets sees the word from Washington D.C. and the interim funding piece as good news, the uncertainty of the Legislature and the looming deadline make the situation too close to call.

"It's crunchtime" said Sheets.

Quincy, Weymouth Team To Protect Against Lead Paint

KICKING OFF the Quincy-Weymouth Lead Paint Safety Initiative (LPSI) are (from left): Normand Grenier, Director of Neighborhood Housing Services; Jane Gallahue, health commissioner; Juan Evereteze, HUD community builder; Richard Meade, director of the Quincy Planning Department; John Parnaby, Weymouth housing coordinator; Nicole Medeiros, program manager; Susan Kay, vice-chairman of the Weymouth Board of Selectmen; and Angelito Santos, principal planner. HUD's $2,000,000 grant allows the Quincy-Weymouth Consortium to implement its plan of lead education, training, blood screening, and the deleading of 120 homes over three years.

By CRAIG SALTERS

Quincy and Weymouth are teaming up to give their children a future free from the dangers of lead paint poisoning.

Mayor James Sheets, Weymouth and Quincy officials, and HUD Community Builder Juan Evereteze spoke at a kick-off event Monday announcing the Quincy-Weymouth Consortium's Lead Paint Safety Initiative (LPSI).

LPSI is a joint effort by the City of Quincy, Town of Weymouth and Neighborhood Housing Services to protect children from the dangers of lead poisoning through education and outreach, free blood screenings and deleading services.

LPSI is a result of the $2,000,000 in Lead-Based Hazard Control grant funds awarded to the Quincy-Weymouth Consortium in February of 1999 by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. Lead Paint Hazard Control was established by Title X of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992 (Public Law 102-550). The mission of this program is to "reduce the exposure of young children to lead-based paint hazards in their homes." LPSI is also being funded through the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG), HOME and private funds.

Quincy was one of only 3 Massachusetts communities to receive funding.

Calling lead poisoning "a silent killer," Mayor Sheets said that one of Quincy's particular challenges will be alerting the Asian community to the dangers of lead and the options available to them. Sheets said that, besides the communication barrier, some immigrants have very different views of authority, police, and home inspection. John Chen, ombudsman for human services, will act as the program's interpreter and liaison.

Over the next 3 years, LPSI will undertake four major activities. The first activity is to complete lead abatement in as many housing units in Quincy and Weymouth as the budget will allow. The program will provide homeowners and investors in Quincy and Weymouth with funding assistance (0-3% loans) for lead abatement, based on the household income of the occupied unit. The program will be administered by the Quincy Office of Housing Rehabilitation, the Weymouth Office of Planning and Community Development and Neighborhood Housing Services. Free services being offered to applicants include work write-ups, bidding/selection of contractors, preparation of contractor agreements and tenant relocation services.

Angelino Santos, principal planner, said that, before the LPSI, deleading services were "fragmented, sporadic, and not the least coordinated." Santos said that where Quincy usually deleaded 5 homes every year, the new goal is to delead 120 homes in the Quincy-Weymouth area within the next three years. Richard Meade, director of planning, praised Santos for his leadership in the grant writing and funding process.

Normand Grenier, QNHS director, was also impressed that the program worked with home and apartment owners and not against them. "You can afford to delead your house because we'll delead it for you; we'll give you a loan and you only have to pay it back when you sell the house."

It is estimated that 3/4 of housing stock built before the 1978 prohibition of lead paint contains the toxic metal.

Many property owners are unaware of the dangers presented by deteriorating lead based paint and lead contaminated dust. Childhood exposure to lead can cause permanent damage to the nervous system and widespread health problems. Lead induced health problems include reduced intelligence and attention span, hearing loss, stunted growth, reading and learning problems, and behavior difficulties.

To increase public awareness on these risks future plans include: participation in the National Campaign for Childhood Lead Poisoning Prevention Week, seminars for property owners and managers of rental housing, seminars for consumers involved in home renovations and repair projects, newsletters and the production of an educational video on the dangers of lead. LPSI is also putting together a resource library with valuable information for contractors, homeowners, parents and investors.

Topics include reducing lead hazards in home improvement, preventing lead poisoning in children, testing for lead paint, changes in Lead Law legislation, encapsulation and interim control.

The third major activity focuses on blood screening. Working with the Quincy Department of Public Health, LPSI will reinforce the importance of regular lead testing and frequent lead testing for children who are considered high risk by targeting outreach efforts to day cares and pediatric health care providers. Additionally, free blood screenings will be offered at the Quincy Department of Public Health. For more information on blood screenings, call 376-1286.

The fourth activity involves the creation of training and employment opportunities in lead abatement. Working with the South Coastal Career Development Administration and other public agencies, as well as private industry, LPSI seeks to create new jobs and increase the number of certified deleading contractors, supervisors and workers.

Richard Meade ended the event by quoting Margaret Sauer, leader of the National Union of Parents Against Lead: "Our precious youth must no longer remain our lead detectors. We must find the lead before it finds our children."

Although the City of Quincy and the Town of Weymouth have collaborated in the past, this is the first time that the two communities will work closely to plan and implement a common program. Without a doubt, the Quincy-Weymouth Lead Paint Safety Initiative will be instrumental in protecting children from the hazards of lead poisoning.

More information about LPSI can be obtained from the program manager, Nicole Medeiros, by calling (617) 376-1167.

Several Hundred Deliver Message To State House

Now They Know How Much Our Hospital Means To Us

If legislator didn't know how much Quincy Hospital means to Quincy, they do now.

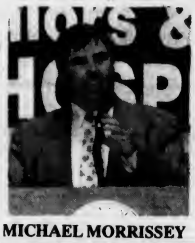
The message was delivered to the State House Friday. Not by telegram, or telephone but by "telepeople"--several hundred of them in person.

Senior citizens, city officials, representatives from the city's Asian community, doctors, nurses, and other residents descended united on Beacon Hill as heavy rains fell.

They moved inside and filled Great Hall urging state officials to approve a badly needed $12.1 million to help keep Quincy Hospital open.

They carried such signs reading: "Save Quincy Hospital", and "Quincy Hospital Equals Quality Care," and "Quincy Seniors & Kids Need A Hospital." And chanted, "Do The Right Thing!"

They appealed to the legislature to restore the $12.1 million in state aid submitted in a deficiency budget by Gov. Paul Cellucci cut recently by the legislature.



"We've come here to ask for one of the basic principles of our country--health care," said City Council President Peter Kolson.

"How do you tell someone in Houghs Neck or Wollaston when they are having a heart attack that they're going to South Shore Hospital?"

City Councillor Francis McCauley, after whom the McCauley Building at the hospital is named, and who is chairman of the Council's Hospital Committee, said he has been working for nearly two years on the hospital problem.

He stressed that the city has made a strong financial commitment to the hospital but that state and federal assistance is necessary.

Harvest Food Demonstration At Farmers' Market

Quincy Farmers' Market will host fall harvest food demonstration by University of Massachusetts Extension Nutritionists Friday at 1 p.m. at the John Hancock Municipal Parking lot, across from the Court House.

Consumers have an opportunity to meet and talk with Kirsten Johnson, nutritionist with the University of Massachusetts Extension. Recipes and sampling using seasonal vegetable will be available after the demonstration.

"Each Friday, a quick stop on the way home provides the opportunity for people working or shopping in Quincy Center to purchase nice fresh produce from local farmers. This Friday, fresh produce enthusiasts will have to visit the Hancock Lot location just a bit earlier in order to catch the special demonstration," said Maralin Manning, executive director of Quincy Center Business & Professional Association.

At this time of the season there is a full array of vegetables and fruit, pumpkins, indian corn, garden mums, herbs, perennials, many varieties of winter squash and apples, potatoes, onions, sweet potatoes, cranberries, tomatoes, string beans, cabbage, eggplant, winter pears, and dry-flower wreaths for home and gift giving.

September and October are ideal months to stock up on vitamin-rich winter squash, potatoes, onions, winter pears and apples for later use for the Thanksgiving feast.

Quincy Farmers' Market will continue through October, Fridays from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Families with the Massachusetts Farmers' Market Coupons should redeem them now while the supply of produce is plentiful. Coupons expire in October.

Political Batting Averages

When it comes to political batting averages, you'd have to say that four of the councillors running at-large this year have some impressive stats.

The scoreboard lists three of them as incumbents: Tim Cahill, Paul Harold and Frank McCauley.

CAHILL

HAROLD

The fourth, Peter Kolson, gets an asterick. He technically is not an at-large incumbent. He's a Ward 1 incumbent, but is leaving that seat, hoping to turn it in for an at-large one.

McCAULEY

KOLSON

Anyway, the stats on the four are pretty interesting.

Kolson is the only one of the four who hasn't lost an election. He has won five--all of them for the Ward 1 seat--for a perfect winning percentage of 1000.

But, he has run the fewest times.

Cahill has a record of 7 wins and 1 loss for 87.5 percent. His only loss was his first councillor at-large bid in 1981.

Harold has gone to the ballot box 14 times, winning 11 and losing 3 for a 78.6 percentage. His losses: Ward 1 (his first run in 1973), state representative and Congress.

McCauley has run 15 times, winning 12 and losing 3 for an 80 percent mark. His three losses: twice for councillor at-large and once for state representative.

The four together have been in 42 political battles, winning 35 and losing 7 for an 83.3 percent average.

The four have a combined 69 years of political service: McCauley, 26, Harold, 21, Cahill, 12, and Kolson, 10.

Since 1961, after Quincy returned to the present Plan A form of government following a stormy marriage to Plan E, there have been 19 city elections.

Of the 45 incumbent councillors at-large seeking re-election since then, only three have been defeated, giving incumbents a winning percentage of 93.3 percent.

Quite impressive.

JOE FINN would probably find those figures interesting but it's doubtful they would faze him.

FINN

Finn, former executive director of Father Bill's Place, is making his first run for office as a councillor at-large candidate against that formidable lineup.

He got in, knowing he was a virtual unknown underdog and had his work cut out for him. But working he has been doing, knocking on doors and getting around meeting people.

Some observers think the fact there was no preliminary contest for councillor at-large has helped him. It has given him extra time while the campaign trail was quiet to get around and get better known.

It will be interesting to see how big a vote he pulls as a first-time candidate. And what effect he will have on the other candidates.

Some see him as a possible "spoiler." Others as a possible long-shot winner.

Incidentally, he has a fundraiser coming up Tuesday, Sept. 21, 5:30 to 8 p.m. at Raffael's Restaurant, 1 Enterprise Drive, North Quincy. Suggested donation: $50.

A REMINDER from City Clerk Joseph Shea: if you're not a registered voter and want to vote in the final city election Nov. 2, you have until Wednesday, Oct. 13 to become eligible.

SHEA

The Election Department at City Hall will be open until 8 p.m. that night. But you can register during regular City Hall working hours until then.

And, the last chance to apply for an absentee ballot for that election is Monday, Nov. 1 at 12 noon.

BILL DRAICCHIO is feeling a little older this school year.

DRAICCHIO

Draicchio, now a member of the Board of Voter Registrars, was well known as "Officer Bill" when he was with the Quincy Police Department.

For over 30 years before his retirement in 1989 he controlled the traffic at the busy intersection of Washington St. and Southern Artery in Quincy Point.

And during those years, safely crossed youngsters going to the old Pollard Elementary School and St. Joseph's parochial school.

Reason he is feeling older:

Two of those youngsters he crossed in the 1960's are now middle school principals: Anne Marie (Burroughs) Zukauskas who sent to St. Joseph's is principal of Broad Meadows and Jim McGuire, who went to Pollard, is principal of the new Point Webster School.

"I remember both of them," Draicchio says. "They were good little kids. But I never dreamed I was crossing two future school principals."

MILESTONE: Former School Committeeman Charles Sweeny turned a young 83 Tuesday and put in a full day's work at the preliminary election as a member of the Board of Voter Registrars.

SWEENY

Charlie, who served on the School Committee 22 years, stays in good physical shape walking daily at the South Shore Plaza at 7 a.m. and playing golf.

And he keeps his mind sharp faithfully watching Jeopardy on TV, correctly answering most of the questions. And counting up his winnings at Foxwood's.

And, of course, spinning around town in his apple candy red convertible also keeps him young at heart.

Betty, his better half, says: "He's really one in a million. Well, at least one in a half-million. I'll keep him."

But she says if anyone is thinking of giving him a carton of cigarettes as a gift, make it an empty carton.

Happy birthday, kid!

It's not just the alcohol in drinks that can bring on a hangover. Most alcoholic drinks contain substances called congeners for color and flavor. The congeners in brandy, bourbon and red wines are believed to be the biggest "hangover potential."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1907 postcard view of the square at the end of Sea Street in Houghs Neck. The Quincy Yacht Club in the distant right center is the only thing that survives today. And that was later moved out over the water so that it would be behind the tree on the right.

This popular summer resort area could be reached by a four-mile trolley car ride from the Quincy railroad depot or by steamboats from Boston that ran every few hours to the landing near the yacht club.

Quincy Does It Again For MDA

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The people of Quincy have done it again! They really pulled for us this year and helped make the 1999 Jerry Lewis MDA Telethon a winner with $53.1 million in pledges and contributions!

By taking part in local MDA events, by calling in pledges to the Telethon broadcast on WCVB-TV, Channel 5, by helping "my kids" in other ways, The Quincy Sun readers have made a huge difference for families throughout Massachusetts and across the nation.

They've helped speed MDA-funded research at Beth Israel, Children's Hospital, Harvard Medical School and Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, other area institutions and around the globe. Moreover, they've helped maintain the national network of clinics that resulted in MDA becoming the first organization honored by the American Medical Association with a Lifetime Achievement Award "for significant and lasting contributions to the health and welfare of humanity." In Massachusetts MDA has nine clinics offering the best in patient care.

For making the 1999 MDA Telethon a bell-ringer, thanks, Quincy!

Teach Children To Lead A Long, Healthy Life

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Both at home and in school, we teach our children many things. We teach them to say "please" and "thank you," to look both ways before crossing the street, and to respect the property of others. But what about health? As school begins, let's not forget that one of the most important things our children can learn is to make choices that can lead to long and health life.

The Carnegie Foundation Report on Secondary Education in America states, "No knowledge is more crucial than knowledge about health. Without it, no other life goal can be successfully achieved." That's why the American Cancer Society supports comprehensive school health education in order to teach our children ways to stay healthy.

Many habits that can lead to cancer and other diseases begin early in life, including tobacco use, lack of nutrition, and poor exercise. For example, did you know that as few as four cigarettes can addict a young child, and that approximately 70 percent of addicted children who smoke will become addicted adult who smoke? More than 90 percent of all smokers begin smoking before age 18, and 50 percent before age 15. To change those statistics, tobacco education in our schools is absolutely necessary.

In addition, the American Cancer Society recommends that students be taught about:

- Proper nutrition, especially as it relates to disease prevention;
- Sun exposure and its relation to skin cancer;
- Benefits of regular physical exercise;
- Mental and emotional health;
- Family life;
- Personal, community, consumer, and environmental health;
- Injury prevention and safety; and
- Ways to access appropriate health information.

The American Medical Association and National Association of State Boards of education have issued a warning: "For the first time in the history of this country, young people are less healthy and less prepared to take their places in society than were their parents." Yet only about 5 percent of all schools in this country include comprehensive school health education.

Please make an investment in your children and their future. As school begins this September, talk to teachers, principals, and school committee members. Learn what is being taught in your schools. Then teach them about the importance of supporting comprehensive school health education. We'll all be healthier for it.

Storm Damage Worst Since '38 Hurricane

Sept. 16 - 22
1950
49 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

A near hurricane storm packing gale winds of up to 68 m.p.h. whacked Quincy and the region, making it the most costly since the historic '38 hurricane.

City Manager William Deegan said the city was still totaling the cost of road damage and trees destroyed, but expected it would exceed $100,000. Loss to yachtsmen was pegged at $75,000.

Customers of the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company lost service for one to 1/1/2 hours at the height of the storm. At high tide, both Houghs Neck and Squantum were cut off from the city.

At the shipyard, the trial cruise of the S.S. Caprimas, the last of a 10 tanker contract, had to be postponed.

111 MORE COMICS 'BANNED'

Police Chief Joseph Hughes sent a letter to magazine distributors with an additional 111 comic book titles that were found objectionable by the city's Comic Book Review Committee. They were generally of the crime and horror variety.

Chief Hughes was chairman of the committee whose membership included Rev. Joseph Parkman, Mrs. Ida Glasser and Mrs. Kathryn Quinn.

PUBLIC INVITED TO SHIPYARD LAUNCHING

For the first time since the 1941 launching of the USS Massachusetts, the public was invited to the Fore River Shipyard for the launching of the S.S. Constitution.

The 30,000 ton Constitution was built for the American Export Lines and was a sister ship to the S.S. Independence. It was 683 feet long and could transport 1,000 passengers.

QUINCY-ISMS

Boston Mayor John Hynes laid the cornerstone at Moon Island for the two and a half million dollar Long Island Bridge. Following the ceremonies he promised City Manager Deegan that he would meet concerning the problems of Squaw Rock, owned by Boston, but located in Quincy... Mrs. Norman Miller of Cedar St., the mother of two, made history this week by becoming the city's first female juror. She was one of 35 women jurors called for jury duty at the federal court in Boston... QHS graduate, Reay Sterling, Jr., of Moreland Rd., began classes at Cornell University... Arthur Morrissey was a member of North Quincy High School's first class reunion... Rev. William O'Connor, pastor of St. Margaret's Mary Church in Westwood, replaced Rev. Jayne's Super Salad

. Our granddaughter Stacey who lives in Bath. Maine, couldn't believe I had not prepared the delicious salad for today's recipe. Her friend Jayne made it for her and she quickly sent it to me in the mail.

This easy recipe calls for fresh corn and tomatoes (which are plentiful at this time), but Stacey said you can also use frozen corn.

Corn, Tomato Salad

8-10 ears of fresh corn (uncooked)
6-8 plum tomatoes (cubed)
1 tablespoon fresh basil (chopped) garlic powder, salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons olive oil

The first thing you have to do is trim the corn kernels with whatever utensil you prefer.

In the hot oil, saute the corn and tomatoes for a couple of minutes. Add the basil, garlic powder and season to taste.

Chill for about a half hour to 45 minutes. It's colorful, tasty and can be made the day before.

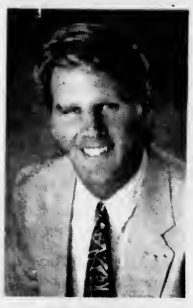
Cleared Of Conflict In Court

Cahill Hopes Ethics Commission Comes To Same Conclusion



City Councillor Tim Cahill, cleared of a criminal conflict of interest charge involving the proposed controversial Highpoint development, is now waiting to hear from the Massachusetts Ethics Commission on their civil investigation.

"I am waiting to hear from the Ethics Commission to see if they are going forward in their investigation." Cahill said. "I have not been notified that they are."

Cahill said he was informed last spring that the commission was looking into the matter and were interviewing people, including members of his family. But, he said, we have not heard anything since.

Cahill said he hopes the commission will come to the same conclusion as the Plymouth District Attorney's office which decided last week not to prosecute the criminal complaint brought by the South Shore Building Trades Council.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Patrick Bomberg told Judge Mark Coven in Quincy District Court last thursday that his office would no longer further investigate the charge "in the interests of justice."

TIM CAHILL

"Now I hope I can focus on my campaign for re-election to the city council," Cahill said. "This thing has taken a lot of my time."

Commenting on the court action, Mayor James Sheets said, "Those charges never should have been filed. Tim Cahill was just taking a stand for the people of West Quincy, representing their best interests."

Building Trades Council President Thomas MacKay had brought the complaint alleging Cahill was in conflict when he took part in city council discussions and voted on the Highpoint matter because members of his family own property nearby the Quarry St. site.

The Plymouth County District Attorney office handled the case in Quincy District Court instead of Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Keating's office because Cahill is also a Norfolk County treasurer.

"I feel vindicated," said Cahill. The district attorney's office came to their conclusion based on facts.

"I hope the Ethics Commission sees it the same way."

Cahill said, however, "If the commission finds against me, I would fight it all the way. I feel I have violated no ethics.

Cahill said he expects to be deposed within a week or two in the suit developer Dean Stratouly has brought against the city for the city council rejecting the 1,241 unit plan that included 991 luxury apartments and 250 assisted living facility units.

The Zoning Board is now reviewing a 1,641-unit subsidized housing version of the proposed development.

Voting against the development in addition to Cahill were Council President Peter Kolson, Patrick McDermott, Michael D'Amico, Stephen Durkin, Bruce Ayers and Paul Harold.

Councillor Frank McCauley voted for it. Councillor Daniel Raymondi dissqualified himself from participation in the discussions and did not vote because he owns property in the Highpoint site area.

LIVING TO 120?

Not too long ago, it was revealed that mice who received the hormone called melatonin lived to the human-equivalent age of 115 years. What is more, they seemed to retain all the heath and vigor of youth to their final days. In the days since this revelation in 1995, scientists have debated whether this life-extending effect was transferrable to humans. And, for a while, many turned to melatonin as an elixir capable of helping us realize the biological limit of life for our species. Whether melatonin is capable of producing such results or not, it is important to note that science is closer than ever before to discovering the exact mechanism by which we age.

Taking care of yourself by eating right, exercising and making sure you stay connected to those who care about you are the best things you can do to extend your life. Marina Place, a senior living residence, at Four Seaport Drive, we offer assisted living for seniors. Our staff is highly trained and helpful, our setting is simply lovely, and we have the experience to address the changing needs of seniors. Phone: 617-770-3264.

P.S. Gerontologists are particularly interested in the Human Genome Project, which promises to reveal every detail of human biology.

CITIZENS' BANK employees (from left) Christine Ranieri, Rebecca Bicknell, Terry Bellotti-Welch, Bonnie Schwerin and Donnarae Mollica sit before the "sneakers" they have sold to help raise money for the second annual Marie Curry Walk. Citizens Bank is a "rose sponsor" of the event which raises money to provide free mammography screenings for uninsured women. For more information about the walk, call (617) 376-5495.

Starts 9:30 A.M At City Hall

Second Marie Curry Walk Steps Off Sunday

The second annual Marie Curry Walk to fight breast cancer will step off from in front of City Hall Sunday at 9:30 a.m.

Several hundred individuals, families and friends are expected to participate in the five-mile walk, hoping to top the nearly $90,000 raised last year.

The money, which goes to the Marie A. Curry Fund, has already provided more than 200 free mammograms at Quincy Hospital for women without insurance.

Registration for Sunday's walk will start at 8 a.m. at City Hall. A reception following the walk will be held at The Summer House at Marina Bay.

The walk is planned by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Quincy Hospital Health & Education Foundation.

Citizens Bank and Quarry Hills Associates are the major co-sponsors for the event.

In addition to needed money, the walk helps raise awareness about the early detection of breast cancer. It is hoped in the near future the fund will be able to expand services to individuals needing cancer related services.

Mayor James Sheets is honorary chairman of the walk. Members of the Curry family, Robert, Cheryle, Julie, Sean and Tara are co-chairing the event.

Members of the committee include Joann Sheets, the city's First Lady, and the wives of five former mayors: Patricia Hannon, Louise LaRaia, Sandra McCauley, Sheila McIntyre, and Shirley Tobin.

The committee also includes members of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women:

Maureen Ayers, Nancy Callanan, Karen Donnellan, Judith Farmer, Lois Ferrazzi, Jean Leslie, Maureen McGuire, Mary Lou Meighan, Pauline Petipas, Susan Ramey, Sr. Joanne Westwater and Barbara Wood.

Community representatives on the committee include: Terry Bellotti-Welch, Marti Carni, Maralin Manning, Joanne Nelson, Robert and Gloria Noble, John Noonan, Claudia Rasmussen and Susan Rossini.

Quincy Hospital representatives are: Renee Buisson, Tamara Erdley, Amanda Le, Dr. Delphine Lui, Maryrose Mirick, Judy Morris and Jean Parker.

For more information call (617) 376-5495.

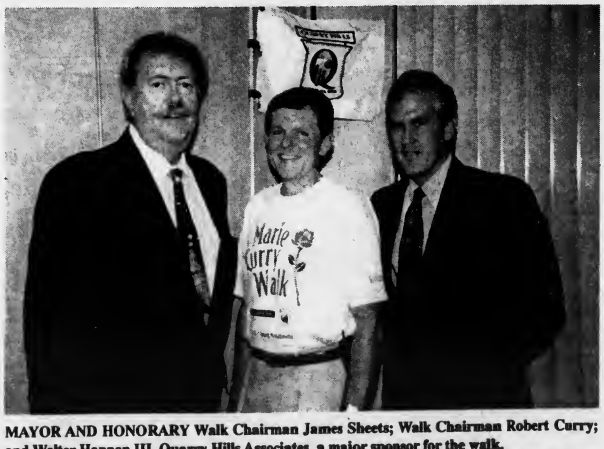
She Has A Special Reason To Walk Sunday

Julianne Coleman Caporale of Sharon Rd., plans to walk the five-mile Marie Curry Walk Sunday in special memory of her mother in-law.

Her husband, Francis Caporale, explains why in this letter to The Sun:

"I am writing this to you for possible publication in your newspaper."

"My wife, Julianne Coleman Caporale, has decided to walk the Marie Curry Walk on Sept. 19, in memory of my mother, Claire Caporale. She has made up flyers and has mailed them to family and friends. She has decided to do this because she considers my mother to be a very strong courageous woman who lost her battle with various illnesses (she also had breast cancer) four years ago at Quincy Hospital.



"My mother was a life long resident of Quincy and loved Quincy Hospital. Nine months after my mother passed away, my wife gave birth to our son, Andrew. A child we had hoped to of had while my mother was alive - but unfortunately it wasn't until my mother gave up her life that we were able to have a child.

"My wife is having major surgery in a month (and dealing with medical issues of her own) or so, but decided she still wants to do this walk in memory of my mother.

"I think my wife is very special and strong herself to want to do this."

SEAN AND BOB CURRY of Curry Ace Hardware and Maryrose Mirick and Jean Parker of the Quincy Hospital Health & Education Foundation amid "sneakers" being sold to raise money for the second annual Marie Curry Walk. The sneakers, which are $1 each, are being sold at hundreds of participating businesses throughout Quincy. The Walk will take place Sunday, Sept. 19 in Quincy. Last year's Walk raised nearly $90,000 for the Marie A. Curry Fund at Quincy Hospital, which provides free mammography screenings for uninsured women. For more information about participating in the Walk, call (617) 376-5495.

CoastSweep Clean-Up Saturday At Wollaston Beach

The Ward 5 Community Association will lead the local CoastSweep effort at Wollaston Beach Saturday, Sept. 18.

Volunteers interested in helping are asked to report to the front of the Wollaston Yacht Club at 9:30 a.m.

CoastSweep volunteers will be asked to pick up debris from the beach area and participate in the Ward 5 Community Association's ongoing, educational storm-drain stenciling effort.

The 12th annual statewide CoastSweep is organized by the Massachusetts Coastal Zone Management (MCZM). Last year nearly 5,000 volunteers participated at over 130 locations to clear 140,000 pounds of trash and marine debris from beaches and coastal areas.

At Wollaston Beach last year, more than 50 people helped with cleaning the beach and stenciling "Don't Dump-Drains to Wollaston Beach" on local storm-drains.

CoastSweep volunteers are also asked to record the types of debris cleaned by filling out an index card provided by MCZM. The information is gathered and compiled to formulate solutions to marine debris problems based on the potential sources identified.

For more information on the Wollaston Beach CoastSweep, please call Ward 5 Community Association Doug Gutro at (617) 328-7982.

Frank Avruch To Speak At Seniors Program Sept. 28

CANCER TALK WITH TANIA LINGOS, MD

Reducing the Risk of Esophageal Cancer

It is within our power to reduce the risk of many cancers. Frequently, an unhealthy lifestyle can give rise to cancer. A recent study by the Harvard School of Public Health found that smoking, diet, and lack of exercise caused a majority of deaths from cancer.

Esophageal cancer presents a case in point. The esophagus is the tube that transports food and liquid from the throat to the stomach. In many cases, esophageal cancer, which strikes about 15,000 Americans every year, is related to lifestyle choices.

In particular, the disease is linked to the abuse of tobacco (both smoking and chewing) and the heavy consumption of alcohol. Smokers and drinkers are at risk. Those who abuse both alcohol and tobacco run an increased risk of developing esophageal cancer.

Barrett's condition, that is long-term heartburn or acid reflux, recently has been found to be a risk factor for the disease. Damaging to the esophageal tissue, Barrett's condition is deemed pre-cancerous. It should be monitored closely, and treated aggressively to minimize the risk. If you suffer from chronic heartburn, you should follow-up with your physician.

People who constantly gulp burning-hot beverages are also at risk. The same applies to those who consume large quantities of smoked or salt-cured products. Excessive weight can add to the risk of esophageal cancer.

With these risks identified, we have more ability to prevent esophageal cancer than we might suspect. A change in lifestyle can help to reduce the risk of esophageal and other cancers. To give yourself that edge:

- Do not smoke or chew tobacco.
- If you drink alcohol, do so in moderation.
- Exercise and keep your weight down.
- Stay alert for digestive problems and get proper treatment for them.
- Eat plenty of fruit and vegetables.

Prevention is always preferable to a cure. This is especially so in regard to esophageal cancer. While treatable, the disease is rarely curable. Next week, I will discuss the symptoms of esophageal cancer and some treatment possibilities.

1. Thanks to the new Massachusetts Enhanced Emissions & Safety Test, how many tons of pollution will be removed from the air over our state every day?

a. 12 tons
b. 24 tons
c. 60 tons
d. 120 tons

2. Let's say your vehicle is due for an Enhanced Emissions & Safety Test. When is the best time to go?

a. Any Tuesday around 1:17 a.m.
b. The last week of the month like everyone else
c. Let me check with the Psychic Friends Connection
d. Early to mid-month

3. What happens to air pollution when it rains?

a. It gets wet
b. It comes back to earth and seeps into the soil
c. It comes back to earth and runs off into lakes, streams and other bodies of water
d. b and c

4. While the safety portion of the Enhanced Emissions & Safety Test is conducted every year, how often do you have to get a biennial emissions test?

a. Every other year
b. Whenever you get a hankering
c. The second Tuesday in November
d. Every month that has an "R" in its name

5. What is the one thing you can do to make sure you pass the Enhanced Emissions & Safety Test?

a. Keep your vehicle properly maintained

6. Air pollution has a negative effect on the health of

a. Children
b. The elderly
c. People who work outdoors
d. All Massachusetts residents

ENHANCED EMISSIONS & SAFETY TEST
Coming October 1

If you want to know about the upcoming enhanced emissions test, take this simple quiz.

To locate a licensed testing station, or for more information, call toll-free, 1-877-387-8234 or visit http://vehicletest.state.ma.us.

ANSWERS: 1.d. Air pollution will be decreased by 120 tons a day. States with similar emissions testing have seen a 25% decrease in air pollution from vehicles. 2.d. To avoid waiting in line, don't wait until the end of the month to have your vehicle tested. 3.d. When it rains, air pollution returns to earth to become soil and water pollution. 4.a. Because the new emissions test is better and more comprehensive, you only have to take the test every other year. The safety test, however, is still required annually. 5.a. Keep your car properly cared for and the test should be a snap. 6.d. No one in the Commonwealth benefits from air pollution, and it's toughest on our children, the elderly and those who work outdoors.

Raymondi Says Seniors Need Protection Against Future Rent Increases

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

"If the city or state doesn't take action, or if a new owner decides to do something, the rents of those living in low-cost apartments will increase forcing senior citizens out of their homes." said Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi.

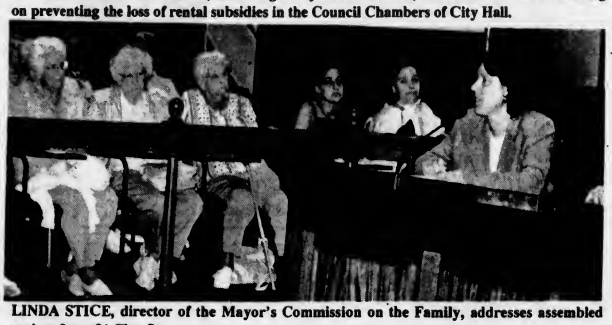
At a city council hearing held last week and attended by 150 persons at city hall, Raymondi, in order to "increase public awareness on the issue" introduced a petition for the general election in November that asks voters whether they approve of the limited form of rent control to protect low-cost apartments for seniors.

Raymondi said that last year Gov. Paul Cellucci vetoed a bill similar to the one currently up for debate.

Later this month, the city council will vote on a home rule petition designed to prevent the loss of rental subsidies for those living in places like Wollaston Manor and prevent landlords from canceling their contracts with the Section 8 voucher program.

Raymondi singled out 91 Clay St. which he said "may have already paid up their mortgage" as "not making a commitment" as yet.

In November, voters will be able to vote on the ballot question that reads as follows: Shall an act passed by the General Court entitled "An Act Authorizing Localities to Adopt Protection for Low and Moderate Income Tenants and Units of Governmentally Involved Housing "be accepted?"



Raymondi said that even though it is a non-binding referendum and carries no legal weight, it will "tell the legislature that the people of Quincy want this bill to pass". He further stated that it was a "public policy issue making sure we're doing everything we can to protect the seniors."

Raymondi said at the present time, there are "no signed documents with tenants or tenant associations" that could protect them against the policy.

He said several of the private owners of housing have stated that they have no intention of paying off their morgage ahead of time, but he noted "nothing is in writing."

AN ESTIMATED 150 citizens, including many senior citizens, attended last week's hearing on preventing the loss of rental subsidies in the Council Chambers of City Hall.

LINDA STICE, director of the Mayor's Commission on the Family, addresses assembled seniors from 91 Clay St.

Police, Schools Enter Information Partnership

The Quincy Public Schools and the Quincy Police Department have entered into an information-sharing partnership entitled SUCCESS (Schools United with Community Cops Ensuring School Success) in a united effort to promote school attendance and success.

Under the program, school officials provide Quincy Community Police Officers with information pertaining to attendance, suspensions, and other issues. In turn, Quincy Police officers provide Quincy Public Schools with information concerning any student charges of weapons possession, assault of a staff member, or possession or sale of a controlled substance (Massachusetts General Law allows the sharing of this information).

Janet Powell, Director of Pupil Personnel Services, emphasized the "very judicious" use of this information, saying that the information would be used "only on a need-to-know basis for the purpose of keeping the school safe."

"The school sharing is with parent knowledge and parent permission," Powell stressed. "This is to assist and support the parent in getting their child on track."

Powell said that many parents of troubled children feel frustrated and that this new program is a way for the community to pull together to support the role of the parent.

Under the program, school officials and community police officers work proactively to build a relationship with a troubled student before things get out of hand. The Pupil Personnel Team, composed of a school's principal, assistant principal, psychologist, counselor, school nurse, special education teacher, and a supervisor of attendance, meet weekly to discuss any troubling student behavior. They may decide to refer a student to the program, at which time a permission letter would go out to the student's parents. After that, a community police officer would be assigned to the student and would make occasional visits to the school or home to monitor the student's progress.

"We know of no other program of its kind," Powell said. "This provides "eyes and ears" to school personnel well beyond the school day."

Erin Lynch, a juvenile probation officer at Quincy court, called the program "an attempt for our community to wrap its arms around our troubled youth."

According to Powell, the plan was presented to the School Committee Sept. 8 and received unanimous endorsement and has been endorsed by Mayor Sheets, Supt. Gene Creedon, Chief of Police Thomas Frane, and First Judge of Norfolk County Juvenile Court Mary McCallum.

School and Police officials are also seeking CORI clearance from the state to obtain limited access to CORI arrests of juveniles under the age of 22. Currently Worcester is the only city to have received CORI clearance.

Lt. William O. Stenmon of Q.P.D.'s Community Policing program will act as Project SUCCESS liaison.

Ken McPhee, newly appointed coordinator of the Quincy Public Schools, will be working closely with the school principals on this issue, possibly as the Superintendent's designate.

TARSAL TUNNEL SYNDROME

Tarsal tunnel syndrome (TTS) is a rare cause of foot pain and numbness in the sole. Symptoms are worse in the evenings after activity. Obesity and any underlying, more generalized nerve disorder (polyneuropathy) will aggravate the condition. When the posterior tibial nerve is tapped at the affected site - inside of the ankle just below the bony prominence - the patient feels an electric like "zinger." When TTS is suspected, electrodiagnostic testing can confirm the diagnosis. TTS may resolve itself spontaneously and non-surgical treatments are not as effective as they are with carpal tunnel syndrome. For these reasons, doctors may suggest a "wait and see" period when TTS is diagnosed. Treating the symptoms may involve weight loss, treating any polyneuropathy, orthotics or surgery.

When you first visit our office because you are experiencing unusual symptoms or pain, we'll conduct a physical exam and diagnostic tests to determine your foot problem. Once a diagnosis is made, we'll develop a treatment plan designed to relieve your discomfort or correct the problem. We'll also give you helpful tips for avoiding foot problems in the future. We offer a wide range of modern podiatric treatments and procedures at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy. PH 617-472-3466.

P.S. Because TTS is an uncommon condition, always ask the surgeon how many procedures he or she has done before choosing this treatment.

Jim McLean Vice President Daniel Flynn. & Co. Real Estate

Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc., announces Jim McLean has been appointed vice president of the Quincy-based commercial real estate firm.

McLean specializes in helping city communities reach their fullest potential through real estate development and revitalization. He has more than 30 years of experience as a real estate manager and developer both locally and nationally.

His most notable accomplishments include his work on Quincy Market in Boston, where he oversaw the conversion of three abandoned warehouses into a bustling festival marketplace. He spearheaded similar revitalization efforts at Dallas' West End Marketplace and Nashville's Fountain Square.

His most recent rejuvenation efforts focused on Springfield, Mass., where he helped developed Baystate West, a 1.7 million square foot property that now includes a 30-story office tower, a major hotel and a shopping facility.

"Jim has an unprecedented track record for closing deals that improve communities by creating jobs, bolstering the economy and beautifying the surroundings," said Flynn & Co. President Paul Talkowski. "His high energy approach to real estate will make an immediate positive impact on Quincy and the South Shore."

For McLean, Quincy's location and heritage are the key ingredients that will propel the city to the next level. "Quincy's location in relation to Boston, to the ocean and to several major highways present tremendous opportunities from a real estate standpoint. We now need to promote Quincy and the South Shore on a national level," McLean said.

What To Expect From Your Inspector

By VIN MOSCARDELLI

The deal for your new home is all worked out. The only thing you are waiting for is the inspector's report.

To give you some kind of idea what inspectors look at when inspecting a home, here is a short list of some inspection DOs and DON'Ts:

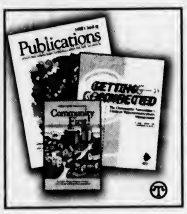
Interior: Generally, inspectors observe the walls, ceilings, floors, stairs, railings, cabinets and countertops for any structural defects. Inspectors usually operate a select few windows and doors. If they view any signs of water leakage on the ceiling, for example, they will report it. Inspectors also check the home's ventilation system. However, inspectors are not required to check the paint or wallpaper or even turn on appliances.

Exterior: Inspectors will check any decks or porches and operate garage doors and exterior doors. They will also view the roof covering and the gutter system for leaks. Inspectors are not required to walk on the roof, however.

VIN MOSCARDELLI

They do not check satellite dishes or outdoor antennae. They also are not required to check fences or other buildings not attached to the home, except for garages or carports.

Electrical: Inspectors will check the main distribution panel and operate light switches. However, inspectors are not required to dismantle any electrical device, test smoke detectors or view phone, cable or security wiring.



Plumbing: Inspectors will observe the water supply system, including the piping and insulation. They will operate all toilets and faucets and ensure that the hot-water system functions properly. But inspectors don't have to check lawn-sprinkling systems, the quality of any well water, or septic systems where applicable.

If you have any questions concerning inspectors or any other real estate topics, call me. As your ERA real estate associate, I'll be glad to help you.

(Vin Moscardelli is the owner/broker of ERA Central Real Estate, 128 McGrath Highway, Quincy.)

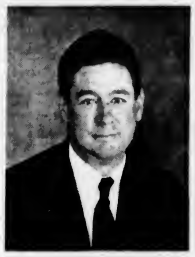
Higher Education Night, College Fair At NQHS

The Guidance Staffs of Quincy Public Schools, under the direction of Marybeth Curran, Head Counselor of North Quincy High School, will host a Higher Education Night/College Fair Tuesday, Oct. 19, from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., in the NQHS gymnasium.



Invited are students, parents, and interested residents from Quincy, Milton, Braintree and Weymouth.

College Admissions Directors from more than 90 colleges and specialty schools will be available to students and parents to discuss financial aid, programs, and admissions requirements at their respective schools.

Higher Education Night/College Fair provides students and their parents an opportunity to explore many possible avenues of further education before the choice becomes immediate and critical. Seniors can review their current selections and finalize their plans before making formal applications in November.

Printed programs will be available in the lobby of the high school.

William Phelan Candidate For School Committee

WILLIAM PHELAN

Atty. William J. Phelan, of Monroe Rd., formally announces his candidacy for the vacant seat on the School Committee.

At 39 and a lifelong resident of Quincy, Phelan says: "I feel the time has come to get more involved in the community. I think I have something to offer -- problem solving skills and negotiating skills.

Phelan said the city is facing budgetary issues involving Quincy Hospital, the shipyard, the proposed new Quincy high school as well as the effect the Highpoint development will have.

Phelan, making his first bid for elective office, said:

"There are some tough decisions to be made, and I want to help keep the schools from being adversely impacted."

Phelan's roots to the city are deep.

He is the son of Teresa and Gerald (Sam) Phelan and has five brothers and two sisters.

A product of the Quincy public school system, he attended Beechwood elementary, Central Junior and graduated from North Quincy High School in 1978. He was a standout basketball player and co-captain of the team and was later inducted into the NQHS Basketball Hall of Fame.

He graduated from Suffolk University with a bachelor's degree in 1982. He then worked days as a letter carrier in Wollaston while going to Suffolk University Law School nights where he earned a law degree, graduating cum laude. He received the American Juris Prudence Award.

Prior to becoming a lawyer, Phelan worked for the state Department of Youth Services as a counselor in an outreach and tracking program.

Phelan, who has had a law practice in Quincy for 10 years, has been secretary of the Quincy Bar Association, a basketball coach at Quincy College and counselor at a home for boys.

He is married to the former Tracey E. Tobin and they have four children: Rachel E, 9; Brianne R., 7; Kerry C., 3, and William Arthur, seven months.

Mrs. Phelan served in the Norfolk District Attorney's office as a counselor to victims of domestic violence.

Phelan, in a promise to voters, said:

"I will work with the parents and teachers with a commitment for excellence to ensure each child within the school system reaches his or her maximum potential.

"My priorities are safety and security for all children, class size and implementation of the latest technology."

One of the three school committee seats is being vacated by Sean Barry who decided not to seek re-election. Two other incumbents, Christine Cedrone and Linda Stice, are seeking re-election.

DID YOU KNOW THAT...?

Did you know that Tuberculoses can affect the foot? Most people think of tuberculoses primarily as a terrible lung disease caused by an aggressive organism (a microbacteria). Unfortunately, in recent years, possibly due to a rise of cases of diseases like A.I.D.S., more cases of tuberculoses have been seen in the U.S.A. (and probably worldwide). But, because it is not common, there is usually a delay in recognizing it. One case involving the ankle in a 12-year-old girl took 8 years until the diagnoses was established! The other problem is that other signs of tuberculoses may not be present at the same time (like fever, weight loss, breathing difficulties) perhaps pointing the health professionals in a different direction. Although uncommon, one of the authors has seen at least one case involving a toe in the South Shore area.

The presentation in the foot is that it usually involves only one or two bones and a single joint (monoarticular). There may be chronic pain and swelling. There may or may not be a history of a previous injury to the involved area. X-rays may snow changes consistent with a dozen other condition. The definitive diagnosis is made from identifying the organism with either a acid-fast stain or a culture. The mycobacteria can be found in the fluid around the joint or from the affected bone itself. Quite often the treatment is to remove the infected bone. The bone itself can then be used to identify the disease. The tuberculin skin test and some blood tests can also be helpful.

If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

Decision Wednesday On ArtsFest Postponement

Organizers of the second annual Quincy ArtsFest are closely monitoring the path of Hurricane Floyd.

The two-day event is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 18 and Sunday, Sept. 19 on the lawn of the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex. The inclement weather threatens the postponement of the show to the following weekend.

A final decision was scheduled for Wednesday afternoon. A postponement decision will be aired on WJDA radio 1300 AM. Residents can also call the Quincy ArtsFest Hotline at 376-1380 to learn whether the event has been postponed.

The event is scheduled to feature more than 350 works of art and photography from artists throughout the South Shore and Greater Boston. In addition, a full entertainment schedule has been planned for the entire weekend.

The Quincy ArtsFest is sponsored by the Best Western-Adams Inn, the Quincy Art Association, and the Quincy Park and Recreation Department.

For information on the Quincy ArtsFest, call the Quincy Art Association at (617) 770-2482, the Quincy Park Department at (617) 376-1251, or the Quincy Recreation Department at (617) 376-1394.

Quincy College Enrollment Up By 5.9%

Quincy College made public its Fall 1999 enrollment figures and reported an increase from last year in many categories.

Total enrollment increased 5.9 percent from last year, from 3,986 to 4,222.

Full time students numbered 1643, compared to 1617 last year, for an increase of 1.6 percent.

Part time student enrollment increased 8.8 percent, from 2,369 to 2,579.

The College reported a 5.4 percent increase in the number of FTE (Full Time Equivalency) students, from 2,436 last year to the current figure of 2,569.

The school said that these numbers would change slightly as some students drop courses or register late.

Volunteers Needed For Gulf War Illness Studies

The VA Boston Healthcare System seeks volunteers for two new treatment studies for Gulf War illnesses.

One study will test whether aerobic exercise and behavioral therapy improve the health of Gulf War veterans experiencing fatigue, muscle and joint pain, and memory and other thinking problems.

The other study will test an antibiotic treatment for a possible infectious cause for those symptoms.

For more information about eligibility or to volunteer, call (617) 232-9500, ext. 4803 or 4340.

Flu Shots Reduce School, Workplace Absenteeism

Annual flu shots may not have kids jumping for joy, but according to researchers, millions of dollars could be saved if the conclusions of a recent study are enacted.

The spread of influenza financially impacts communities by causing school and workplace absenteeism, say researchers at the Virginia Commonwealth University School of Medicine in Richmond, Virginia, where the study was conducted.

School-based influenza vaccinations could save between $4 and $35 per child by preventing parents from having to take time off work to care for a flu stricken child or to take care of themselves, because they also have caught their child's bug.

You can find details of this study on Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Massachusetts' new state-of-the-art on-line health resource, WWW.AHEALTHYME.COM. This website offers consumers a key to the answers for many health-related questions.

Researchers came up with the figures for savings after looking at two hypothetical scenarios. One scenario involved individual-initiated vaccinations at doctors' offices and the other involved shots in a group-based setting. The former scenario required the child to be accompanied to a clinic by a parent during usual work hours, and therefore generated less savings due to the parent missing work.

According to researchers, influenza in the United States have been affecting between 10 and 20 percent of the general population annually. The National Health Interview Survey found that 46 out of 100 children become infected by the flu each year. According to the study's conclusions, those figures make a strong argument for setting up school-sponsored flu shot programs. The study stated "policy makers should give serious attention to a vaccination strategy that targets school-aged children and takes advantages of emerging epidemiological, technological, demographic and societal factors."

What To Do

Flu season arrives in the fall, by which time the vaccine for the expected 1999-2000 virus(es) should be available. Most BCBSMA plans cover the flu vaccination. If covered by your plan, you should be able to receive the vaccination at your physician's office, or at your neighborhood clinic and health center, before the flu season is underway. You might spare yourself some trouble by getting a shot not only for your children but also for yourself. As the Virginia study concluded, the vaccine was 90 percent effective in health-care professionals, and they are constantly exposed to the virus!

Don't forget to check out the new BCBSMA website because not only is ahealthyme available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, WWW.AHEALTHYME.COM uniquely features "Ask Dr. Anne," a real BCBSMA physician who answers unusual questions from site users.

Hearing aid
"Tips from Tobias"

Stephen P. Tobias
Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist

Where to purchase a hearing aid.

You thought I would say HERE please!

Sorry if I dissapointed you. It's not that I don't want your business- I do! What's more important is that you feel comfort-able where you go, you get excellent service, you hear as well as possible and for a fair price. You do not want to feel rushed into making a decision without exploring all of your options. If your doctor recommends a hearing aid and conveniently sends you across the hall, that is not giving you much choice. Good service is very important and you'll need it for the life of the hearing aid. Select carefully and go with the professional that has the most qualities.

Bring your hearing test results to two or three other Hearing Instrument Specialists. Shop for a professional that is caring, is fully equipped, highly experienced and fairly priced. If you feel like you're in a factory, then you're in the wrong place. Hearing aids can require a lot of service, it's a marriage between specialist and patient. Select carefully and have a pleasant experience!

Now you go and spread the news! -Steve

Quincy Vs. Randolph Friday Here At Stadium

Penalties, Big Plays Plague Presidents In 35-12 Loss

By CHRIS POISSON

The high school football season kicked off last weekend and Quincy could have used another week before it stumbled onto the field.

Penalties, injuries and big plays plagued the Presidents as they were blown away by Plymouth North, 35-12, Saturday afternoon at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The loss extended Quincy's losing streak to 11 straight games.

Quincy will look to rebound when it hosts Randolph Friday at 7 p.m.

Head coach Bob Noble refused to accept the first game of the season as an excuse.

"We've been practicing for three weeks now," he said. "You have longer to prepare for this game than any game all year. I don't accept that as an excuse."

Quincy was without the services of wide receiver Mark Robertson, who injured himself in Thursday's practice. And wide outs Andy Tam and Nick DiStasi were banged up in the game, leaving inexperienced backups to make plays.

"Relatively speaking they did a good job, but they made some critical mistakes at critical moments," said Noble.

With the starting receivers on the sideline, Quincy's passing attack, the team's strength this season, deflated. Senior quarterback Dan Kelly had a tough time leading the offense, and the costly penalties didn't help either.

Plymouth North got on the board first when running back Bryan Voci went 80 yards, untouched, for a touchdown with 7:15 left in the first quarter. The PAT failed.

Quincy didn't do much offensively in the first, but put together an 8:00 minute drive at the start of the second. It converted twice on third down and once on fourth to reach Plymouth North's 28-yard line. And that's when things fell apart.

The Presidents were whistled for illegal motion and a false start on back-to-back plays. Then on third and long Kelly threw an interception.

"I don't care who you are, that kills you. It kills you offensively," said Noble. "In my opinion those are penalties that should never happen. I don't know how many times we've practiced that stuff. There's no excuse for that. We're not young. We're not inexperienced.

"Offensively, it was more of us stopping ourselves. How many great calls are there on third and 15, third and 20. That makes it easy for teams defensively."

The Blue Eagles capitalized as they drove down the field with ease. With 22 seconds left before the half, senior running back Joe Berardi (107 rushing yards) plowed ahead 16 yards, with defenders on his back, for a touchdown. Voci added the two-point conversion for a 14-0 lead.

Plymouth North didn't slow down in the second half as it took them only a 1:55 to score on the opening possession. On third-and-four, Berardi broke lose for a 44-yard touchdown scamper. The PAT was good and Quincy trailed 21-0.

"They weren't doing anything we didn't expect them to do," said Noble. "From a coaching perspective that's a very aggravating aspect of it. You never succeed giving up those types of plays in those situations. Sooner or later we have to step up and make the correct play at the correct moment."

Quincy finally put something together on its next possession, although it came on a broken play. Kelly scrambled out of the pocket and raced 27 yards for the TD, with the help of captain Tim Pezzulo, who took out two defenders with a great block.

Kelly's run sparked the defense as it held Plymouth North on the following possession. Rather than punt on fourth down and force Quincy to put together a drive, Plymouth North head coach Kevin Cobban opted for a fake punt inside his own territory.

The Blue Eagles didn't convert and the Presidents took over at the 35-yard line. Junior Gregg Walsh hauled in a 20-yard pass from Kelly and Quincy cut the lead to 21-12.

But the momentum didn't last long. Voci (234 rushing yards) reeled off another long run, this time 72 yards for the score and a 28-12 lead.

"You can't give up big plays in high school," said Noble. "You have to force teams to drive the length of the field because high school kids are not skilled enough to execute an offense perfectly. There will be some sort of penalty."

Plymouth North's Vin Taormina added a 4-yard TD run near the end to close out the scoring.

Point Panthers Pin 14-8 Defeat On Apaches

The Quincy Point Panthers opened the Quincy Youth Football League season with an impressive 14-8 victory over the North Quincy Apaches.

The game was a key match in the newly formed Myers Division. The league re-established divisions and playoffs this season.

The divisions are named in honor of two longtime QYFL members, Bill Myers of the Panthers and Joe Desmond of the Apaches.

Myers is the current franchise holder for the Panthers with 49 years of involvement while Desmond has been part of the Apaches organization for 40 years prior to his retirement this season.

The Panthers, Apaches and Houghs Neck Manets will compete for the Myers title. The Squantum Storm, Milton Mustangs and West Quincy Elks will by for the Desmond title.

The winners move to a playoff game which will feature the top four teams in the divisions. Those winners play for the QYFL championship.

In the Panthers victory, Billy Regens put the winners on the board with a 1-yard touchdown run. J.J. Naimkey and Joe Priscilla did the early groundwork, giving the Panthers solid field position.

The Apaches scored on a missed tackle, before adding the two-point conversion for an 8-6 advantage. However, the Apaches were not allowed a first down throughout the entire game.

The defensive standouts for the Panthers were D.J. Andrews, Jonathan Coska, Derek Jaques, Mike Lally, Ed DeWitt, Tony Popjonovich and Steven O'Neil. Also, Joe Hollywood Ferrara, Nick Malvesti and John Folino played well.

Quarterback Justin Thorley was 7 of 9 passing with two key first-down catches by James Hutchins and three from DeWitt. Naimkey scored the winning TD and DeWitt hauled in the two-point conversion.

Nick Puopolo and Mark Hutchins played a strong game, along with Jason Webb and Josh Webb. The Panthers also had some key plays from Jake Bennett, Steve Straz, T.J. Pitts and Brendan Oliverio.

The Panthers will play the Manets in their next game.

QHS Soccer Teams Fundraiser

The Quincy High School Boys and Girls soccer teams will hold a car wash, yard sale, bottle drive and bake sale Saturday, Sept. 18.

They will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Central Middle School, Hancock St.

Rain date is Sunday, Sept. 19.

Friends Of Mike Therrien Golf Tournament Oct. 1

The Friends of Mike Therrien are holding a golf tournament in Mike's memory on Oct. 1 at Presidents Golf Course at 8 a.m.

Mike served as the Treasurer of Quincy Youth Soccer as well as devoting his time to coaching and other tasks involved with making the program the success it has become.

Mike recently passed away, leaving his wife with the task of raising four young children. The proceeds from this tournament will go to Mike's family.

Sponsors for this event are being sought for each hole at a cost of $100 each. A sign indicating the sponsor's name will be displayed at the respective hole. Donations of raffle prizes will be gratefully accepted.

Cost is $95 per person, which includes green fees, carts, gifts and food. There will be a closest to pin and longest drive contest, and many prizes will be given away.

PRESSURE SITUATIONS

Because maintaining the correct air pressure in your car's tires is a requirement for good handing, traction and durability, it is a good idea to check the pressure regularly. The tire pressure recommended in the owner's manual or on the tire information placard is a "Cold" pressure. Thus, the best time to perform this task is in the morning before the heat of friction plays a role in elevating tire pressure. Beyond that, it is important to remember that, as the days grow shorter and outdoor temperatures grow colder, the air inside your tires contracts. And, for every ten degrees of change on the Fahrenheit scale, there is about a ↑ pound-per-square-inch (psi) change in tire temperature.

Your safety is our concern. Here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, our ASE Certified professional technicians will service your car with the same level of attention that they would give their own. We have a strong commitment to give you individual, personal treatment. Complete satisfaction begins right here in our service department. Stop by 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550) and let's get acquainted. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. North Quincy Hosts Stoughton Saturday

Raiders' Defense Ties Up Medford, 16-16

By CHRIS POISSON

Before the start of the season, North Quincy head coach Peter Chrisom, Jr. stressed one thing about his squad - defense.

The defense is the backbone of the team. The defense will keep the team in games. The defense will give the offense chances to score.

Well, the defense lived up to its billing, turning in a gritty performance Saturday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium as North Quincy (0-0-1) rallied from a 10-0 deficit and held on for a 16-16 tie against Medford.

North Quincy will take on Stoughton at home Saturday night.

"The defense came up real big," said Chrisom. "They played well the whole game. These kids have resiliency. They'll bounce right back. That's what's good about them."

Medford's game plan was simple: run the ball and control the clock to tire out the Red Raiders' defense. It did just that in the first half with only four pass attempts and nearly 16 minutes in time of possession.

In the first quarter Medford threw no passes and held the ball for about nine minutes. Junior tailback Brandon Hopkins capped off a six-minute opening drive with a 5-yard TD run. Mike Plontkoski added the PAT for a 7-0 lead.

In the second quarter, Medford's Ryan Driscoll picked off a Sean Adams pass and Medford had the ball at North Quincy's 39-yard line.

The defense held Medford to a field goal attempt, which it missed, giving North Quincy the ball at the 20. But the offense turned the ball over again as Adams fumbled. Defensive end Chris Dobbins recovered the loose ball at the 30.

Medford couldn't put the ball in the end zone, but did connect on a field goal, when Plontkoski, only a freshman, booted a 40-yard kick through the uprights for a 10-0 lead with a minute left in the half.

North Quincy ran its two-minute offense to perfection. Wide outs Jody Bravo and Joey Holleran came up with clutch catches on the drive as Adams began to get on track.

The Red Raiders had a chance for a touchdown, but the usual sure-handed Bravo dropped one in the end zone with 21 seconds left. Mike Reidy did hit a 29-yard field goal to put some points on the board before the half.

"That was a big emotional lift for us," said

SEAN ADAMS (28) prepares to unload a pass as running backs Brian Deptula (89) and Steve Minukas (37) block for his protection.

Chrisom. "Getting some points on the board gave the kids something to build on going into the half.

"Mike Reidy was big. He hasn't really kicked a lot of field goals. He's been working hard in practice and he came to play today."

In the second half, North Quincy decided to go to its ground game as seniors Brian Deptula and Steve Minukas grinded it out. Although it didn't score, the Red Raiders chewed up about six minutes on the opening drive to give some much needed rest for the defense.

Medford went three-and-out when it got the ball, and the speedy and shifty Minukas tied the game at 10-10 when he darted 51 yards up the right side line on North Quincy's next possession

"In the second half we started to take the ball to them," said Chrisom. "We were a little cautious in the first half. We just changed our formations around and started running the ball. We started to take time off the clock which was good for our defense."

Senior safety Ryan Murray followed with an interception to give North Quincy the ball at the 38-yard line.

But on the drive, Adams fumbled the exchange from the center and Medford recovered the ball at the 22. The defense, however, stiffened and on third-and-five, Deptula stuffed fullback Steven Chausse for a loss in the backfield, forcing Medford to punt.

"That was clutch," said Chrisom It was just emotional, back and forth, up and down. It's hard to keep the kids on an even keel, to keep their concentration. But they did."

The offense responded as Deptula banged his way into the end zone from 3 yards out to give his team a 16-10 lead with 3:23 left in the fourth. The PAT was blocked.

There was more than enough time for Medford to score and they only needed 1:09 to tie the game as the defense slipped up. Quarterback David Foley found Angel Ortiz wide open on the right side and Ortiz dodged several tackles for the TD. North Quincy lucked out when Plontkoski botched the PAT which would have given Medford the lead.

Adams tried to orchestrate a game-winning drive but threw an interception in his own end with 1:46 left on the clock, and North Quincy was in danger of blowing the game.

But the defense bailed out Adams when Bravo recovered a fumble when Foley's pitch didn't reach Hopkins on an option play.

"I just told the kids I'm proud with the effort they came out with in the second half," said Chrisom. They had us on the run a little bit in the first half, but we made a couple of adjustments at halftime and the kids really came out to play."

Women's Fitness At Clubhouse

Quincy Recreation Department will conduct Women's Fitness Classes at the Fore River Clubhouse, Nevada Rd.

Two separate classes will be held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 9:30 and at 10:30 a.m. On Tuesdays and Thursdays, classes will be at 8:30 and 9:30 a.m. Instructors will be Mary Manoli on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and Sara Cobban on Tuesday and Thursday.

The program begins Monday, Sept. 20, or Tuesday, Sept. 21, and continue for seven weeks.

Both classes will offer the same instruction, and are designed to improve and strengthen flexibility, endurance and overall fitness. Adaptations in the exercise allow each participant to work out at their own pace.

Program registration cost if $30. The session will end Friday, Nov. 5. Registration will be taken at the first session of each class at the Fore River Clubhouse, Monday, Sept. 20 and Tuesday, Sept. 21.

Late registration will be done at the main office of the Recreation Department, One Merrymount Parkway, after Sept. 21.

For more information, call the Recreation Department at 376-1394.

Tennis Tournament Continues

With action both on and off the courts the Quincy Recreation Departments 28th Annual Tennis Tournament continues at the Russell Park Tennis Courts.

With no defending champion the men's singles championship has the number one and number two seed David Hamburger and Mann Tam have advanced to the quarter finals.

The men's doubles championship will receive the Henry McAuliffe Bowl for the first time on Saturday. The Park and Recreation Board has named the event in memory of McAuliffe for his long service to the Quincy tennis community.

Friends of Henry McAullife have planned a tribute to the Quincy Tennis Legend that will coincide with the Men's Doubles Championship match.

On Saturday, at 1:30 p.m. friends and family will gather for a program hosted by long time tournament director John Franceschini.

Recreation Director Barry Welch said all are welcome to the Russell Park courts for the tribute and presentation of the championship bowl. Speakers will memorialize Henry, and several persons are expected to be in attendance from out of state.

In the event of inclement weather, the ceremony will be held at the Park and Recreation complex, One Merrymount Parkway.

Guests can look for tournament past champion Tom Savoie and partner Adam Walsh to compete for the McAuliffe Cup with a strong challenge from Leonard Ciavarro and Bruce Riddick. Also expect that tournament ironman Joe Ryan and Jason Andrews will be around for the final.

In the Women's Singles, Janet Diesel has advanced to the quarter finals and will have two contenders Thobe Chan and Francesca DiBona.

Last year's Women's Doubles Champion Aileen Eleey has a new partner Janet Kelly and has advanced to the semi-finals.

The tournament is supervised by the Quincy Recreation Department and sponsored by the Quincy Municipal Credit Union. There will be champions crowned in nine divisions of play. All participants are residents of the City of Quincy.

Junior League Baseball Tryouts Saturday

Junior League baseball tryouts for the 2000 season will be held Saturday, Sept. 18 at McCoy/Mitchell field on Southern Artery (behind Veterans Memorial Stadium).

All Quincy residents, 10-12 years of age, born between Aug. 1, 1987 and July 31, 1990 are eligible to try out. All Triple-A players must try out to remain on the same team for the 2000 season. Registration fee must be paid to try out.

Tryouts are scheduled as follows: 10-year-old outfielders, Saturday and Sunday, 10:30 a.m.; all 11-year-olds, both days, 11 a.m.; all 12-year olds, both days, 2 p.m.

For more information call 472-9023.

North Boys' Soccer Blanks Dedham In Season Opener

The North Quincy boys' soccer team opened its 1999 season Monday with a convincing 2-0 win against no-league opponent Dedham.

The Dedham squad, much improved since last year, played a solid, swarming defensive game, making it difficult for North Quincy to get a shot off.

Play was scoreless for the better part of the first half before North Quincy broke through for the first score. Senior striker Stephen Rochon slammed home the rebound off his brother's, David, shot with about 12 minutes remaining in the half.

In the second half, North Quincy was able to keep the ball in the Dedham zone for a great deal of time, aided by a stiff breeze which it had been working against in the first half.

After a number of scoring bids by senior tri-captains Bill O'Toole (striker), Joe Flynn (midfielder) and Graham McShane (midfielder), Stephen Rochon tallied his second goal with eight minutes left on the clock.

North Quincy's defense, consisting of seniors Rick Loughmiller and Bill Miller, and juniors Shawn Jafavzadeh and Mike Petrucelli, ensured the shutout for junior keeper Ryan Graeber, starting his first varsity game in goal.

Graeber made six saves and handled several high balls into the penalty area as well.

Senior midfielder Brian Deshler and junior striker Chris Wilson also had strong performances.

Also contributing to the North Quincy effort this year will be senior strikers Mike Panajoti, Kevin Shea and Matt O'Connell, junior midfielders Charlie Acton and Mike Campanale, and senior Alfred Wong and junior Tim Lombard at defense.

North Quincy plays Silver Lake Wednesday (Sept. 15), Taunton Friday at 4 p.m. at Teal Field, and non-league opponent Braintree, at Braintree, Saturday at 10 a.m.

NQ Girls Soccer Looking To Continue Winning Ways

Coming off its finest season (13-2-5) in the history of the school, the North Quincy High School girls' soccer team is looking to continue its winning ways and a third consecutive tournament berth.

North Quincy was seeded third in last year's Division I South Sectional and beat Weymouth, 1-0, before bowing to Needham in the quarterfinals.

The Red Raiders return five starters from last year's team, including captain Ashley Murphy, second leading scorer with 11 goals and eight assists, captain Kristin Coughlin, Caitlyn O'Donnell and Maureen Holleran.

Also back is junior Jen Conley, an honorable mention OCL All-Star, as well as junior Stacy Szcesuil and Kellee Conley (seven goals).

"We will have to replace some key players up the middle if we hope to challenge for the OCL crown," said fifth-year coach Paul Bregoli. "We lost four OCL All-Stars, including leading scorer Betsy Stone (22 goals), the OCL's top goaltender in Kristen Bowes and four-year starters Rachael Powers and Dorothy Cronin."

One of the positions will be filled by sophomore Kelly Rice, who will backbone the defense at sweeper, while sophomore Kathryn MacRitchie looks to have the inside track in goal. Sophomore Lauren Sleeth, recovering from a broken foot, will be a key player at inside midfield where she scored five goals as a freshman.

A pleasant surprise in the preseason has been freshman Erin McFarland, who looks good at the stopper position.

"We've had five key players injured in the preseason, so it has been difficult to evaluate where we're at," said Bregoli. "Our first game is a tough one with Silver Lake, which is a quality team every year. We're going to look toward our veteran players to step up and provide the leadership we'll need early on."

Seniors Lauren Awel and Kathlyn Gates will be expected to help out early on, while Janelle Hersey, Lauren Enos and Lauren Pizzi - all on JV last season - should help contribute.

Others who are making bids to make varsity include sophomores Kelly Coleman, Allie Lacey and Caitlin Herlihy. Juniors Colleen Lahar and Jen Djerf have also shown flashes of talent while another junior, Casey Ridge, a transfer from Fontbonne, will help a lot if she is granted her waiver by the MIAA.

"We'll be a work in progress this year," said Bregoli. "We'll get better as we go along. We're relatively young and depending how the sophomores develop will determine how we'll be.

"The good news is we have 70 girls in the program now, including 22 freshmen. There is more talent than at any time during my tenure here."

North Quincy begins it season Wednesday against Silver Lake at Teal Field. It travels to Taunton Friday and Martha's Vineyard Saturday.

High Expectations For North Cross Country

The North Quincy High School cross country season got underway Tuesday (Sept. 14) at Plymouth South.

Head Coach Geoff Hennessy has set his sights high for both the girls' and boys' 1999 season. Assistants Jeremy Gott (third year) and Sherrin Quintiliani (third year) accompany Hennessy on the sidelines once again.

Last season the girls finished with a perfect 9-0 record and with everyone returning, Hennessy expects the league to be gunning for them.

The team took second place in Division I last fall and has its sights on the 1999 crown.

"We're more experience, we're fitter, and so far we're healthy," said Hennessy.

Hennessy expects the Oct. 5 meet with Falmouth to be a "Battle Royale" and will most likely decide the OCL championship.

"Our goal is to train sensibly, stay healthy, and focus on our postseason goals."

A recent run at Cambridge's Fresh Pond showed three girls placing in the top 5 in an open "All-Comers" race. Lynda Wilson is North Quincy's top runner, having made it to All-states the past three years and has an 11:39 two-mile to her credit.

Wilson, Sarah Houghton and Genevieve Marre are the captains this season.

Hennessy hopes co-captains Jeff Bartoloni and Brian Breslin help the boys improve on last season's disappointing 2-5 campaign. New runners John Fidalgo and Frank Alibrandi join junior veteran Steve Barkowski to make a formidable top 5.

Breslin made the cut to advance to All-states last fall, with Bartoloni just missing. Both had great seasons on the track as well.

Hennessy expects Bridgewater/Raynham and Taunton to be tough opponents this fall.

to reach the State House form Quincy because of heavy traffic.

"A person sufferirg a heart attack or stroke could die if they had to make an ambulance trip to a Boston hospital in that time period instead of being taken to Quincy Hospital in a matter of minutes," he said.

"It is vital that Quincy Hospital remain open," he said.

Rep. Stephen Tobin warned:

"If this hospital closes because those people who had the ability to keep it open failed to recognize its importance, within months there will be tragedies."

Also speaking were state Senator Michael Morrissey, Rep-Councillor Bruce Ayers, John Noonan, chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging and Daniel Dunn, representing the Hospital Board of Managers.

Several members of the Quincy Hospital medical staff also spoke.

"It is clear to me," said Dr. Guy Spinelli, "that the elderly and the poor will be the ones hurt the most if the hospital closes.

"Getting treated somewhere else will be a significant burden on them and their families. We as doctors see big trouble if the hospital closes."

Spinelli said Quincy Hospital admits approximately 8000 patients a year and performs about 5,000 surgeries.

Dr. Octavio Diaz, chief of emergency services at Quincy Hospital said the amount of time it could take to get to a Boston hospital could mean the difference between life and death in some cases.

Dr. Victor Pinkes, emergency room physician, estimated that 900 traffic accident victims and 900 heart attack patients are taken to the hospital's emergency room each year.

Amanda Le, director of Quincy Hospital's Asian Relations, said that Asians are utilizing hospital facilities to ever increasing members.

At the end of the 90-minute rally, the group proceeded orderly out of the State House chanting "Do The Right Thing"

Mayor James Sheets and Hospital Director Jeff Doran were in Washington, D.C. conferring with federal officials regarding funding for the hospital.

Quincy Hospital has a tentative agreement to affiliate with the Boston Medical Center.

But first it needs $70 million to pay off the hospital's debt.

The plan is for the city to raise $33 million of it by increasing real estate taxes, obtain $23 million from the federal government and $12.1 million from the state.

Some 1,100 employees stand to lose their jobs if Quincy Hospital closes.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Everyone knows "You can't take it with you" and that it is wise to provide ahead for a constructive way to leave your property. There are a number of reasons why a valid and up-to-date Will is important to you and your loved ones.

The advantages of a Will are extensive. The Will insures that your wishes will be known and determines to whom, how and when your property should be distributed. To make out a Will with a lawyer's assistance assures that you -- and not your State -- will direct the distribution of your estate.

"Do-it-yourself" Wills -- either oral or handwritten -- can be dangerous. Self-drawn Wills are responsible for considerable litigation and in some States are not considered legal. A self-drawn Will frequently produces results far different than those originally intended by the testator or maker.

If you have no Will, now is a good time to make one. If you have a Will, now is a good time to have it reviewed in light of current circumstances. . .

Joseph A. Donahue, 77
Architect, Author, World War II Veteran

JOSEPH A. DONAHUE

A funeral Mass for Joseph A. Donahue, 77, of Quincy, a distinguished architect and World War II Navy veteran, was celebrated Sept. 11 at Star of the Sea Church in Squantum.

Mr. Donahue died Sept. 8 at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

Mr. Donahue designed hundreds of buildings in New England during a career that spanned five decades.

His architectural firm, Donahue Associates, was established in 1958. The firm has designed numerous civic, recreational, ecclesiastic, health care, commercial and residential buildings. Some of the firm's work includes Quincy Hospital, Wollaston Golf Club in Milton, Quincy District Courthouse and most recently, a substantial amount of work for the Archdiocese of Boston. Saint Brendan Parish Center in Bellingham, Sacred Heart Rectory in Weymouth and Saint Anthony Parish Center in Cohasset were all handled by Donahue Associates.

He chronicled his experiences during the war in a diary that was later published as "Tin Cans and Other Ships." The book featured his accounts of the destroyer USS Niblack's maneuvers in the North Atlantic and Mediterranean.

An old shipmate saw a copy of the book and made contact with the author, which resulted in the first of seven reunions, attended by more than 200, that continued throughout the 1980's and early 90's. They met in different ports around the country including San Diego, Charleston, S.C., Boston and Bath, Maine.

Born in Somerville, he lived in Quincy for 50 years.

Mr. Donahue earned his degree from the Boston Architectural Center and worked as an apprentice in Boston for 10 years before moving to Quincy and establishing his own firm.

He had a passion for the game of golf and was a member of the Wollaston Golf Club for many years. He was past president of the Quincy Rotary Club and remained very active in the Boston Architectural Center where he was an honorary member and past president of the alumni association.

He is survived by his wife, Frances (Cherub) Donahue; two sons, Paul M. Donahue of Bridgewater and Brian J. Donahue of Quincy; three daughters, Joan Kantarges and Judith Ayers, both of Quincy, and Patricia A. Osofsky of California; and six grandchildren.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

CRITIC'S CORNER

BOWFINGER: Steve Martin (who also wrote the screenplay) portrays Bobby Bowfinger, a filmmaker wanna-be nearing 50 who has yet to see any of his opera up on the big screen. When his Iranian accountant hands him a screenplay for a movie he wrote called "Chubby Rain" (referring to aliens who drop to earth sheltered in raindrops), Bobby thinks he's hit paydirt. The only problem is, the guy he's picked to star in the movie, red-hot Kit Ramsey (Eddie Murphy) won't even give Bobby the time of day.

Bobby decides to go ahead with the picture anyway, filming Ramsey walking down the street and in public outings. Bobby reasons that Ramsey will star in the flick, only he won't know it. To make up for the scenes that he can't get with Ramsey, Bobby hires a look-alike named Jiff (Murphy as well). Jiff may look like the smooth Ramsey (well, he does wea braces, though), but he's shy, nerdy-type guy, not rough-and-tumble actio star.

Not only does Bobby us Jiff, he casts his has-bee friends in supporting role and hires a sweet-young thing named Dais (Heather Graham) fres off the bus from th Midwest.

Kit Ramsey, thus pursued, thinks he's actually being stalked by men from outer space. He has no clue that a movie is being shot around him. He seeks out MindHead (a satire of Scientology) where his mentor (Terence Stamp) tries to ease his fears.

Christine Baranski does a nice turn as "Chubby Rain's" co-star, and Robert Downey Jr. (pre-jail) has a great cameo as a super-successful Hollywood producer.

Rated PG-13, I give this one four stars. It's laugh-out-loud hilarious!

Your Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) In business, only meet with the associates you know best, for their questions are most predictable. If many answers come to mind, choose the first one – it's as safe a guess as any.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) There is much to be learned from the people around you, whether they are near to your heart or far removed. You need new ideas and fresh viewpoints right now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Keep your own counsel and do not initiate any projects for the time being. Examine your motivations closely, as they may be questioned by others.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Think in terms of "we" instead of "I." Now is the time when teamwork and cooperation could take you to the next level.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You feel drained of energy and willpower. Be cautious of potential manipulators trying to get their way with you.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Life looks as bright as a technicolor happy ending. Everywhere you look, someone wants to give you a hug or a pat on the back.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Survey your surroundings carefully before making any adjustments. When redecorating, remember that the most subtle touches often are the most enjoyable.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You are so cordial and congenial, you even surprise yourself. It's so obvious that you have an inside track; people find it pointless to argue.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Take yourself on a little retreat from the pressures of day-to-day life. However, this retreat should include more education than recreation.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Get out on the catwalk and show 'em what you've got. The cameras are clicking and the reporters are ready – not to mention the fan club.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A tidal wave of emotion may sweep through your mind, leaving you soaked and bewildered. Get to the highlands as fast as you can.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Love and romance make it impossible for you to think about business matters. Take a few deep breaths and let your head clear.

YOU BORN THIS WEEK: Peculiarities and puzzles delight you, and there are few mysteries that you will not try to solve. You understand that the universe holds much more than we can comprehend at this time, but that knowledge only encourages you to invent new things and explore new places.

Town Brook Flood Control Meeting Sept. 21

Next Tuesday, Sept. 21 when the Quincy City Council conducts their meeting, the subject relative to the Town Brook Flood Control Project and the Bigelow Street Relief Conduit will be on the agenda.

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi said he hoped the meeting would "stress the importance of finishing up the project" relating to flood control.

Raymond said state funds which are being "help up" are needed for the Bigelow Street Conduit. He added the Conduit is critical to the effectiveness of the entire Town Brook Control Project, and the completion of the Bigelow Street Conduit will make the difference.

Raymondi noted that with the rain storm Sept. 10, many homes and business were flooded including Dysart Street that hadn't been flooded in 30 years, as well as the rear of the Chamber of Commerce on Miller Stile Rd.

Phyllis Fazzio Play Center Dedication Ceremony Friday

Step One Early Intervention will dedicate its new Phyllis Fazzio Play Center Friday, Sept. 17 at 2 Moon Island Rd., Quincy.

Harry Shulman, president of South Shore Mental Health, will serve as master of ceremonies. Local public officials, area and regional business representatives, SSMH staff, and guests are expected to attend.

Step One will also unveil a Recognition Wall which lists the names of all the donors who have made the creation of the play center possible including the Quincy Parks Department which donated the labor to renovate the playground and install the new equipment. The Recognition Wall will display a plaque in honor of recently retired Step One Director Phyllis Fazzio which reads, "In honor of Phyllis Fazzio for her thirty years of dedication with children and families. Her vision for this play center is now a reality."

Phyllis Fazzio first joined SSMH in 1969 as a teacher of children with multiple disabilities. She served as director of Step One Early Intervention, a program of SSMH, since 1989. During those 10 years, Step One has expanded from serving 85 South Shore families to 265.

License Board Resumes Sept. 21

The License Board will hold their first fall meeting Tuesday, Sept. 21 at City Hall Chambers.

The agenda includes:

•A request from Bethany Congregational Church, 18 Spear St for a one day permit to hold an All Crafts Show, Saturday, Sept. 25.

•A request from Pat Flanagan's, 79 Parkingway for a pool table license.

•A request from the Honor Society of Legionnaires, for a one day permit to hold a Yard Sale, Saturday, Oct. 16.

•A request from Tom's Treasure Chest, 14 Brooks Ave. for a second hand license.

•A request from Adams Heights Men's Club, 63 Bower Rd., for a change of managers from Robert Sutherland to Arthur Christenson.

•A request from Fuji Restaurant, 698 Hancock St. for a beer and wine license.

•A request from Dream Machine, 222-226 Willard St. for a Motor II License.

•A request from the Imperial Terrace Restaurant, Sea St. for a change of managers from Man Hung to Guai King Yip Choi.

•A request from the Victory Supermarket, 475 Hancock St. for a common victualer license.

•Hearing regarding complaints against the Interstate Distributors, Inc. 199 Commander Shea Blvd. concerning operation of delivery trucks in the early morning hours.

Dr. William Montgomery To Be Honored By Janet Murphy Family

Friends and family of the late Janet R. Murphy of Quincy, who died of cancer last January, will gather Friday night at the Atlantic 101 Restaurant in the North End of Boston to honor her physician, Dr. William W. Montgomery, an oto-laryngologist.

A cocktail reception will be held at 6:30 p.m. with dinner at 7:30 p.m. Dave Fitzgerald will provide comedy.

Dr. Montgomery, of the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary performed breast and thyroid surgery on Mrs. Murphy throughout several years. According to her husband, Connie Murphy, the treatment by Dr. Montgomery, had given her "precious time in between procedures."

The fundraiser in his honor, will further advance his research in the areas of esophagus, throat and larynx research through the William W. Montgomery Otolaryngology Research Institute at the Mass Eye and Ear Infirmary.

Mrs. Murphy was a retired administrative assistant at the State House and former active member of the Star of the Sea church in Squantum.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Murphy's two daughters, Leigh and Maura are hosting the event.

Cost if $250 per person.

Fitzgerald, who will provide the comedy for the evening is a cancer survivor and founder of the Humor Institute, Inc., and has produced a video called, "Living and Laughing With Cancer."

Zoning Board Reschedules Highpoint Hearing To Sept. 28

The Quincy zoning board's hearing on the Highpoint development plan has been rescheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 28.

The hearing, originally scheduled for Sept. 14, will still take place at 7 p.m. at Quincy High School.

The board announced at its Aug. 24 hearing that it was changing the Sept. 14 date so as not to interfere with the preliminary elections of the same day.

Developer Dean Stratouly has proposed a 1,641-unit comprehensive-permit plan including 410 units of subsidized housing at the 75-acre Quarry Street site.

Under the state's "anti-snob" zoning law, Stratouly would be eligible for approval because less than 10 percent of Quincy's housing stock qualifies as affordable housing. Currently only 8.5 percent of Quincy housing falls into that category.

To David C. Ward of Quincy, MA and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Stuart Fay of Braintree, MA in the County, Norfolk representing that he hold as tenant in common an undivided part or share of certain land lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows: The land in Quincy, with the buildings thereon, being lot number 3 on a plan recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 974, Page 497, and bounded and described as follows:

SOUTHERLY on Richie Road, 55 feet; WESTERLY on Lot 2 on said plan, 96.5 feet; NORTHERLY on land now or late of Adams Real Estate Trust, 55.23 feet; and EASTERLY on lot 4 on said plan, 90.5 feet containing 5132 square feet of land setting forth that he desire that--all--of said land may be sold at private sale or public auction for not less than two hundred thousand ($200,000) dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Norfolk Probate Court, P.O. Box 269, Dedham, MA 02027-0269 before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the 13th day of October 1999, the return day of this citation.

WITNESS, David H. Kopelman, Esquire, First Justice of said Court, this 24th day of August, 1999.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known To Fail)

"Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven; Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herin you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. (Make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herin that you are my Mother. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3X). Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3X). Say this prayer 3 consecutive days. You must be published and it will be granted to you. M.V.J. 9/16

OH HOLY ST. JUDE, Apostle and Martyr, great in virtue and rich in miracles, near kinsman of Jesus Christ, faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depths of my heart and humbly beg you to whom God has given such great power to come to my assistance and help me in my present and urgent petition. In return I promise to make your name known and cause you to be invoked. (Say 3 Our Fathers, Hail Marys and Glorias. Publication must be promised.) St. Jude, pray for us and all who invoke your aid, Amen. (This Novena has never been known to fail.) I have had my request granted. (This Novena should be said on 9 consecutive days.) thank you saint jude. C.M.C. 9/16

POLITICAL SIGNS greet voters Tuesday at the Squantum School on Huckins Ave., the polling place for Ward 6 Precinct 5.

Ward 1: Hanley, Patten
Ward 6: Newton, Stamos

(Cont'd from page 1)

Newton, 32, of Glover Ave., North Quincy, who is in accounting, easily led the four candidate field in Ward 6 and was the top vote-getter in both wards with 923.

James N. Stamos, 49, of Sonoma Rd., Squantum, a Realtor, nosed out Maryann P. Mahony for the second spot by 46 votes.

Stamos had 547 votes. Mahony, 60, of Hummock Rd., North Quincy, a personnel manager, had 501. There was no indication of a possible recount.

Jens E. Thornton, 75, of Orchard St., Squantum, retired, trailed far behind with 32 votes.

"I'm extremely excited," Hanley said of his victory. "But we still have a long way to go."

He congratulated his opponents for running a "clean campaign."

"I'm very happy," said Patten. "But I have a lot of work to do. It was a good campaign with all the candidates running above board."

Newton credited his impressive first place finish to team effort.

"We worked hard," he said. "It was a real team effort. You can't do it alone. I have some good people who were there with me all the way."

Stamos said he was pleased with his second spot win and will be back out today knocking on doors.

"Ward 6 wants a strong voice at City Hall," he says. "And I can give them that strong voice."

He also said he would like to have several debates between now and the final election Nov. 2.

Mahony, who most observers thought would get one of the nominations, congratulated both Newton and Stamos and thanked all her supporters who worked for her during the campaign.

To Fight Breast Cancer

Marie Curry Walk Raises Over $90,000

The second annual Marie Curry Walk Sunday has reached the $90,000 mark with money still being counted.

An estimated 600 took part in the five-mile walk from in front of City Hall to Marina Bay on an ideal day for walking weatherwise.

The amount has already topped by $10,000 the $80,000 realized in last year's walk.

Money raised goes to the Marie A. Curry Fund which provides free mammography screenings for uninsured area women at Quincy Hospital.

More than 200 free mammograms have already been provided.

Robert Curry, who founded the fund in memory of his wife who died from breast cancer, was unable to make the walk Sunday due to a family emergency.

His mother in-law, Jacqueline Mills, was rushed to Brigham and Women's Hospital on the weekend where she underwent open heart surgery. She was reported in "guarded condition" Tuesday.

Curry was on hand Sunday morning to help get the walkers off but then had to leave. Other members of his family took part in the walk, however.

"This community is really unbelievable," said Maryrose Mirick, director of the Quincy Hospital Health and Education Foundation.

"I am completely overwhelmed by the support we receive from the community. They are always there to help."

The walk is spearheaded by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, the Quincy Hospital Health & Education Foundation and Marie Curry Walk committee of volunteers.

Major sponsors for the walk were Citizens Bank and Quarry Hills Associates.

Future goals for the Marie A. Curry Fund include raising awareness about early cancer detection and assisting individuals in receiving needed services.

For more information about the fund, call Quincy Hospital at 617-376-4017.

Sees No Further Obstacles

Sheets: 'Hospital Is Saved'

By CRAIG SALTERS

Mayor James Sheets is confident that Quincy Hospital has been saved.

Sheets is buoyed by the fact that State House leaders are supporting a $12.1 million no-interest loan to Quincy Hospital, a major key to keeping the hospital open.

And he sees "no obstacles" in the way of federal funding, the other big key.

Sheets said that he expects the passing of national legislation in the next two months to remedy Medicare shortfalls, legislation which will give federal assistance to Quincy Hospital.

"I'm fully confident on Quincy Hospital. It has been saved," said the Mayor. "It just takes a little more faith to accept the fact that the Legislature has to pass the funding and pass the Home Rule Petition. It's a very positive position to be in."

Last week Rep. Paul Haley, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Rep. Thomas Finneran, speaker of the House, changed their minds and gave support to a compromise package for Quincy Hospital. Instead of a one-time $12.1 million allocation, the new plan calls for the state to give Quincy Hospital a $12.1 million loan up-front and with no interest. The loan would have to be paid off in three years but payments would not begin until five years from now, when the City's $6 million-a-year for five years commitment ends.

"I think they (Haley and Finneran) wanted from the very beginning to help Quincy Hospital because it was the compassionate thing to do," the Mayor said. "They just had to find a way to do it that didn't set a precedent, that didn't result in a massive rush for Medicare fixes.

"I think a major factor in School Enrollment Is Up Slightly

Quincy public schools report only a slight rise in enrollment figures from last year, with a net gain of 57 students in the system.

According to Richard O'Brien, director of Information Technology and Media Services, the total number of students in the Quincy public schools is 9,065; last year that figure was set at 9,008.

Elementary and middle school numbers actually dipped somewhat but were offset by an increase at the high school level.

Quincy's elementary schools currently have 4,314 students, down from last year's figure of 4,426.

Quincy middle school students number 2,055, a mere six fewer than last year's figure of 2,061.

The high schools currently hold 2,696 students, which is an increase from last year's total of 2,521.

O'Brien said it was not possible to give one reason for a particular increase or decrease at any level, given that there were "so many variables."

Some variables are the size of families, movements from neighborhood to neighborhood or in and out of the city, and whether schools have renovated facilities or better technology.

One such renovation, at the Point Webster school, is not yet complete, but school officials report that the school is functional.

Enrollment does not become official until Oct. 1, the date Massachusetts school systems must submit their enrollment figures.

Council Picks McFarland To Succeed Foy As Auditor

Michael McFarland is the new city auditor.

McFarland, 45, was unanimously elected by the City Council at Tuesday night's meeting to succeed Robert Foy who has held the post 17 years.

The appointment is for three years effective Oct. 4.

McFarland, a present school committee member and former executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets had seven votes--more than enough--for the post going into the meeting.

MICHAEL McFARLAND

Councillors Frank McCauley and Paul Harold had favored a wider search for applicants but after some discussions Tuesday night cast their votes to make the appointment unanimous.

The matter was on the council agenda at its Sept. 7 meeting for a vote but McCauley had it tabled until Tuesday's night meeting.

"I think he should at least come before the council before we vote," McCauley said.

McFarland accepted the invitation and appeared at Tuesday's meeting to answer questions.

McFarland, who has two years to go on his school committee term, told The Sun earlier this month that he had checked with the Ethics Commission regarding serving in the dual role of city auditor and school committee member.

"They said there was no

Quincy Seen At Site For New Supported Senior Housing Plan

By CRAIG SALTERS

At the fourth annual Senior Conference Saturday at the Broad Meadows Middle School, Lillian Glickman, Secretary of the Massachusetts Executive Office of Elder affairs, announced that Quincy would be the most likely South Shore site for a new Supported Senior Housing plan which provides the essentials of Assisted Living to low and moderate income senior housing.

Glickman was the keynote speaker at a conference entitled Moving Into The New Millennium: The Best Is Yet To Come sponsored by the Quincy Council on Aging and the Commission on the Family.

Glickman said that 3 SSH pilot programs in Watertown, Gardner, and Salem were resounding successes and that Governor Cellucci had proposed funding for an additional 12 sites.

Glickman said that currently the state Senate favors funding the program but the House is against it.

The Supported Senior Housing Program would take the 3 most desirable aspects of assisted living - 24-hour on-site personal care, one group meal a day, and assistance with medication -- and provide them at traditional senior housing.

"Why should just high-income seniors receive it (these benefits)?" Glickman asked, adding "I love it. It's a great program."

Glickman said that today's population of 1.1 million elders (60 and above) would grow 19% by the year 2010, and that the fastest growth would occur at the over 85 level, expected to jump 25% in the next decade. Glickman attributed the increases to better drugs and treatments, but also pointed out the downside of a longer lifespan: more chronic ailments, more need for prescription drugs, and greater demand for senior housing and transportation.

Glickman noted that the past four years have seen a boom in Assisted Living Centers and said she sees no signs of that trend slowing down. When she announced that the average cost of assisted living is $3,000 a month, she drew ooohs and aaahs from the 225 seniors in attendance.

Linda Stice, executive director of the Quincy Commission on the Family and vice-chairman of the Quincy School Committe, praised the plan for its practicality. "It's a very practical and very doable plan that is neither complicated nor costly. Can you provide one group meal? Can you have 24 hour staff? It's not that difficult but it provides a tremendous feeling of security to seniors."

Brian Buckley, director of the Quincy Council on Aging, agreed. "You meet the immediate needs without a lot of fringe," said Buckley.

Buckley also said that Quincy was the logical site for the new SSH site because the city already had senior housing infrastructure in place, boasted a strong Quincy Housing Authority, and was the only city among ten towns in the South Shore. "It's a natural fit," Buckley said.

The conference was founded in 1996 after John Noonan, chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging, attended a White House Conference on Aging and worked with Mayor Sheets to create a local version. Besides listening to the speakers and having a luncheon, the seniors attended workshops such as "Curious about Computers," "Financial Planning for Your Future," and "Emergency."

Luke and Leonne MacNeil, a husband and wife senior team who attended CFP George McCall's financial workshop on wills and trusts and gifts, said that the conferences were very helpful and "answered all our questions."

After the luncheon Walt Sanders, president of the Massachusetts AARP, introduced Joseph Perkins, the national AARP president.

Perkins' topic was the "social responsibilities" of both voters and elected officials. He reminded the audience that "democracy is not a birthright" and said, "A society is judged by how it treats its oldest and its youngest, its sickest and its poorest."

Perkins said that it was the job of everyone, including the 33 million-member AARP, to ask candidates the tough questions about Medicare and Social Security in the coming elections.

Sen. Michael Morrissey, as well as many members of the Quincy City Council were in attendance. Council members included Bruce Ayers, Frank McCauley, Paul Harold, Peter Kolson, Pat McDermott, and Tim Cahill. Council candidates Russell Patten and Joe Newton were also in attendance.

School Supt. Gene Creedon gave a speech praising the blue-ribbon Broad Meadow School and said that the student volunteers' "sense of service" was a lesson they could carry with them for the rest of their lives.

Earlier in the day, Mayor Sheets spoke and asked Dr. Glickman to deliver a personal thanks to Governor Cellucci for his work on behalf of Quincy Hospital.

Quincy Families Fight Moving Patients From New England Sinai

The families of two Quincy patients under care at New England Sinai Hospital are fighting to allow them to remain there in what they say is a matter of life and death.

Mario Salvatore, of 39 Hughes St., and George C. Smith, Jr., of Six Village Drive, insist that to move their loved ones off hospital-care status and into nursing homes is to put their loved ones in immediate danger for their lives.

Mario Salvatore is fighting the state Division of Medical Assistance to keep his sister Dora, 70, at New England Sinai, the chronic care and rehabilitation facility in Stoughton where she has been a patient for the past 17 years.

And the way he sees it, he is fighting for his sister's life.

"My fear is that she'll do something drastic. If she has to leave Sinai, she doesn't want to live," an outraged Salvatore said Monday, a day before he was to attend a state Medicaid appeals hearing in Boston.

George C. Smith, Jr. Is fighting a similar battle to keep his 42 year old, wheelchair-bound and ventilator dependent son Brian at N.E. Sinai where he has received care for the past six years.

Dora and Brian, along with 19 other N.E. Sinai patients, were re-classified by the Division of Medical Assistance as no longer in need of hospital-level care, meaning that they could be moved to specially qualified nursing homes which can provide the ventilator care they require at roughly $200 less per person than N.E. Sinai. The only two nursing homes in Massachusetts with that qualification are in Pittsfield and Holden.

The process of moving patients from high cost hospitals to lower-cost, specialized nursing homes began in 1991, when a special commission formed by Governor Weld reported that there was no lessening of care and a significant reduction of cost.

Salvatore and his sister Elsa Marella, of 59 Shirley St., think the idea that Dora does not need hospital-level care is ridiculous.

"She's confined to a wheelchair, she has very limited use of her body, she cannot feed herself, she has to have her vent cleaned," Salvatore said. "She can't feed herself and she hasn't tasted regular drinking water in seven years."

"But," Salvatore quickly added, "she's alive and she wants to stay alive."

Mr. Salvatore said that he and Elsa visit Dora in Stoughton four or five times a week and that, given their age, visiting that many times in Holden or Pittsfield would be "out of the question."

Salvatore emphasized how much Dora liked the care at N.E. Sinai and how close the patients had become to one another over the years.

"She knows every inch of that place. The other patients form a sort of family. They take care of each other and they don't want to go," Salvatore said. "Now Medicaid is saying she no longer she needs it. Unbelievable."

There are no plans as yet to actually move the patients, but Salvatore and Smith aren't waiting. Salvatore has written letters to prominent Quincy residents like Sen. Michael Morrissey. He has hired an attorney and vowed "to use

A Golden Star For Squantum

Squantum residents sometimes might give others the impression they feel they are a community of their own, separated from the rest of the city.

The fact they live on a peninsula might, of course, be a good part of the reason for that impression.

But regardless, there is one thing for sure about people who live in Squantum: they care.

And not just about their own neighborhoods. They also care about their ward (6)--and the rest of the city. They are interested in what's going on--and why.

You know they care and are interested because they get out and vote.

As they have in the past and did in last week's preliminary election for the open Ward 6 city council seat.

Jack Beaton of the City Election Department, was quite impressed with the Squantum turnout.

He notes that the total number of registered voters in Ward 6 on election day was 8,075 of which 2,017 went to the polls. That's only a 24.97 percent turnout.

But take a look at Precinct 5 which votes at the Squantum School.

It has 1,948 registered voters and 1,010 of them went to the polls that day. That's 51.84--almost 52--percent. More than half of the entire ward turnout.

Squantum also topped each of the five precincts in Ward 1 which also had a contest for an open ward seat.

The combined Ward 1 total was only 23.53 percent. Precinct 4 (Adams Shore) had the largest turnout with 528.

The Squantum connection probably helped the Squantum turnout. Two of the candidates, Jim Stamos and Jens Thornton, live there. And Joseph Newton grew up there.

But Newton, who now lives on Glover Ave., North Quincy, was the top vote getter in the ward with 923.

He got 475 of them in Squantum. Stamos who won the second nomination spot with an overall vote of 547 got 341 in Squantum. Thornton had 21 in Squantum, 32 ward-wide.

Stamos nosed out Maryann Mahony of Hummock Rd., North Quincy by 46 votes. She had 501, 168 of them in Squantum.

The final winner won't be known until Nov. 2.

But Squantum itself was a winner last week by caring and getting out to vote.

Beaton says that if there was such a thing as a Gold Star for voter turnout and community interest, he would hang it on the front door of the Squantum School.

ROWELL

He is taking the setback in stride as he has always taken life itself.

"Things happen to everybody," he says philosophically. "Life has been good to me. I'm doing okay. Jeanne (his wife) and the family are taking good care of me."

Rowell was a 36-year veteran of the Quincy police department and a captain and chief of detectives when he got the call to become police chief in Pelham 10 years ago next month.

Congressman William Delahunt, who was then district attorney, tapped Rowell to command the Norfolk County Drug Task Force in 1983. He also headed the Quincy Police Drug Unit.

Rowell's work in cracking down on drug trafficking won him high praise from Delahunt, Police Chief Frank Finn and Judge Henry Chmielinski.

Although Rowell took the police chief's job in Pelham (selected from among something like 60 applicants), his heart has always been here in Quincy. And his home, too.

And from that home at 51 Pembroke St., South Quincy, he commuted daily to his job in Pelham. Now he's doing some of that work from his home.

Friends might want to visit or drop him a card.

Besides being a top cop for 46 years, he's been a top human being all his life. One of those real nice guys who don't come along very often.

FORMER SCHOOL Committeeman Frank Anselmo turned 101 Wednesday but he would rather have celebrated it elsewhere.

ANSELMO

Anselmo is at Brigham and Women's Hospital where he underwent surgery after fracturing his hip two weeks ago.

Anselmo fell while playing pool in the recreation area at 1000 Southern Artery where he lives.

"He had been doing pretty well until them," says Paul Baharian, executive director of 1000 Southern Artery. "He had slowed down a little but he was getting around. You know, he still doesn't wear glasses. Can still read without them."

Anselmo, a veteran of both World War I and World War II, on his 100th birthday had a simple formula for his longevity:

"No smoking. No booze. Watch what you eat. Get a little exercise."

He said he took three vitamin pills a day, a daily shot of cod liver oil and allowed himself "a glass of wine now and then."

ANOTHER MILESTONE: Rev. Bedros Baharian, long-time pastor of Quincy Point Congregational Church and founder of 1000 Southern Artery, marked his 84th birthday Wednesday.

BAHARIAN

He and his wife, Jane, are living in Leesburgh, Fl. He retired from the church where he now holds the title pastor emeritus, and from 1000 Southern Artery in the early 1980s.

Baharian was a shaker and mover while in Quincy serving as chairman of the Planning Board that brought in a lot of new development under Mayors Jim McIntyre, Walter Hannon and Arthur Tobin.

His son Paul, now head of 1000 Southern Artery, is in frequent contact with him, and says he is still very interested in what's going on in Quincy.

And, says he, is happy to hear that the Quincy Center Concourse is to become a reality. He was a strong advocate of the roadway some 20 or so years ago when it was called the East-West Connector.

YOU MIGHT SAY it's now a His and Hers feature at Abigail's Crossing shop in Quincy Sq.

Joanne Dondero came up with a big apparel hit for men a year or so ago: historic Quincy neckties which are still a hot item.

Now, it's the ladies' turn.

Joanne now has a line of historic Quincy women's scarves with the same historic sites and colors as the neckties.

The scarves, 100 percent brush silk and 60 inches long, have handsome images of First Parish Church, City Hall, the Adams Mansion, Adams Academy, the Abigail Adams and John Quincy Adams statue, the gazebo at Marina Bay and a Welcome to Quincy sign.

Would make a nice birthday or Christmas gift for the woman in your life. Price: $38.95.

The neckties and scarves were specially designed for Abigail's Crossing by Global Neckwear at Marina Bay.

GEORGE PARKER of the Yellow Cab Co. in Quincy, is still pitching in to help fight muscular dystrophy.

PARKER

This marks the 23rd straight year and this time he's pitching even higher.

It began in 1976 when The Quincy Sun became the Quincy-South Shore pledge center for the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Labor Day telethon.

George came in that first year with two $400 checks--one a company, the other a personal.

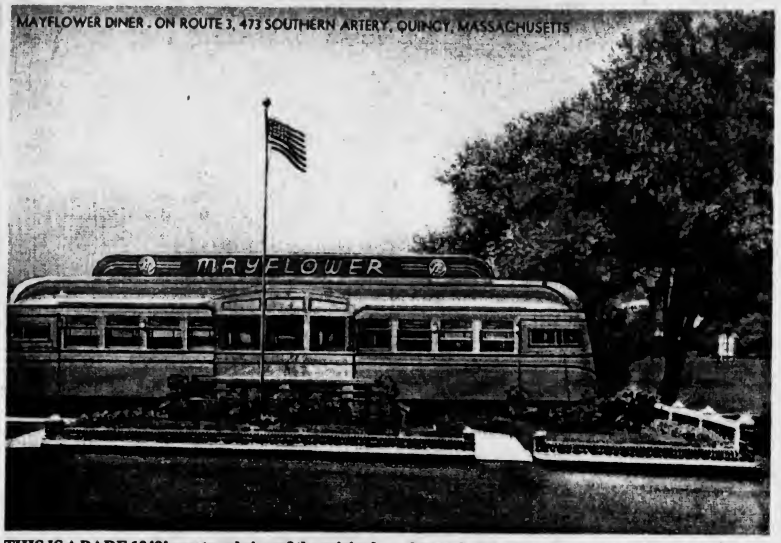
And for the next 10 years it was like an annual ritual. Two $400 checks each year. During those 10 years the pledge center and committee raised over $1 million thanks to a lot of nice people like George.

The pledge center is no longer at The Sun because of space limitations but we continue to sponsor special MDA events. And George has kept coming with those two $400 checks.

But this year, he had a little surprise. Instead of two $400 checks he made it two $500 checks--$1,000.

Which, if our arithmetic is correct, he has now donated $18,600 to help continue the battle against muscular dystrophy.

George does what he does because he believes every kid should be able to walk, run, ride a bike, play sports, etc. And wants to do his part to help to be able to do it.



George can be tough and gruff when he wants to be. But he's pretty shy, too. He usually drops the checks off and runs or has someone else drop them off and run.

Never hangs around for a "thank you."

But here's one, anyway, George.

THANK YOU!

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A RARE 1940's postcard view of the original Mayflower Diner that was on the Southern Artery across from the Quincy police station. This classic Pullman style diner was painted light blue and was tastefully landscaped. About 1950, it was replaced with a larger, but handsome, modern stainless steel diner. Today, this site, sandwiched between a car wash and a market, is home to a red, while and yellow McDonalds; complete with a multi-colored play yard.

Work Begins On New Sacred Heart School

By PAUL HAROLD

Sept. 23 - 29
41 Years Ago

In a letter to Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, Rt. Rev. Irving Gifford, pastor of Sacred Heart, notified the city that work had begun for a new school, next to the church on Hancock St.

The 24-room school was planned for a 1961 opening, with facilities to accommodate 1,000 students. It would be built at a cost of $300,000.

In asking for the mayor's help in having electrical cables moved for the demotion of houses on the site, Rev. Gifford informed the mayor that the church sponsored school would save the city an estimated $100,000 a year.

WOMAN WINS $1,200 IN OYSTER STEW CASE

Christine Crayton of Kimball St. was awarded $1,200 by a Boston jury in a landmark liability case. She sued Check of the Sea for injuries she suffered from an oyster shell in a can of oyster stew she bought March 16, 1956 in a Quincy market.

In her suit she said that while eating stew, a piece of shell became lodged in her throat, endangering her life. It had to be removed in the emergency room at Quincy City Hospital.

In their defense, a spokesman for Chicken of the Sea said: "You have to expect to find chicken bones in chicken salad, cherry stones in cherry pies and fish bones in chowder."

RECORD ENROLLMENT AT ENC

Eastern Nazarene College reported a record enrollment of 612 students, the highest since its relocation to its Wollaston campus in 1919.

College President Dr. Edward Mann noted that students came from 34 states and nine foreign countries. There were 101 students from the South Shore with 89 from Quincy.

The school's new opening ceremonies included the laying of the corner stone for the new $450,000 science building.

Receives Excellent Care At Quincy Hospital Emergency Room

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It has been a while since I have been a patient in the Quincy Hospital Emergency Room but that all changed the other day. I slipped and fell in a local supermarket which meant a trip to Quincy Hospital Emergency Room.

I could not have asked for better care than I received from the nurses, doctors, and X-ray technicians. It will be a sad day here in the City of Quincy if the doors of the hospital on Whitwell Street are closed and locked. We would no longer call it "Hospital Hill."

If monies do come through to help it survive, a close eye must be kept on the purse strings.

Kudos Ward 6 Precinct 5

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Last preliminary day, I almost forgot to vote, made a U-turn and cast my vote in the Ward 6 council fight. Apparently, I was one of a few who did just that in precincts 1-4. Meanwhile over in Squantum and Precinct 5, people were arriving to vote at Squantum School by the carload.

In the end I hear voting was dismal. In Ward 6 only some 2,003 voters did their civic duty. Of that number of Ward 6 voters who voted, 1,005 or 50.1% of them came from Squantum's Ward 6 Precinct 5. Where was everyone else that day and why were they MIA at the polls?

As a result, the non-Squantum candidate who most thought would make the final election will be sitting at home like the rest of us watching the vote count come Nov. 2. Where were voters from Atlantic, Marina Bay and Norfolk Downs? Now come November, two candidates with Squantum ties will be on the ballot for you to choose from. Voters do talk and the rest just walk.

Four years ago, I ran for school committee because I wanted to get involved in local government. Politics isn't just for the pols, it's for us all.

There is something terribly wrong and tragic going on when one precinct is able to dominate in a preliminary election. Kudos to the voters of Squantum for voting in such great numbers. Shame on the rest of the ward's precincts for their low voter turnout.

I congratulate every voter in Ward 6 who took the time and voted. There is no such thing as a meaningless election or a meaningless vote. Hopefully, the voter turnout in Squantum will be a wake-up call to the rest of Ward 6.

Government is our business. Either we run it or it runs us. It will be as good as we want it or as bad as we allow it to be. For several years now our school children have participated in the Kids Voting Program but what kind of example did Ward 6 voters give them?

If we don't like the way things are going, we can sit back and do nothing but complain or we can be part of the solution that keeps us a free people.

Candidates with ideas and convictions are important but it all starts with us as individual citizens knowing our role in this democracy, right?

'West Side Story' At Eastern Nazarene College

The Communication Arts Department of Eastern Nazarene College kicks off its 25th Anniversary Theatre Season and year-long celebration with West Side Story, the contemporary retelling of Shakespeare's Romeo & Juliet on Oct. 14-15 and 21-23 at 7 p.m., and Oct. 16 at 6 p.m. and 9 p.m.

The vibrant landmark musical, a tragic love story set against the backdrop of two rival New York gangs, is considered to be one of the most significant creations of the American musical stage.

With music by Leonard Bernstein, lyrics by Stephen Sondheim, and book by Arthur Laurents, the play is bursting with energetic musical favorites such as "Jet Song," "Tonight," and "Somewhere." The faithful 1961 Academy-Award winning film version firmly established West Side Story as a classic American musical.

Tony is the 1950's Romeo, the former leader of the Jets gang. Tony is attempting to put the violence of New York street life behind him when he meets his Juliet, a young woman named Maria who has recently immigrated from Puerto Rico and whose brother is the leader of the Jets' arch rivals, the Sharks. Hatred, rivalries, and social prejudices conspire against the young lovers in this musical which remains as relevant and gripping today as when it premiered.

Eastern Nazarene College's theatre department is celebrating its 25th Anniversary of bringing quality, affordable theatre to the South Shore.

The Eastern Nazarene theatre experience has become an integral part of the Quincy community through the efforts of a top-notch production team headed by veteran director and professor of theatre, Dr. Ronda Rice Winderl. They produce 4-5 plays per year: at least one musical, frequently featured guest artists, and premieres of plays (playwright Stephen Schwartz collaborated with them on the New England premiere of Children Of Eden in the fall of 1992). They also regularly sponsor educational matinees for schools from all over the South Shore and beyond.

West Side Story opens in the Cove Fine Arts Center on Thursday, Oct. 14 at 7 p.m. Performance dates are Oct. 15 at 7 p.m., Oct. 16 at 6 and 9 p.m., and Oct. 21-23 at 7 p.m.

Tickets are $10 and can be ordered by calling the box office at (617) 745-3715 or by sending a check to Eastern Nazarene College, Department of Communication Arts, 23 East Elm Ave., Quincy, MA 02170.

For more information about West Side Story or upcoming productions during the 25th Anniversary Theatre Season, call the box office.

SNAPPING AND POPPING OF JOINTS

Quite often a patient will demonstrate how their foot makes a certain "snapping or popping" sound when a joint is moved in a certain way. The patient invariably then asks: "is this something to worry about?" These "snapping syndromes," as they are called in some text books, are common and often do not cause any harm

Some conditions however, can cause more pronounced symptoms and may have to be treated. Most people respond to conservative care like physical therapy, local injections and modifying their activities. Surgical treatment may be necessary in some cases like the peroneal tendons (tendons that pass on the outside of the ankle). The hip (caused by the iliotibial band) and the scapula or shoulder blade (caused by an abnormal relationship between the scapula and the rib cage).

If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

Library Reception Set For Sept. 29

Mary Raux: A North Quincy Institution Retires

By CRAIG SALTERS

Quincy is a city of landmarks and institutions.

One of them is named Mary Raux.

After 57 years of devoted service with the Thomas Crane Public Library -- the last 30 as children's librarian at the North Quincy branch -- Mary quietly stepped into retirement July 31.

But friends and colleagues are not going to let her go that easy.

They have a special reception planned for her Wednesday, Sept. 29 from 1 to 4 p.m. to be held, quite appropriately, at the North Quincy Branch. Everybody's invited.

MARY RAUX in a long-time familiar setting.

Raux officially became a full-time librarian in the Fall of 1942 after her graduation from North Quincy High School, but she actually began in 1941 as a page, shelving books and magazines and doing odd jobs, for the starting salary of 20 cents an hour.

"I was lucky to have a job," she said, recalling the rough days at the start of World War II before men started pouring into the Fore River Shipyard. Raux remembers a time when "every chair in the library would be taken with out-of-work young men." Mostly they were polite but, even at their rowdiest, Raux still asks, "How could you throw them out?"

Raux spent the next ten years as a junior assistant librarian, filling in at all of Quincy's 14 branches but spending much of her time at the Crane Library. After the birth of her first child in 1952, Raux worked part-time until returning as the full-time children's librarian at the North Quincy branch in 1969. She remained there until her retirement.

Raux remembers filling in at a moment's notice at Quincy's 14 branches, many in local schools. She remembers those branches having no telephones and that emergencies meant closing up and running to the nearest drugstore. She remembers pushing the book cart at the hospital branch at a time when books and magazines were something not everyone could afford. She remembers library branches with no public restrooms, no reserving books, and barely any reference sections. She remembers using a flashlight to wander through darkened school hallways during the "lights-out" period of World War II. Finally, with a smile, she remembers Mr. Watson, the former library director, daily promising a new mimeograph machine at Crane Library. "They got one the year after I left," she said.

Raux has lived in Quincy all her life, the oldest of five children born to Irish immigrant parents. Her father was a Quincy police officer. Although her parents, like so many immigrant families, encouraged education (a brother with an MIT doctorate, other siblings boasting Tufts, Emmanuel, and Carney Hospital degrees) she doesn't know where her love of reading came from. She just recalls walking as a young girl to the main library "because they had the best books."

After raising her children, Raux herself went back to school. After thirteen years of night courses and with the full support of her family, Mary graduated from Bridgewater a full 25 years after high school.

Raux is the mother of four children: Mary Ellen, an anesthesiologist in Atlanta; Eugene, a businessman in New York; Redmond, an Air Force chaplain now stationed in the Azores; and Christine Putnam Raux, who works for the Defense Department in MD.

Her husband Gene is a retired vice-president of Hancock Paint. Mary helps Gene run the Monday night Bingo at Sacred Heart Church where she is a former C.C.D. teacher and current lector. She enjoys sewing and gardening and, of course, reading.

"My husband says I'm hypnotized by the printed page" Raux says.

Asked about her retirement, Mrs. Raux said she will miss watching whole families grow up in the library, getting to know one child and then seeing a brother or sister come along in a few years. She'll miss seeing Asian parents thumbing through the stacks of Asian newspapers and books while their children pore over Clifford or Dr. Seuss. She'll miss adults walking up to the desk and asking, "Do you remember me?" although she admits she can't always.

But when asked what she'll miss most, Mary does not hesitate: "The storytimes," she says.

Raux has been doing the story times one or two times a week now for thirty years. At first intended for 4 and 5 year olds, there are now story times available for toddlers and even lapsit sessions for one and two year olds. The 45 minute sessions usually involve three books, finger plays, and possibly a craft. She points out proudly that all of her children and grandchildren love to read.

When it comes to books, Raux favors the classics: Curious George; Babar; Madeline; and the Dr. Seuss readers. According to Raux, the fact that so many of these stories are now children's videos has made them more popular than ever.

Any difference between today's kids and previous generations?

"The attention span is definitely shorter," she says, admitting that there are some books read in the past that are considered too long now. Always upbeat, however, Raux says that the importance of reading to children and parent participation is on the upswing. "For a while you didn't see too many parents, but now more parents are paying attention and reading to their children."

Many praise Mary's personal touch. "Some people here know the families; she knows the generations," says Julie Rines, the library's coordinator of childrens' services. "Full grown men come in and ask for her. People see her and at church or the Stop and Shop and remember overdue books. When she's here, there are no strangers."

Before the days of computers, Mary was known for writing personal notes on the overdue book slips mailed to each house. There are 4 schools (Sacred Heart, Parker, Montclair, Atlantic, and NQHS) within walking distance to the branch, so Mary has helped literally thousands with their homework, an activity which fosters trust when those kids get a little older. Also, Mary is the librarian older customers seek out when trying to learn the computerized system, which has replaced the card catalogue.

Ann E. McLaughlin, the current Director of Libraries, remembers that personal touch. "The children loved her," McLaughlin said. "She had an ongoing relationship with almost every child, she knew their choices. She'd say, "here's a Bobby Orr" or "here's a new train book" and the kids responded." McLaughlin joked that at times she was almost Sacred Heart School's personal librarian, the kids rushing over for story times. "It was man-the-battle-stations time," McLaughlin said.

McLaughlin began working as a Quincy librarian in 1971 and Mary Raux was the first person she worked for and with. She said that Mary was always "encouraging, willing to share everything she knew, always showing concern." Whether it was giving kids rides or advocating for more books for the children's section, Mary was always making sure that the children didn't get short-changed.

Even after 57 years, Mary didn't want to retire until recurring health problems made it a necessity. She is excited about the new main library extension with its story hour room, meeting room, and toddler-friendly spaces. She wants to volunteer in the future and, McLaughlin says, they'd love to have her.

The North Quincy branch is currently seeking a full-time children's librarian and, earlier this year, Mary Raux recommended to McLaughlin some desirable qualities for her replacement. The new librarian, Raux said, should love children, have a thorough knowledge of childrens' books, know the art of storytelling, and have a willingness to become part of a child's life.

Which is interesting because the North Quincy branch had a person like that -- for thirty years.

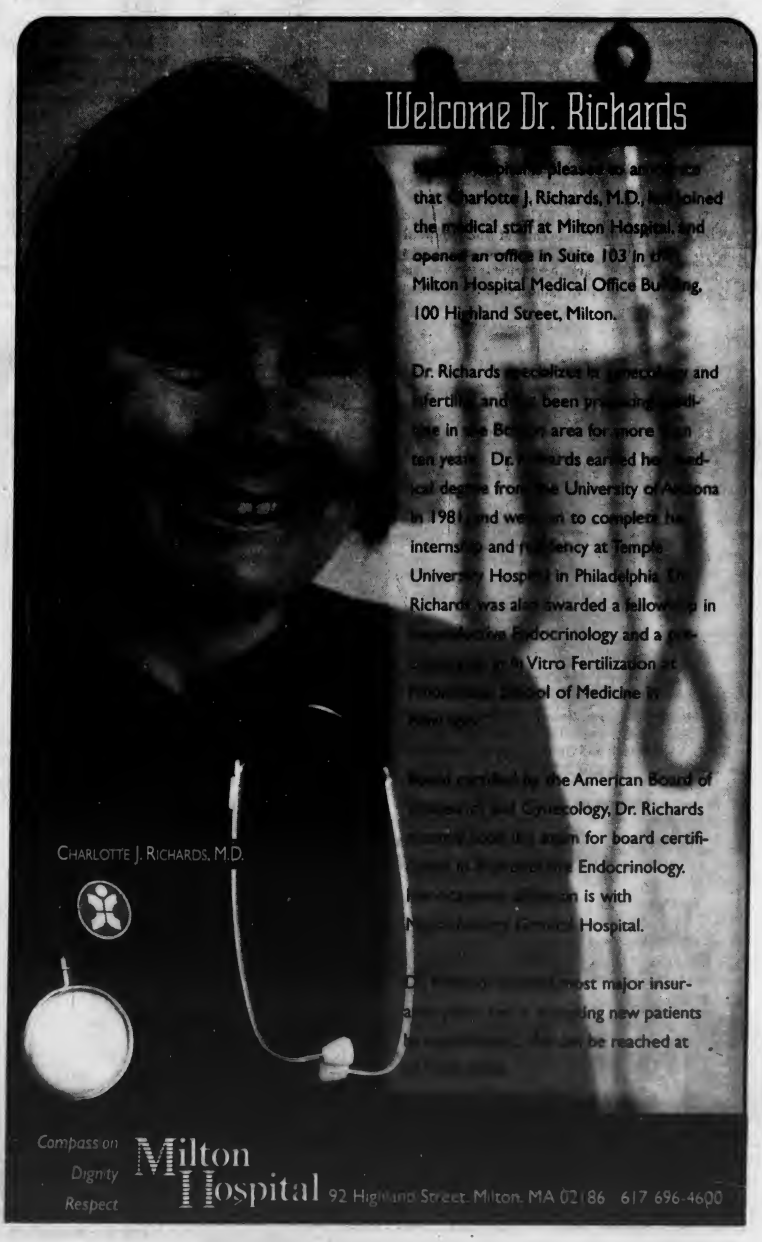
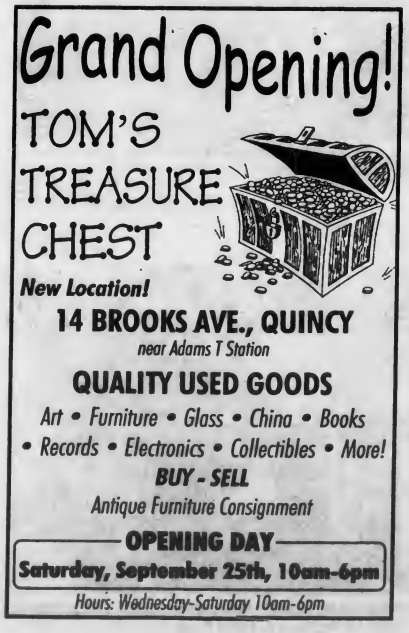
North Quincy Business District Meeting Today

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers will hold a North Quincy Business District meeting today (Thursday) from 8 to 9 a.m. at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 11 Hayward St.

The purpose of the meeting is to work with the city's Department of Planning and Community Development and Quincy 2000 Corporation to develop a new Commercial Area Revitalization District (CARD) Plan for the North Quincy shopping district. The plan will enable the city to expend federal and state funds for commercial area improvements in North Quincy.



Recent improvements have included new sidewalks, trees and landscaping, historical lighting and banners as well as signage grants.



"We encourage business operators, residents and property owners to attend this meeting and find out more about maximizing potential funding sources to improve the area," Ayers said.

Eventide Auxiliary Board Meeting

The Eventide Auxiliary will hold a board meeting Sept. 27 at 12:45 p.m. and then at 2 p.m. the program will include the 75th Anniversary Tea of the Wm. B. Rice Eventide Home.

Music will be provided by Mary Jane Rupert, harpist.

Marie Curry Walk Raises $90,000

SOME SIX HUNDRED took part in the second annual Marie A. Curry Walk Sunday which raised $90,000 to help fight breast cancer with more money coming in. These walkers are making their way along Furnace Brook Parkway.

Quincy College Selected To Train Entry Level Workers

Quincy College has been selected as one of the partners in a $980,550 grant to train entry-level workers in long-term care and acute care institutions in Boston.

Quincy will work with Bunker Hill and Roxbury Community Colleges to update literacy, numeracy and English language proficiency levels. Programs will be offered both on campus and at work sites.

The grant, funded by the Boston Private Industry Council, is designed to improve employee retention, reduce recruiting costs, and meet increased skill demands associated with changes in technology and service delivery.

In addition to the three local community colleges, the grant partners are the Massachusetts Extended Care Federation, Benjamin Health Care, Partner Health Care Systems, SEIU 285, and the Mayor's Office of Jobs and Community Service.

CANCER TALK WITH TANIA LINGOS, MD

Esophageal Cancer: Prevention Offers More Potential

Limiting the risk of esophageal cancer is possible. As we noted last week, the disease is related to lifestyle choices. Therefore, to better protect your esophagus, which carries food and liquids from your throat to your stomach, take the following advice.

Do not chew or smoke tobacco. Do not abuse alcohol. Do not make a habit of consuming burning-hot beverages or large quantities of smoked/salt-cured products. If you have chronic indigestion or Barrett's esophogitis, get medical treatment. In addition, exercise, eat right and be alert for digestive difficulties.

While not one of America's most common cancers, the incidence of esophageal cancer is rising. This year, about 15,000 Americans, mostly 55 or older, will develop the disease. It strikes men more frequently then women and African-Americans more frequently than whites.

With esophageal cancer, prevention has greater potential than treatment. In its early stages, the disease can be hard to detect. Its symptoms often do not appear until the disease has advanced. Moreover, while treatable, esophageal cancer does not have a high cure rate.

As the cancerous tumor grows in the esophagus, it becomes more difficult or painful to swallow, first food, but eventually even liquids. If you are concerned about the disease, watch out for the following symptoms:

- Heartburn, indigestion
- Hoarseness, coughs, belching
- Weight loss, vomiting
- A choking sensation when swallowing food or liquids.

Of course, these symptoms could indicate problems less serious than esophageal cancer. If they persist, however, you should consult your physician. This is especially so if you are a smoker or a drinker, or both.

When esophageal cancer is detected early enough, sometimes surgery or aggressive combined modality therapy, including simultaneous chemotherapy and radiation followed by surgery, offer possible cures. Unfortunately, quite often the disease is detected too late for a cure. Combination therapy — surgery, radiation, and chemotherapy — can also be used to treat and alleviate pain and discomfort. Clearly, prevention and early detection is the best option.

Dr. Tania Lingos

Tania Lingos is the Medical Director of South Suburban Oncology Center, located at 700 Congress Street, Quincy. South Suburban Oncology Center is a joint venture among Massachusetts General Hospital, Quincy Hospital, South Shore Hospital, and Shields Oncology Services. We can be reached at (617) 471-3700.

ENHANCED EMISSIONS & SAFETY TEST
Coming October 1

If you want to know about the upcoming enhanced emissions test, take this simple quiz.

To locate a licensed testing station, or for more information, call toll-free, 1-877-387-8234 or visit http://vehicletest.state.ma.us.

ANSWERS: 1.d. Air pollution will be decreased by 120 tons a day. States with similar emissions testing have seen a 25% decrease in air pollution from vehicles. 2.d. To avoid waiting in line, don't wait until the end of the month to have your vehicle tested. 3.d. When it rains, air pollution returns to earth to become soil and water pollution. 4.a. Because the new emissions test is better and more comprehensive, you only have to take the test every other year. The safety test, however, is still required annually. 5.a. Keep your car properly cared for and the test should be a snap. 6.d. No one in the Commonwealth benefits from air pollution, and it's toughest on our children, the elderly and those who work outdoors.

Project SAFE Offers Free Smoke Detectors

Quincy seniors will once again receive free smoke detectors, batteries and detector check stix this Fall, reports Sharron Beals, Executive Director of Beechwood on the Bay.

The city's third annual project SAFE (Smoke Alarms For Elders) aims to prevent accidents and serious injury caused by fire and falls. Detectors, detector checks and battery replacements will be provided on "SAFE Saturday" Oct. 2.

The city-wide senior project is a partnership, teaming Beechwood, the city's intergenerational center, the National Fire Protection Association based in Quincy, Quincy Fire Department and the city's three service clubs: Rotary, Kiwanis, and Lions.

This year Home Depot is joining the project. "Home Depot applauds this invaluable project and is proud to assist," said Susan Silva, Manager of Quincy's Home Depot.

Quincy has an ever increasing senior population. By the year 2003 it has been estimated that 33% (1 of 3) of Quincy's population will be over 60, with an appreciable proportion of those being "older elders" 75 and over.

To register for detectors on Senior Saturday (Oct. 2) seniors are invited to call Beechwood at 471-5712.

Foot Notes

by Dr. Richard A. Hacker
Surgeon-Podiatrist

POSTERIOR TIBIAL NEURALGIA

Posterior tibial neuralgia occurs when the nerve supplying the heel and sole is compressed or damaged or when the tissues around the nerve become inflamed. Pain develops in the ankle, foot and toes and usually has a burning or tingling quality. Symptoms are aggravated by walking and are relieved by rest, although pain sometimes continues during rest. A doctor will manipulate the foot during a physical exam to diagnose posterior tibial neuralgia. Tapping the area may cause a tingling sensation that extends to the heel, arch or toes. To relieve the pain, a combination of corticosteroids and local anesthetics may be injected into the area. Wrapping the foot and wearing specially constructed orthotics to reduce pressure may also alleviate symptoms.

There is no reason to suffer and continue to experience foot discomfort from nerve conditions, heel pain, toenail problems, skin disorders and the other myriad conditions that can affect your feet. At our office you receive the highest quality medical care coupled with the personal attention you expect and deserve. Our approach is gentle and caring at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy, and we welcome your call at 617-472-3466 for family foot care.

P.S. Surgery to release pressure on the nerve may be recommended if other treatments for posterior tibial neuralgia are unsuccessful.

Archdiocese Of Boston's Millennial On Cable Channel 56

Cable Channel 56 in Quincy will air Boston Catholic Television's extensive live coverage of the Archdiocese of Boston's kick-off event for the historic millennial project, Pilgrimage 2000: A Celebration of Faith.

It will take place at Foxboro Stadium Saturday, Sept. 25. The broadcast commences at 6:30 p.m.

Pilgrimage 2000 is an initiative for teenagers, college students, and young adults that has been organized in preparation for and celebration of the Great Jubilee Year 2000.

Saturday's kick-off event will include an original dramatic presentation based upon biblical characters and stories, and performances by noted Christian band, Jars of Clay. The event will close with a High Mass conducted by Cardinal Law, and concelebrated with priests from the area.

The Mass will actively involve young people from the 26 major language groups and more than 40 racial and ethnic groups that make up the Archdiocese of Boston. BCTV's coverage will end at the conclusion of the Mass.

Emergency "Alert" ID Program Expands For Seniors "At Risk"

An emergency service for Quincy Seniors "at risk" is being expanded, reports Sharon Beals, executive director of Beechwood on the Bay.

For several years the Quincy Police Department, the Quincy Commission on Handicapped Affairs and Beechwood Community Life Center have offered an emergency alert service, providing ID bracelets to seniors "at risk" with memory impairment.

Quincy Police Captain Al Gillan, Bill Murphy, Chairman of the Quincy Commission of Handicapped Affairs, Kathleen Prince, Beechwood's new director of elder services, and Beals met recently to assess the program and plan for the future.

The Memory Alert ID bracelets are inscribed with an ID number. If a person wearing a bracelet is found wandering or unconscious or unable to speak coherently, the person who finds them calls the police, with the ID number on the bracelet. The Police Department then notifies the registered contact person/s (family, friend, doctor, etc.) and assists as needed.

"The Memory Alert bracelet is designed for all ambulatory persons with memory impairments," stresses Beals.

When A Memory Impaired Person Wanders Off

- Search the vicinity thoroughly
- Notify the Quincy Police -- 479-1212
- Report if the person is wearing an Alert I.D. Bracelet
- Stay by the phone, or have someone else available to answer the phone
- Keep incoming and outgoing calls as brief as possible

For more information, contact Beechwood Community Life Center at 471-5712

To date, the majority of participants have been seniors living in family homes.

"We now want to promote the bracelets to assisted living facilities, rehab centers and nursing homes, wherever persons with memory impairments are ambulatory and potentially "at risk."

Captain Gillan will arrange for officers to visit facilities to further promote this expanding service."

All interested persons, families and facility directors are invited to call or visit Beechwood Community Life Center to register persons who may benefit by wearing an "alert" bracelet. Registration includes a $10 fee and is payable to the Quincy Commission on Handicapped Affairs. A completed, confidential information form and a current photo will be forwarded to the Quincy Police Department and entered into their central registry. The ID bracelet, with code number, is issued by Beechwood at the time of registration by Beechwood.

DISCUSSING PLANS for the newly expanded Emergency ID Program for Seniors "at risk" are (from left) Sharon Beals, executive director of Beechwood on the Bay, Allen Gillan, Capt. Q.P.D., Bill Murphy, Houghs Neck member of the Commission on Disabilities, and Kathleen Prince, the new director of Elder Services at Beechwood Bay.

conflict," McFarland said. "They said the interaction between the two is so minimal."

McFarland said that with no conflict problem, he will complete the two years remaining on his school committee term. And did not rule out running again.

McFarland, who owns Barry's Deli on Beale St. in Wollaston, is no stranger to City Hall.

He was named city purchasing agent and parking clerk by Mayor Sheets in February, 1994. He served there until December when Sheets tapped him for executive secretary. He held that post until June, 1997 when he decided to return to his business.

During his time as the Mayor's executive secretary he prepared municipal budgets for three fiscal years.

McFarland is a member of the Board of Directors for the Quincy Retirement Board and the Colonial Federal Savings Bank.

He is a former vice chairman of the Bridgewater Credit Union Board of Directors and a former internal auditor of the Howard Johnson Restaurant Division.

McFarland graduated cum laude from Suffolk University in 1977 with a B.S. degree in Business Administration with Concentration in Accounting.

He is a past president of the Quincy Rotary Club and active in a number of community organizations and civic causes.

McFarland lives on Summit Ave, Wollaston with his wife, the former Martha Sinclair and their three children, twins Brian and Ryan, 14, and Tara, 9.

Foy informed the City Council in July that he would be turning 73 in September and said "it is my desire to retire."

During his 17 years as auditor Foy has served during the administrations of five mayors: Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, McCauley and Sheets.

And during those 17 years he has been highly regarded by those mayors, city department heads and City Hall employees and colleagues in auditing and financial circles.

every means available to us to make sure that Dora stays there where she really belongs."

Smith is appealing the DOMA's decision as well and will explain how, although Brian's doctors and the Division of Medical Assistance had regularly classified Brian as needing hospital-level care throughout his stay at N.E. Sinai, the Division of Medical Assistance abruptly reclassified Brian in May of 1998, determining that Brian's "inpatient setting (at Sinai) is no longer medically necessary" and that medical care could be provided at a "less acute setting."

Smith said that, during Brian's six year stay at N.E. Sinai, Brian has suffered respiratory arrest three times and was once transferred to Mass General Hospital and placed on the danger list.

Smith said, "A transfer of Brian and other Ventilator Dependent patients to a nursing home places them in immediate danger to their lives."

Smith's appeal hearing is scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 22.

THE KEY OF LIFE

A new study indicates that teaching healthy elderly people to play music decreases their levels of anxiety, depression and loneliness. Better yet, the research shows that learning to play music may be a "fountain of youth" of sorts. These conclusions stem from a study in which 61 retirees leaned to play the organ over two ten-week semesters, while 69 other participants did not. It was found that those who attended the music classes experienced a marked decrease in anxiety, depression and loneliness. Moreover a comparison of the music groups blood samples before and after learning to play indicated increased levels of human growth hormone (hGH). According to some, hGH is the source of eternal youth.

If you are feeling blue, take up a new interest so that you can experience the pleasure that learning a new skill or hobby can provide. Marina Place, a senior living residence, offers opportunity for pleasure and relaxation, wonderful views and walkways, the convenience of local shops and the medical support you need when you need it. P.S. While there may be some debate over whether learning to play music leads to longer life, there is little doubt that it is relaxing.

Borrowers Have Options Despite Interest-Rate Changes

By CAROL BULMAN

Interest rates are like New England weather -- wait a bit, and they'll change.

Although we recently experienced almost a one percentage point jump, we have gained some ground and are looking at about a one-half of one percent difference in rates compared with a month ago.

Why the improvement?

Indicators which measure economic changes lead us to believe that inflation -- an increase in prices that would cause rates to rise -- is in check for now. Two such indicators are the Producer Price Index and the Consumer Price Index.

The Producer Price Index (PPI) was relatively unchanged in early August. PPI is the measure of what businesses pay to each other for goods. The August result is not expected to lead to inflation, and therefore may not lead to an increase in the overnight bank rate by Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan.

A more important indicator is the Consumer Price Index (CPI). This index comes out later in the month and is a number that is watched quite carefully. This past month, CPI was also relatively unchanged.

Although interest rates have been volatile during the last 30 days, statistics show that the housing market has not been adversely affected, as housing starts increased by 5.7 percent in July following a 5.8 percent decline in June.

In an environment when rates are uncertain, other types of loans are considered:

So, how are people financing their homes today?

There are many options to consider, including:

1. Wait for the rates to settle down some more. This could pay off, but it is obviously a gambler's game.

CAROL BULMAN

2. Consider an adjustable-rate mortgage (ARM) for the short term. An ARM will save considerable amounts in the short run, and may be the best situation even in the long run. It is worth an analysis based on the difference in the rate, how long you expect to remain in the home, and, of course, the worst-case scenario during these times.

For example, today a fixed-rate $100,000 loan amortized over 30 years would cost approximately $716 per month in principal and interest, while a one-year adjustable rate would cost about $600.

3. During the past decade, a hybrid of the traditional ARM and fixed-rate mortgage has evolved. Described as a 10/1, 7/1, 5/1, or 3/1, these loans stay fixed for a period of time (10, 7, 5, or 3 years) then automatically convert to a one-year ARM. The advantage is that for the price of a one-year ARM down the road, the borrower receives a lower interest rate for the fixed period.

On the same example of a $100,000 over 30 years, a 3/1 (fixed for three years and converting to a one-year adjustable rate for the life of the loan) would save a borrower about $40 per month. It is definitely a program to be considered.

4. A "buydown" mortgage also is an option. A buydown is a feature of a fixed-rate mortgage that allows a customer to literally "buy" the interest down to a lower starting rate to allow for greater affordability. The "buydown amount" is the difference between the payment of the actual rate (the going interest rate) and the bought-down rate paid up front. This amount can be paid by the seller, builder, relative or, of course, the borrower.

Now, let's think really out of the proverbial box.

1. Construction loans. There is still a lot of open land available, especially in some of the less-developed, rural areas of the state. Consider building your dream home by doing it yourself. By choosing an affordable piece of property and lining up a group of contractors to work with you, you may find this is the most affordable option.

2. Land loans are much more affordable today. If your dream house is in the distant future, consider purchasing a piece of land that you love and budget the payment for this first, then look toward building when things seem more affordable.

Life is all perspective. When rates were in the double digits, any loan program under 10 percent was a bargain. So remain open-minded and consider something other than the traditional, 30-year fixed-rate loan and your dream house may become reality.

MAR Urges Increase Of Lead Paint Tax Credit

The Massachusetts Association of Realtors® (MAR) is urging the state Legislature to increase the tax credit afforded to property owners who delead their homes and/or apartments as a necessary step to promote continued compliance with the state and federal lead paint laws.

In testimony recently presented to the Joint Committee on Taxation, the MAR said an increase in credit from the current $1,500 per unit to $2,500 per unit was appropriate to keep pace with the escalating costs of lead paint abatement, which have risen steadily since the tax credit was last raised in 1994.

"This bill is essential to promoting a lead-safe environment for our children," said MAR President James Dougherty. "Unless we keep costs to delead financially-feasible for homeowners and landlords, we'll be perpetuating an environment in which the state's older housing stock poses a potential health risk to our young kids."

Under Massachusetts law, owners of housing build before 1978 must remove or encapsulate lead-based paint hazards whenever a child under the age of six resides on the premises. Statewide, it is estimated that 1.175 million housing units, or nearly 50 percent of all housing in the commonwealth, contains lead paint, according to the state Department of Public Health.

With much of the state's rental housing market currently enjoying near record low vacancy levels, it's an ideal time for many multi-family homeowners to reinvest in their properties, according to MAR officials. "The Legislature must recognize that by raising the lead paint tax credit they will be establishing a substantial economic incentive that's sure to encourage more property owners to delead," said MAR CEO Robert Nash.

"We strongly support this measure as a tool that will improve the condition of the state's rental housing units, and further ensure the Legislature's goals for the Commonwealth's lead paint program are achieved," Nash added.

Steve Chu Regional Lending Manager For Bank Of Canton

The Bank of Canton announces that Steve S.L. Chu has joined the Bank's mortgage division as Regional Lending Manager for the Boston and Quincy areas.

The Bank of Canton has been a leader in mortgage lending for many years, offering customers variety, personal service, and exceptionally competitive rates.

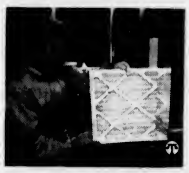
Chu, a Roslindale resident, received his MBA with a concentration in Finance from Northeastern University. He has worked as an Asian Sales Manager for G.H. Bass & Company of Maine, and most recently as a Sales Engineer for the Asia Pacific region for Franklin Electric Co.

STEVE CHU

Mark Fisher, The Bank of Canton's Vice President of Mortgage Lending, said:

"We are very fortunate to have Steve joining our team. Steve's international education, coupled with his enthusiasm and experience, will undoubtedly enhance The Bank of Canton's reputation as a leader in mortgage lending for the region."

Chu said he is looking forward to working with Bank of Canton mortgage customers, especially the Bank's Asian customers.



"I want to ensure that the mortgage process and our product options are clearly explained to my customers," he said. "I believe my ability to speak both fluent Chinese and Japanese, as well as English, will prove to both the Bank of Canton and its customers."

Don't Get Burned By Your Furnace

(NAPS)—Ignoring your home furnace is not such a hot idea.

According to a recent American Lung Association survey, more than three in four American homeowners have a forced air heating or cooling system. To keep your furnace operating safely and effectively, it's wise to have it inspected on an annual basis.

A well-maintained furnace will help save money on energy bills and may result in cleaner air throughout the home. To help ensure your furnace is operating at peak efficiency, follow these tips, courtesy of heating and ventilation experts at 3M:

For improved air quality at home, use a high-efficiency gas furnace filter and replace it on a regular basis.

• Use a carbon monoxide detector in your home to alert you if lethal fumes begin escaping from your furnace.

• Make sure the furnace is properly lit with a steady blue pilot flame. If the pilot light goes out—or if it's burning with a yellow or orange flame that tends to flicker—have the furnace inspected by a professional home heating contractor.

• If the gas furnace is properly lit, be aware of a smell like a burning clothes iron. Such a smell may mean the furnace is burning too hot because of a dirty furnace filter.

• Use a high efficiency furnace filter and replace it every two to three months. A high-efficiency filter—such as the Filtrete micro particle and airborne allergen reduction filter from 3M—meets the American Lung Association Health House Project's indoor air quality guidelines. This filter not only protects the furnace, but also contains electrostatically charged fibers which capture up to 30 times more particles than standard fiberglass filters.

• Have your gas furnace inspected by a professional home heating contractor who checks for the following industry standards:

* thermostat calibration—an improperly calibrated thermostat will result in too much or too little heat
* heat exchangers—inspecting for cracks and corrosion
* blower—a clean, well-running blower promotes good filtration
* burners—a professional should judge the characteristics of the flame
* fan control—ensures the fan turns on and off at predetermined temperatures
* venting system—all the flue connections and elbows should be firmly fitted. There should be no cracks, openings or obstructions where the flue connects to the chimney or side wall.

As part of an ongoing educational partnership, 3M is offering a Guide for Creating a Healthier Home, filled with tips from the American Lung Association Health House Project to improve air quality in the home. To obtain a copy of this booklet, free of charge, call 1-800-388-3458.

Or send an e-mail request with your name and mailing address to 3mfiltrete@3mservice.montagenet.com.

Health Care Forum Tonight At United Methodist Church

Members of the Committee to Defend and Improve Health Care will review and analyze the facts of the current health care crisis at a forum tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

The forum will also consider a proposed solution to the health care crisis and a statewide ballot initiative recently field with the Attorney General.

Admission is free and open to all.

A signature drive will get underway this fall to place a binding question on the Massachusetts ballot in November, 2000. If approved, initiative petition would:

- Ensure access to high quality care for all Massachusetts residents;
- Guarantee patients and clinicians legally protected rights;
- Place a moratorium on converting non-profit health care facilities to for-profit status.

For more information, call the Committee to Defend and Improve Health Care at 617-576-7741.

ON SECOND THOUGHT

The newest idea in leasing involves pre-owned vehicles. The idea is rooted in the fact that car dealers are faced with an inordinate number of vehicles that are coming off new car leases. These two and three year old vehicles are being offered to the public with very attractive payments. Why? Any lease is predicated on paying for the vehicle's depreciation over the term of the lease. Because a disproportionate share of the vehicle's depreciation has likely already occurred over the term of the initial lease, consumers with second leases may well have payments below those associated with a new lease or used car loan. To make the deal even sweeter, look to lease a pre-owned vehicle with its bumper-to-bumper warranty still in effect.

Keeping your car in top condition whether it is owned, leased, new, or pre-owned will greatly extend its life. Here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, for most of your car's repairs, we have modern test equipment, the right parts, and the best ASE Certified service technicians available in the area. We also use the AllData CD-Rom based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. Get acquainted with us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). and let's get acquainted. Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Open: Mon-Fri 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: According to luxury car manufacturers who presently offer used car leases, one in ten used cars are leased.

Mayor, Mrs. Sheets To Be Honored Sunday For Family Values is to work toward restoring personal dignity to those who would otherwise not be able to afford counselling.

Sheets has been a supporter of the agency's mission and its development here in Quincy.

Sister Joanne Westwater who founded the agency five years ago and is its director said :

"The Sheets' family is a role model of a wholesome, healthy and productive family. A family based on love, respect and trust for each other. This is the best and strongest foundation of family values that our agency treasures. We are proud to present this first award to such a wonderful family.

The Sheets have four children and three grandchildren and expecting a fourth shortly.

The agency will present the mayor with a U.S. flag that will be flown at City Hall the day after the brunch in his honor, and then presented to him to keep.

Advance tickets are required and cost $25. All proceeds will go the Maria Droste Services to help those in need of counselling.

Tickets may be obtained by calling 617-471-5686 or requesting a reservation via fax at 617-471-6622.

Neighbors Complain About Noise At Distribution Firm

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Complaints against Interstate Distributors, Inc. 199 Commander Shea Blvd. peaked Tuesday as the License Board heard from frustrated neighbors and Atty. Nancy McNally, one of the residents at 90 Quincy Shore Drive.

McNally told the board that she has witnessed "outrageous noise" from plant machinery at all hours during the night around the clock "destroying the peace of the neighborhood".

Calling the situation a "full blown 24 hour operation" and one that is "destroying the peace of the neighborhood", McNally added that large diesel trucks continually idle their motors for hours at a time. Also noise of employees laughing and talking out loud causing an interruption of sleep to all residents, especially those in poor health and the elderly.

She cited how dangerous it is to "pull out of the driveway" because the view is blocked with tractor trailer trucks.

Atty. Peter Eeley, representing Interstate, told the board that the company, which distributes countless magazines all over the country, has been at the site since the 70's. He said he was told that at times, trucks ":might show up early:" to unload the magazines.

Other neighbors complained of the noise and possible fire hazards from platforms and the storage of fuel. Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said the company was "up to code" and that he was "satisfied" with the requirements followed by the company.

Chairman Joseph Shea recounted that complaints at Interstate first surfaced in April. 1993, which ended up in court. He said he hadn't heard many complaints since that time, but admitted "something has changed". He added that the situation has a "long shelf life". and added "maybe they're doing a bigger business".

Health Inspector Jane Gallahue said the matter of the amount of time of "idling" must be addressed

Eeley said he would be willing to meet with Ayers and the abutters.

Ayers said he would "outline some of the concerns" at the meeting. and although the neighbors are not "anti-business" he said he hoped the meeting would ultimitely "give the peace and quiet they deserve."

Police Chief Thomas Frane said as far as the hours of operation, (not before 7 a.m. not after 6 p.m.) the "city ordinance is clear" and that an enforcement agency will have to monitor the company for 30 days and report to the board on Oct. 26.

Frane said he would place police officers on a timely basis and that submit a report with the results of the monitoring by the police.

Retired Teachers Assn. Scholarship Honors Columbine Teacher, Students

The Quincy Retired Teacher's Association Scholarship Fund Inc. has received a letter of thanks from the superintendent in charge of Columbine High School for QRTA's scholarship honoring the students and one teacher who lost their lives in last spring's shooting.

Jane Hammond, superintendent of the Jefferson County Public Schools in Golden, Colorado wrote:

"Events at Columbine High School have shaken all of us, and we are very appreciative of the many friends and colleagues and others who have contacted us to lend support. These past few months have been extremely trying, but we have been touched and consoled by the outpouring of concern and prayers

The QRTA awarded 31 individual scholarships to Quincy and North Quincy graduates totaling $111,200.

Jimmy Tan of Quincy High School won the Columbine award.

How To Battle The Flu

Battling the sneezing, coughing, aches and fever of the flu starts with a few tactical moves to banish the bug, according to the health care professionals at Dedham-based Visiting Nurses Associates, a VNA Care Network agency.

"The flu tends to hit suddenly and hard," said Sandra Carlson, RN, clinical education specialist for Visiting Nurse Associates. "Unlike a cold, which is spread by over 100 viruses each year, the flu is spread by just a few viruses through direct contact with an infected person."

Last year, Visiting Nurse Associates and its affiliated VNA Care Network agencies administered more than 6,000 flu shots in private homes, businesses and community sites in eastern Massachusetts. Visiting Nurse Associates also brings health care into people's homes south and west of Boston.

According to Carlson, some of the best ways to avoid the flu include the following:

- Washing your hands often with soap and warm water
- Getting plenty of rest when you feel sick
- Avoiding touching or rubbing your nose and eyes

A flu shot is another preventative, but is not for everyone. Those who benefit most from the flu shot are those most likely to be exposed to or endangered by the illness including healthcare workers, the elderly, and people with chronic heart, lung, or kidney disease.

Individuals who choose to get a flu shot should do so eight to 10 weeks prior to the height of the flu season in winter and early spring. Mild flu like symptoms are possible, and the shot is not guaranteed.

Flu vaccines are formulated based on outbreaks which have occurred in the past and may not stop newer viruses which cause the spread of the illness today.

If you get the flu, Visiting Nurse Associates offers these tips to help alleviate flu symptoms:

- Take Acetaminophen (Tylenol, Tempra) or Ibuprofen (Advil, Nuprin) to reduce fever and alleviate aches. Follow medication dosage and check warnings on the box.
- Get plenty of rest, especially if you are running a fever.
- Drink lots of fluids, like water and juice to prevent dehydration from fever and help loosen mucous.
- Avoid dairy products which can increase and thicken mucous.
- To alleviate a sore throat try drinking hot tea with lemon and honey, gargling with warm water and salt, and using lozenges or a sore throat spray.
- Stop smoking and avoid second-hand smoke which can worsen symptoms.
- Avoid alcohol.

Don't underestimate the seriousness of the flu. Over 90 million cases of the flu are reported each year. Of these millions, over 150,000 will result in hospitalization and an average of 20,000 will result in death each year. The flu can be most serious for individuals with other diseases and health conditions such as kidney disease, cystic fibrosis, diabetes, anemia, cancer, severe asthma, long-term heart or lung problems, and immunological disorder.

It is recommended by the American Academy of Family Physicians to see your doctor if the following symptoms persist: your cold lasts more than 10 days; earache or drainage from the ear; severe pain in your face or forehead; temperature above 102 degrees (F); shortness of breath; hoarseness, sore throat or cough that won't go away; and wheezing.

Hearing aid "Tips from Tobias"

Stephen P. Tobias
Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist

When do I need a hearing aid?

This question is debatable, but there are several things to ask yourself. Are you turning up the TV louder than others can tolerate? Do you avoid social situations that often prove embarrassing? How often do you ask people to repeat themselves? All of these symptoms point to a hearing loss that is affecting your lifstyle. A hearing loss is frustrating experience. You should always have a loss examined in case of underlying medical conditions. If you choose to try a hearing aid, it is because you want to live life to it's fullest. It's a mentally tough person that says "I want to hear better I don't care what it takes." Years ago vanity was an issue, now with completely in-the-canal models it isn't. Background noise also has been greatly reduced with the advent of digital and programmable products. The human brain wants to hear, it is more difficult to recover from a hearing loss when you wait too long. Hearing is a learned process and the brain needs continuous practice processing information sent from the inner ear. We offer a sixty day trial, so "what are you waiting for"? Now you go and spread the news! -Steve

North Looks To Rebound Friday At Whitman-Hanson

Raiders Can't Stop LaCasse, Stoughton

By CHRIS POISSON

Stoughton's Ryan LaCasse, standing at 6-foot-3, 215 pounds, is a giant. And Saturday night the fullback made his presence felt as he simply stomped all over North Quincy.

The junior racked up video-game type stats, finishing with 192 yards on 17 carries, to guide Stoughton to an easy 27-0 victory against North Quincy (0-1-1) at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

North Quincy hits the road Friday to take on Whitman-Hanson Regional.

LaCasse rushed for 121 second-half yards as the Black Knights scored 20 points to break open what was a 7-0 game at halftime. LaCasse also had a 55-yard TD run, but it was called back because of a holding penalty.

"He's a good back," said head coach Peter Chrisom, Jr. "I knew that coming in. And he took it to us in the second half. I guess we just weren't ready to play."

After a dominant defensive outing in a 16-16 tie against Medford in Week 1, the Red Raiders made a sharp U-Turn. And the offense, if you can call it that, wasn't a pretty sight, either.

North Quincy punted five times, fumbled twice, threw two interceptions and missed a field goal. It doesn't get much worse.

"Disappointing, to say the least," Chrisom said. "I thought they were ready to play. I really did. We're going to have to go back to the board and straighten things out."

Senior fullback Brian Deptula (1 carry for 2 yards) left the game in the first quarter with a sprained knee, which also plagued him in the first game. His absence was part of the reason for the offensive debacle.

"We're being cautious with him," Chrisom said. "We have to get that taken care of. I can't afford to lose him for the season."

Stoughton scored on its opening drive when senior quarterback Joe Pascarelli connected with senior tight end Keith Motley for a 17-yard TD on a play-action pass for a 7-0 lead.

North Quincy had several chances to score, but couldn't take advantage of Stoughton's turnovers. It's best opportunity came when Stoughton fumbled at its own 18-yard line. North Quincy didn't move the ball and ended up missing a 36-yard field goal.

Junior Max Repoff replaced senior Sean Adams at quarterback to start the second half, but he couldn't jump start the team.

"I just felt things weren't really clicking," Chrisom said. "I thought maybe a change would help. That didn't seem to work."

The Red Raiders still had a shot to get back in the game near the end of the third when junior defensive back Joey Holleran picked off a Pascarelli pass. But Adams, who moved to tailback, coughed up the ball two plays later.

LaCasse and junior fullback Mike Horan (81 rushing yards) led Stoughton down the field, and junior Shawn Ireland plunged in from the 2 to make it 14-0 with 1:33 left in the third.

"In the first half we held our own," Chrisom said. "In the second half we drove the ball down and fumbled. They went right in and that TD killed us. That deflated us."

Stoughton added two touchdowns in the fourth. Horan busted loose for a 25-yard TD run with 8:50 left for the first score. The PAT failed.

SENIOR STEVE MINUKAS (37) tries to slip between two Stoughton defenders in North Quincy's 27-0 loss on Saturday.

(Quincy Sun Photos/Tom Gorman)

KICKER MIKE REIDY attempts a 36-yard field goal and like North Quincy's other drives, it came up short.

Repoff threw his second interception on North Quincy's next possession, which led to a LaCasse 41-yard TD run with 7:11 left to close out the scoring.

Granite Whip Lawrence

So far this football season the City of Quincy hasn't had much to celebrate, as Quincy High School and North Quincy High School are off to a combined 0-3-1 start.

But don't forget about the Quincy Granite. After a two-week hiatus, the Granite (3-1) finally came back Saturday night to whip the Lawrence Lightning, 34-6, on the road.

The Granite had a bye week two weeks ago and last Saturday they were scheduled to face a non-league opponent, but that team backed out of the game.

"Those two weeks off were good," said captain David Harris. "We got some rest and it let us heal some of our injured players. We wanted to get out there and start hitting again. We wanted to bump people around and it just happen to be them.

"It was a stomping. We played some good ball. The defense played great all night. We shut them down."

And Quincy did this without Liam Higgins, its starting quarterback, and Ryan Craig, a starting linebacker. Both players are assistant coaches for North Quincy and had to attend Saturday's game.

Back-up James Rendle filled in for Higgins and got the job done with three touchdown passes. He hit widout Bill MacDougall for 25 yards, Derek Epps for 20 and Will Felix for a 30-yard strike.

"He stepped it up and played a terrific game. Give him a lot of credit," Harris said.

But it was the offensive line that shined as they allowed no sacks and led a ground attack that rushed for 250 yards. Bernard Lynch had a 40-yard TD run and Farouk Brown had a 5-yarder.

The offensive line was missing starters Duane Holmes and Joe Glover, but defensive end Al "Head Case" Casey joined the offensive group. Casey, Mike Lynch, Harris, Frank Baxter and Dave Joyce combined for the line's attack.

Joyce, who played with 102-degree temperature, was spectacular.

"He was sick as a dog and still played," Harris said. "It was the best anyone has played all year. Everyone was talking about him."

The Granite led 12-6 at the half. The only score the defense gave up came on a fluke pass with 20 seconds left in the second quarter.

The defense, led by captain Sean Halpin and Frank Calabro, limited the Lightning to under 75 yards in total offense. The defensive ends and defensive backs also had strong games.

Bob Chiavaroli and John Skiebekis had interceptions.

The offense, which has started off slowly in first halves this season, turned it up in the second half with three TDs.

"In the third we put the afterburners on," Harris said. "[Head coach] Ken McPhee gave us a speech at the half and told us what we had to take care of. We came out with our guns drawn, and just came out blazing."

The Granite travel to Cawley Stadium Saturday to square off against the defending New England Football League champs, Lowell Nor'Easter (5-0).

Lowell blanked the Boston Bandits (4-1), 33-0, in its last game.

"This game is important for us to win," Harris said. "We're looking forward to it. We have to come out fired up at the start. We can't wait until the third or fourth quarter to start doing something."

Manets Down Panthers, 24-14

The Houghs Neck Manets defeated the Quincy Point Panthers, 24-14, in the second week of Quincy Youth Football League action.

The Manets (2-0) got on the board first with some solid running from Roger Palermo to take an early 8-0 lead. With just over a minute remaining the Panthers (1-1) scored on an interception by D.J. Andrews.

Justin Thorley, J.J. Naimkey and Ed DeWitt also hooked up numerous times as the Panthers had to put their passing game into action.

With six seconds left on the clock, the Manets got off a final play and ran the ball 40 yards into the end zone to go up 16-8 at intermission.

Houghs Neck used the ground game to its advantage throughout the second half. The Panthers only garnered five offensive plays in the half.

Mark Hutchins picked off a Manets' pass, but the Panthers offensive drive was stalled at the 25-yard line.

The Manets scored in the third quarter for a 24-14 lead. They held the ball in the fourth quarter, keeping the game plan on the ground to take the victory.

The Panthers had a strong defensive effort from Josh Webb.

Josh Giordani played a solid offensive game for the Manets.

Quincy Runners Among Winners

Over 1,500 Participate In Degan Road Race

The Seventh Annual William F. Degan Memorial Road Race was held Sunday at Veteran Memorial Stadium.

Over 1,500 runners and walkers participated in this year's race, marking the largest turnout for the event.

This 10k & 5k road race is held in honor of Bill Degan (Deputy, United States Federal Marshal Service, Lieutenant Colonel, U.S. Marine Corp), who was killed in the line of duty in Aug. of 1992 while working for the Marshal Service.

Participants included many law enforcement agencies and military personal from different parts of the country.

The overall winner of the 5k race was Abdirizak Mohamud of Boston in a time of 15:03. The top runner in the 10k was Fabio Franciso, who finished in 33:55.

In the men's 70-98 age group, Quincy's Richard Morrissey came in first with a time of 51:47, while Quincy's William Cox (57:15) and East Boston's Herbert Leyland (61:32) finished second and third, respectively.

Presidents Fall As Randolph Rallies

By CHRIS POISSON

For 33 minutes Quincy was the better team. It had built a 21-6 lead entering the fourth quarter and seemed on the verge of a win, something it hasn't tasted since the 1997 Thanksgiving Day game.

But how quickly things can change, as Randolph rallied back to kick a field goal with five seconds left to escape with a 23-21 win Saturday afternoon at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Quincy (0-2) will play Catholic Memorial Friday night at home, in a game that was originally scheduled for the road.

The Presidents have now lost 12 straight games, leaving head coach Bob Noble for a loss of words. Former North Quincy coach Ken McPhee tried to cheer Noble up after the game, but Noble left with his head down.

"I don't know what to say," Noble said. "The kids played their hearts out. I don't know what to do. We must be doing something wrong in life. We just can't seem to get a break when we need one."

The back-breaker came at the start of the fourth when Randolph linebacker Justin Marceline stormed through Quincy's line to block a punt, which he returned 22 yards for a touchdown to cut the lead to 21-14.

"We have to just get a punt off, and they block it for a touchdown," Noble said. "We were playing great. Blocked punt turns the game around. Just turns the game around. Turns the game around."

No doubt. On Quincy's next possession senior running back Chris Regens, who returned the kickoff to Randolph's 37-yard line, fumbled on first down.

It didn't take long for Randolph to capitalize as bruising fullback Reginald Guillaume (108 rushing yards) pounded out a 55-yard run down to the 12-yard line. Two plays later he scored from 5 yards out to cut the lead to 21-20 with 9:15 left to play. The PAT failed.

Quincy took about six minutes off the clock before punting on its next possession, leaving Randolph 80 yards away with 3:34 on the clock. More than enough time.

On the drive, Randolph made plays as Quincy's defense couldn't buckle down to shut the door on the comeback. On third-and-nine, senior tailback Brit Keel reeled off a 21-yard run for a first down.

And then on fourth-and-10, quarterback Mike O'Brien hit Guillaume for a 39-yard screen play to set up Marceline's game-winning field goal from 25 yards out.

"Once again there comes a time when you have to step up and make plays," Noble said. "We give them two big runs, and a big pass play on fourth-and-10 to set up the field goal. I don't know what to say anymore."

Quincy, banged up in Week 1, was shorthanded as senior wideouts Nick DiStasi and Andy Tam looked on from the sidelines. But senior quarterback Dan Kelly (10 of 17 for 154 yards and 2 TDs) played an inspiring first half.

He put Quincy on the board first with a 6-yard TD run with 1:23 left in the first quarter. He had kept that drive alive with a 21-yard strike to Regens on fourth-and-19.

On its next possession, Kelly converted on three third downs before firing a 4-yard bullet to junior wideout Gregg Walsh for a 13-0 lead with 5:26 left in the half. The PAT failed.

Randolph got six before halftime when Guillaume had a 10-yard burst up the middle on fourth-and-one.

Quincy controlled the third and built its 21-6 lead when senior running back Russell Mullen hauled in a 22-yard pass from Kelly to cap off a 4:56 drive. Kelly ran in the two-point conversion.

QUINCY'S CHRIS REGENS (36) races 21 yards on a screen pass to convert on fourth-and-19, which set up Quincy's first touchdown of the game.

SENIOR RUSSELL MULLEN (22) finds a hole for a 4-yard run in Saturday's 23-21 last second loss to Randolph. Mullen hauled in a 16-yard TD reception for Quincy's third score.

Recreation Exercise Classes Start Sept. 27 At Lincoln-Hancock School

Quincy Recreation will conduct two different exercise classes on Monday and Wednesday evenings at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Gym at 6:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. beginning Sept. 27 with registration at the program.

The 6:30 p.m. class is a safe and effective "no-jolt" aerobics class designed to strengthen heart and lungs, burn fat, and firm muscles.

The 7:30 p.m. class is a one hour total body workout designed to target all of the major muscle groups. The class offers a safe effective combination of a good warm-up, light stretching, and resistance work for the upper and lower body. It tones, firms, and strengthens the whole body.

Both offerings are taught by Sandra Verhault, a certified aerobics instructor.

Regristration for the program features two separate options for payment. A $35 one-time fee for all classes, from Sept. 27 to Dec. 22 or $3 for each individual class, payable at the time of class.

Participants in the 6:30 p.m. class may also participate in the adult swim which starts at 7:55 p.m. in the pool located in the same building.

For more information, call Quincy Recreation Department at 376-1394.

Apaches Blank Elks For First Win

The North Quincy Apaches recorded their first win of the 1999 season with a 22-0 victory against the West Quincy Elks.

Apache quarterback Tim Watson led the attack as he rushed for two touchdowns and passed to Bill Cosgrove for the third.

In the first quarter, Apache defensive end Andy McCallister blocked an Elks' punt to set up Watson's first touchdown, a 1-yard quarterback keeper. Watson also ran in the two-point conversion on a bootleg to give the Apaches an early 8-0 lead.

The Apache defense, led by a solid performance from linebacker Anthony Wall, controlled the line of scrimmage and frustrated the Elks' offensive attack.

In the second quarter, Watson threw a bullet to Cosgrove in the right flat, who then raced 40 yards for the touchdown. Running back Vincenzo Prisco carried the ball in for the two-point conversion for a 16-0 lead at the half.

In the second half, the Apaches faced fourth-and-three from midfield before Watson raced 45 yards into the end zone. The two-point conversion failed.

The Apaches' offensive line, led by Tim Chiaccio and Pat O'Donnell, gave Watson plenty of time to throw the ball, and opened holes for the running backs.

Defensively, the Apaches got strong performances from Wall, Prisco, Kyle Carmody and Josh Hersey.

Sunday, the Apaches will face the undefeated Houghs Neck Manets at 1 p.m. The Panthers will square off with the Squantum Storm at 2:30 p.m.. The Elks will meet the Milton Mustangs in the 4 p.m. game.

In other games, the Manets defeated the Panthers, 24-14, and Milton shut out Squantum, 22-0.

North Cross Country Sweeps

North Quincy took both ends of a match at Plymouth South High School. In the girls' meet, North Quincy put eight girls in the top 10 to clinch victory.

Lynda Wilson, Sarah Houghton, Natalie Caron and Linda Nguyen finished 2-5, respectively, while Christine Marre, Genevieve O'Brien and Kellyrose O'Brien took 8-9-10.

In boys' meet, North secured the top 3 places for an automatic win. Jeff Bartoloni, Brian Breslin and John Fidalgo went 1-2-3. Steve Barkowski and Frank Alibrandi finished 10 and 11.

North Quincy took on Silver Lake Tuesday (Sept. 21) at Pageant Field.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

To be able to say "Mine has been a helpful life," is probably the most satisfying statement anyone can make. And so many people are able to say just that. There are so many ways to be helpful, one to another. One does not have to be rich and donate large sums to worthy causes. Nor does one have to be poor from a life of unselfish service. Helpfulness knows no social class nor recognizes no religious distinctions. Helpfulness is simply an opening of the heart to the needs of others and doing the little things that mean so much

Have you ever been in trouble and had a person say to you in a helpful, considerate and friendly voice say, "I'll do my best for you, right away." Those words, that mean care by someone, roll away the dark clouds and let the sunshine in . . .

Think about how much nicer life would be if more people would show more kindness, more consideration, more friendliness to each other . . .

Yes, a little more honest friendliness; a little more consideration; a little more kindness will, in general, make everyone's day go a little bit better.

We are always pleased to hear from you about your comments concerning the thoughts you read here . . .

QUINCY OFFICIALS welcomed a strong AARP presence at its 4th annual Senior Conference held Sept. 18 at the Broad Meadows Middle School. Here John Noonan, chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging; Mayor James A. Sheets; Joseph Perkins, AARP president; Walt Sanders, Massachusetts AARP president; Linda Stice, executive director of the Quincy Commission on the Family; and Brian Buckley, director of the Quincy Council on Aging, pose for a photo at one of the school's entrances. Besides honored guests Perkins and Sanders, Lillian Glickman, secretary of the Executive Office of Elder Affairs, was the keynote speaker. 225 Quincy seniors attended the conference. (John Black/Presidential Camera)

Mayor Sheets said, "Without Governor Cellucci, we would have announced the closing of Quincy Hospital two days ago."

Most seniors praised the "intergenerational" aspect of the conference, most notably the 17 volunteer students from Broad Meadows called "workerbees" headed by Donna Willoughby.

" I want the city to know how wonderful these kids are," said Marilyn Reisberg, who was showing some of her work for an art class. "They insisted on carrying my easel, my paintings, everything. I loved their enthusiasm."

Sanders, Perkins, and Glickman all received gifts for their visits to Quincy, Glickman receiving the new Quincy scarf which she said would serve as a reminder of the many of the historic sites she had visited with her daughter.

Chief One Bear gave the luncheon invocation. Transportation to the event was provided for all Quincy seniors.

Bank Of Canton Investment Seminar

Brian J. Allsop, financial advisor through Infinex Financial Group, will present a seminar entitled, "Strategies For Your Financial Security", Wednesday, Sept. 22 from 7 to 9 p.m. at The Bank of Canton, 275 Quincy Ave., Quincy.

The seminar is appropriate for various age groups and will include topics such as planning for your future, maximizing retirement income, growing your assets, and reducing taxes.

As part of the seminar, participatns will have an opportunity to learn how appropriate planning and investing can help them achieve their financial goals. Real-life examples will be used as well as explanations of mutual funds, tax deferred annuities, stocks, bonds and insurance, as a means to achieve those goals.

"We are pleased to bring Quincy area residents this opportunity to learn how to make their money work for them." said Michael Higgins, the Quincy Branch Manager. "Brian is knowledgeable and easy to understand. He can really help people find their way through the maze of financial advice and opportunities," she said.

Differences: 1. Rug is missing. 2. Hat is backward. 3. Dinner is shorter. 4. Man's hair is different. 5. Sun has fewer rays. 6. Smoke have been added.

CRITIC'S CORNER

BLUE STREAK: Two years ago, talented jewel thief Miles Logan (Martin Lawrence) was forced to hide his stolen, precious diamond at a construction site when his $20 million heist went bad. Today, Logan is out of jail – and willing to go to outrageous lengths to get that diamond back.

The site where he hid the diamond is now an L.A. police precinct. In this flick, a hilarious comedy packed with high-voltage action directed by Les Mayfield, Miles impersonates a detective in the hopes of making a quick and easy getaway with the rock. But teamed with rookie partner Carlson (Luke Wilson), Logan instead becomes the toast of the department.

This one has them bowling in the aisles. It's a three-starrer!

JAKOB THE LIAR: In Nazi-occupied Poland during World War II, poor Jewish cafe owner Jakob Heym (Robin Williams) accidentally overhears a forbidden radio news bulletin signaling Soviet military successes against German forces. To combat the overwhelming depression and suicide that pervades the ghetto, Jakob invents fictitious news bulletins about Allied advances against the Nazis. These lies keep hope and humor alive among the ghetto inhabitants – spirits are lifted, hearts are refreshed and optimism is reborn. The Germans learn of the mythical radio, however, and begin a search for the resistance hero who dares operate it.

Williams once again turns in a phenomenal performance. He is aided and abetted by the stellar company of Alan Arkin, Michael Jeter and Armin Mueller-Stahl, along with Bob Balaban and Liev Schreiber.

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Check your reflexes before you venture out to face the world. The obstacles in your path can only be maneuvered by a shrewd and experienced navigator.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Make sure your foundations are sturdy before you move on to more lofty goals. Be prepared to answer intelligent questions.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) If you put your evidence and your research on the table, your product may sell itself. If it doesn't, know when and where to apply pressure.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Changes made slowly and steadily tend to last longer than changes made in haste. Keep this fact in mind as you try to change your life.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Everyone vies for a few minutes of your time. It is a valuable commodity, but it's only as golden as the actions of the owner.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Everything and everyone is yours for the taking at this time. Because of this fact, you must decide carefully what – and whom – you need to pursue.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Sometimes an excess of information makes it impossible to reach conclusions or decisions. Seek a second or third opinion if it will make your burden easier.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 22) Listen carefully to what is being said. Someone has ulterior motives. It's up to you to sort it out.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) If you have been waiting to confront someone, set up a meeting with that person now. You are ready to defend yourself without starting a fight.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Change your pace or your style in order to match everyone else. Originality is usually an asset, but at this time it could hinder your progress.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You are more than ever an object of beauty and enjoyment. You make your surroundings more comfortable and luxurious simply by being present.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Does your body seem to be flawed, weak and pained? Recognize that a serious bout of hypochondria may be the most major thing you're suffering.

YOU BORN THIS WEEK: The progression and improvement of humanity is a task to which you are quite willing to dedicate much of your life. Change, you believe, is absolutely necessary and should not be feared. Although your explorer's attitude makes some people nervous, they can't deny that you have their best interests in mind.

INVITATION TO BID

CITY OF QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS
Department of Public Works
INVITATION TO BID

The Department of Public Works for the City of Quincy, Massachusetts will receive sealed bids for The Washington Street Business District Revitalization Project: Phase I until 10:00 AM local time on Thursday, October 7, 1999 in the offices of the Commissioner of Pubic Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The work under this contract consists of undergrounding of the existing overhead utility systems (electrical, telephone, cable, fire alarm and traffic interconnect), replacing the existing street lights, installation of secondary electrical distribution, chain link fences, cement concrete sidewalks, granite curbing, traffic islands and median strips and other associated works.

All work shall be performed in accordance with the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Highway Department Standard Specifications for Highways and Bridges and Construction Standards, as last revised, unless specified otherwise.

All work under this contract shall be completed within 180 calendar days, not including work stoppage periods during winter months.

A non-refundable deposit of $75.00 in cash or check payable to the City of Quincy shall be required for each set of Contract Documents. Bidders requesting Contract Documents by mail shall also include an additional non-refundable mail fee of $15.00 in cash or check payable to the City of Quincy.

The Contract Documents may be obtained during the business hours of 8:30 AM to 3:30 PM at the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, Engineering Division, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 on or after September 22, 1999.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of five percent (5%) of the total value of the bid in the form described in the Instruction to Bidders. The Successful Bidder must furnish a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Performance Bond and a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Payment Bond with a surety company acceptable to the City. The bidding and award of this contract shall be in full compliance with Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 30, Section 39M, as last revised.

All Federal, State and City of Quincy regulations in relation to Minority Business Enterprise, Women's Business Enterprise, Minority Work Force, Equal Employment Opportunity, Employment of Quincy Residents and Minimum Wage Rates shall be complied with.

Goals for this project are as follows:

1. The Contractor shall maintain on this project a not less than ten percent (10%) ratio of minority employee manhours to total manhours in each job category.

2. A minimum of ten percent (10%) Minority Business Enterprise (MBE) and five percent (5%) Women's Business Enterprise participation by state-certified MBEs and WBEs will be required and maintained on this project. The bidder shall submit complete MBE/WBE forms and SOMWBA certification letters with the bid.

3. The City of Quincy's Ordinance Chapter 12.28, requiring Contractors working on City-supported construction projects to have a) one Quincy Resident out of every three workers on the project and b) a bona fide apprentice training program must be complied with.

4. The Contractor shall pay minimum wage rates to the workers, as per the latest schedule of rates, as mandated by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries and the U.S. Department of Labor, issued in the most recent Decision, applicable to the area.

The City reserves the right to waive any informality in or to reject any or all Bids when such an action is deemed in the best interests of the City. Non-responsive and/or unbalanced bids may be rejected.

Delahunt To Co-Sponsor Small Business Export Forum

Cong. Bill Delahunt, in conjunction with the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA), will sponsor a regional forum on export opportunities for South Shore firms Monday, Oct. 25 from 8 to 10:30 a.m. at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, 36 Miller Stile Rd., Quincy.

The forum will feature testimonials from area firms with success in seeking out overseas markets. Relevant professionals, ranging from international lawyers to freight forwarders, will be on hand for personal consultations.

"As new markets open and expand, the international pie is getting bigger and bigger for alert local firms," Delahunt said. "The key for many small- and medium-sized firms is understanding how much help is easily available."

For more information, call Delahunt's office at 1-800-794-1111.

Sheets Confident Hospital Is Saved

their change of hearts was the simple fact that Quincy's senior population is 7% above the national average. It's a good compromise."

With the City's $30 million and the state's $12 million seemingly certain, Mayor Sheets sees federal funding as the last piece of the puzzle. He expects national legislation remedying the Medicare shortfalls caused by the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 to be passed before Congress breaks in November.

Mayor Sheets' confidence in Washington D.C. rests in part on a phone call he received at his home from Senator Edward Kennedy last Thursday. Kennedy had heard the good news about the state loan and promised to "get busy" on the changes in the Balanced Budget Act.

Senator John Kerry is also behind Sheets on this issue. Kerry allowed his office to be used as a home base during Sheets' recent lobbying trip to Washington D.C. He also made at least two calls to Paul Haley, personally asking for his support.

At the 4th annual Quincy Senior Conference held Sept. 18 at the Broad Meadows Middle School, Sheets said, "I am indebted to Senators Kerry and Kennedy for speaking to Reps. Haley and Finneran."

Sheets also thanked Quincy's legislative delegation and the City Council members, with special thanks going to Frank McCauley for "working on all the little details."

He asked Dr. Lillian Glickman, secretary for the Executive Office of Elder Affairs, to relay a personal thanks from Quincy to Governor Cellucci, whom Sheets praised for his constant support of the hospital.

"Without Governor Cellucci," Sheets said, "we would have announced the closing of Quincy Hospital two days ago."

Sheets said that word from Washington D.C. might take weeks but that, given the national scope and magnitude of the Medicare Remedy bill, he expected to be informed daily.

If everything runs as planned, Quincy Hospital will affiliate with Boston Medical Center on Oct. 1 and officially change its name to Quincy Medical Center.

19 Police Officers Sworn In

FIRST FAMILY FLAG – Mayor and Mrs. James Sheets were honored Sunday for their strong commitment to family values by Good Shepherd's Maria Droste Services of Quincy. They were presented this flag and were asked to have it flown over City Hall on Monday. The mayor and First Lady obliged. At left is Sister Joanne Westwater, Maria Droste executive secretary.

Nineteen new police officers were sworn in Tuesday in the City Council chamber filled with members of their families.

The 19 recruits will eventually replace Quincy Police officers who have retired or will retire in the near future.

Family, friends, and local officials watched Assistant City Clerk Maureen Hallsen administer the oath to the eighteen men and one woman.

Sworn in on Tuesday were: Donald G. Greenwood, Fort Bragg, N.C.; Stephen M. Burgio, Quincy; Matthew D. Patten, Quincy; Daniel Flaherty, Wollaston; Patrick E. Buonaugurio, Wollaston; James J. Borden, Quincy.

Kevin G. DiMattio, Wollaston; Thomas M. Ford, Quincy; James L. Lencki, Quincy; Lisa J. Linskey, Quincy; Ronald L. McKim, Quincy.

Timothy S. Moran, Quincy; Paul J. Murphy, Braintree; Paul L. Pieper, Quincy; Jimmie L. Whedbee Jr., Hanover; Edward J. Hartnett IV, Braintree.

Brian P. Mahoney, Wollaston; John R. Menz III, Quincy; and David L. Santosuosso, North Quincy.

Before the ceremony, there were remarks by Personnel Director Kevin Madden, Mayor James A. Sheets, and Chief of Police Thomas Frane, all praising the young men and women for their accomplishment and for enduring the rigorous evaluations the city had subjected them to.

Madden, speaking first, explained how tough it was to become one of these select 19. These recruits, he said, had to take a 1997 examination, undergo numerous interviews, have each and every one of their references checked, and pass both physical and psychological tests before being chosen by the mayor..

"You're the best of the best," Madden said.

Mayor Sheets agreed. He said that he considered the Quincy Police "the finest police department in the country" and congratulated the recruits on their "special

Hospital Affiliation Close To Final Signing

A relieved Mayor Sheets announced Tuesday that Quincy Hospital's affiliation with Boston Medical Center could become official as early as today (Thursday).

Sheets reported that both the Home Rule Petition and the $12.1 million state loan left the House Ways and Means Committee Tuesday with the designation "ought to pass" and that the full House and Senate would vote on the bills Wednesday.

Sheets expects to hear word by late Wednesday afternoon. He also expects that word to be favorable because the Legislature must pass the 1/12 interim budget without delay or risk having no money to run the state.

"We met with members of the Boston Medical Center to discuss where we have to go from here," Sheets said in his office Tuesday. "The House will consider both measures tomorrow and will send them to the Senate for action there. It is conceivable that both will be completed by Wednesday, so we might have a ceremony with Governor Cellucci as early as Thursday morning.

As if to dispel any last minute worries, Sheets

Nearly 'Hit Roof' Over Second Athletic Director

McCauley: May Be Time To End Student Sports Fees

City Councillor Francis McCauley says Quincy doesn't need a second athletic director and thinks it may be time to eliminate student fees for sports.

McCauley says he nearly "hit the roof" when he read a news article indicating Mayor James Sheets is supporting School Supt. Eugene Creedon's plan to hire a second athletic director at $61,000 per year.

"I called the mayor and registered my strong opposition to the plan," McCauley, a former mayor and school committeeman, said Tuesday.

"The School Department got along with one athletic director when there were 17,000 students in the school system.

"They should be able to function with one director with a school enrollment of 9,000 students."

As for athletic fees, McCauley noted that they were instituted during the 1980's when the city's finances were tight due to Proposition 2 1/2.

"It may be time," he said, "to eliminate these fees for sports as a way of encouraging great student participation.

"This would allow students from families who might find the fees beyond day."

But the mayor highlighted the extreme responsibility placed upon them as well as the extreme honor.

"You're going to be on the front lines," Sheets said. "You're going to have to represent the law, the city, what's just, and what's right. No one will have to guard their behavior more meticulously than you."

Sheets also praised the energy of the new recruits, saying, " You have the skills and the spirit to protect us, to make Quincy even safer."

Chief of Police Thomas Frane also addressed the recruits and the audience. He thanked the mayor for his kind words and for his commitment over the years to such things as community policing and hiring practices. He said that, although he was not sure that Quincy had the best police department in the nation, he was proud to be its chief. "The Quincy Police department's reputation precedes it," Frane said.

Frane thanked the audience for being such a strong support group for the new officers, adding that this was their day as well.

Frane said that these 19 new recruits bring the total of new Quincy Police officers hired over the past two years to 54. He added that, since the QPD is currently 181 strong, this means that roughly 25 percent of the QPD is new.

Frane said that he foresaw no new recruits in the immediate future, given the fact that the department had now reached Mayor Sheets' goal of 167 patrolmen. Personnel Director Kevin Madden explained that, even though the numbers add up to more than 167, the city had to factor in recruits who might drop or officers who might retire in the next few months, adding that it was better to be a little higher on the numbers than a little lower.

According to Frane, these new recruits will now report to the Norwood Police Academy Oct. 4 for training.

Councillors Paul Harold, Dan Raymondi, and Tim Cahill attended the ceremony, as did rep. Bruce Ayers and D.A. Bill Keating. Mayor Sheets also relayed words of congratulations from Rep. Tobin.

•Granted a common victualer license to Betsy Flynn, executive director of Hancock Park, 164 Parkingway for use at The Lobby Shop, formerly owned by Tobacco Treasures. It will open Oct. 5.

City Employees Vote In Independent Union

An estimated 156 city employees are now represented by a new independent union.

Quincy Public Employees Association (QPEA) is scheduled to meet today (Thursday) at City Hall to ratify its by-laws and nominate officers.

The election is scheduled for Oct. 12.

QPEA was voted in by a four-vote margin to replace Local 925, Service Employees International Union, a member of the AFL-CIO, which had represented the employees for the past six years.

The secret ballot election, sanctioned by the state Labor Relations Commission, was held Aug. 30.

A total of 143 ballots were cast, with the QPEA receiving 72 and Local 925 receiving 68. There were two votes for no organization and one ballot was voided.

The QPEA will represent all regular full-time and regular part-time clerical, technical, maintenance, engineering and administrative employees employed in the city's municipal department.

Excluded are hospital employees, managerial, confidential employees and all other city employees.

Andrew Ayer, a Quincy health inspector and shellfish warden and who is interested in becoming president of the QPEA, said:

"We felt that we didn't get proper representation from SEIU. The members were unhappy. They (SEIU) set the meetings and the agenda. We had absolutely no control over our union."

Ayer said that SEIU told the employees they would lose insurance benefits and sick days without the clout of a large, powerful union.

However, he said, Cathy Ierardi of the Park and Recreation Department and Dominic Venturelli, a data processor, pushed for the change.

The Sun's attempts to reach a spokesperson at Local 925 for comment were unsuccessful. Calls were made Monday and Tuesday.

According to Ayer, the process of leaving SEIU local 925 began in 1998 when workers filed a petition to the Labor Relations Commission. The workers had a legal timeframe to petition within 180 days of the expiration of SEIU's old contract on June 30, 1998. The petition, Ayer said, contained 81 signatures, more than twice the number needed.

With the petition filed, the Labor Relations Commission held six days of hearing in June of 1998 with representatives of the SEIU, the newly formed association, and a labor lawyer from the City. The Commission took it under advisement for more than a year before ruling this July that an election was appropriate.

"We were working under an expired contract which the City was honoring," Ayer said. "No one could represent us because no one had the power to negotiate."

"It's tough to throw out an incumbent union," Ayer said.

Ayer hopes to be nominated for president; Venturelli is seeking the nomination for vice-president and Ierardi hopes to be nominated for secretary.

"We have no agenda other than member control, monthly meetings, lower dues, and a separate treasury. And just making the workplace a happier place to be."

The election is scheduled for QPEA's first regularly scheduled meeting Oct. 12.

SEIU still represents about 80 employees in the schools and roughly 18 City supervisors.

QUINCY'S FIRST FAMILY was honored by The Good Shepherd's Maria Droste Services Sunday for their strong commitment to family values. With First Lady Joann Sheets and Mayor James Sheets are, from the left, Jennifer Brown who is engaged to son Luke Sheets, shown behind his mother; Tad Sheets, his wife, Peggy; Lois Howard, Mrs. Sheets' sister; Branson Roberts, her brother and Thelma Sunberg, her sister. The ceremony was held at Best Western Adams Inn. (Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Noble)

Morrisette Post License Transfer Approved

The License Board Tuesday gave permission to members of the Cyril P. Morrisette Post to transfer their Club's all alcoholic beverage license to the new site at 81-83 Liberty St.

The Morrisette Post which was on Miller Street in West Quincy for many years was sold to Saturn, an automobile dealership.

Since then members have been seeking another area for the club and had earlier picked a site on Quarry Street, but because of other clubs in the area, plans were shelved.

David Cunningham, representing Atty. George Burke told the board that there has been no opposition from neighbors regarding the new building. He added that members are presently working with the architect putting on the final touches on the proposed 4,500 square foot building.

Police Chief Thomas Frane asked if the building would include the rental of a function hall for weddings and other events. Cunningham said they were trying to do without the rental of halls as was done in the former post home.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, acting chairman of the board in the absence of Joseph Shea told Cunningham to report back to the board with the plans for a final review.

Quincy Hospital Offering 'File Of Life'

Quincy Hospital is distributing a free "File of Life" refrigerator magnet containing vital emergency medical information to anyone calling the hospital's Public Relations Department. The magnet is particularly helpful for seniors living alone.

Local emergency crews, such as ambulance, fire and police, can simply look for the "File of Life" magnet containing important medical information when responding to an emergency. The File includes cards the patient fills out containing information such as medications, allergies, medical conditions, and general information such as name, social security number, physician, next of kin, and health care proxy.

Call Quincy Hospital at (617) 376-4016 for a free "File of Life" magnet or for information about any of the services the hospital offers.

Drive Alive 55' Program For Seniors

AARP and the Quincy Department of Elder Services are co-sponsoring "Drive Alive 55," a classroom refresher course for drivers 55 years and older.

The course will be held Monday, Oct. 25 and Wednesday Oct. 27 from 12 noon to 4 p.m. at the Squantum Gardens Community Center, 83 Saratoga St.

The cost of the program is $8. Participants need to attend both classes. For more information or to make a reservation, call Mary Burke at 376-1243.

From Second To First

Being first is better than being second in most things in life.

But there are no guarantees that first will remain first.

Like in elections, for example. Especially those for open ward city council seats.

In the recent preliminary contests Greg Hanley finished first and Russell Patten second for the Ward 1 nominations.

And in Ward 6, Joseph Newton took the top spot and Jim Stamos the second nomination.

It would appear that Hanley and Newton would have the edge in the final election Nov. 2.

But, no guarantees.

Leo Kelly, who has been around the political block a few times, recalls four elections in which the second place finisher in the preliminary election won the final election.

KELLY

The four were held in Ward 1 with that council seat open like the two in Wards 1 and 6 are today.

The first was back in 1963 when Leo Hannon topped Frank McCauley by a scant four votes in the preliminary election. McCauley won the final by 46 votes. There were two political newcomers in that election who became future mayors: McCauley and Arthur Tobin. The latter finished out of the money in the preliminary run-off that year.

McCAULEY

Hannon also figured in the next one in 1967. He took first place over Edward Graham by 344 votes in the preliminary election. Graham came back to win the final by 284.

GRAHAM

Kelly himself was involved in the next one in 1973 with Paul Harold. Harold won the preliminary by 166 votes. Kelly took the final by 48 votes.

Harold, of course, went on to become one of the city's all-time vote getters as a councillor-at-large and state senator. He lost a bid for Congress against Gerry Studds but carried Quincy by a wide margin.

Kelly was elected to six terms as Ward 1 councillor. He is now retired but keeps an eye on the political landscape.

The fourth was a special election squeaker in 1984 when Kelly left the Ward 1 seat for a Quincy Housing Authority appointment.

Robert Johnston, late headmaster of the Woodward School finished first in the preliminary by eight votes over Michael Cheney. Cheney came back in the final to win the seat by 79 votes and then went on to become councillor-at-large.

CHENEY

In the recent preliminary elections, Hanley had a 291 vote edge over Patten and Newton a 376 margin over Stamos.

But as those four elections Kelly recalls prove, things can sometimes change.

Will they or won't they this year?

BOB FOY, who is retiring after 17 years as city auditor, will be honored at a testimonial Wednesday, Nov. 10 at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Foy, who turned 73 this month, has been a familiar, popular, and highly regarded figure around City Hall for 27 years. Prior to becoming auditor he served as treasurer-tax collector.

FOY

His service has spanned the administrations of five mayors: Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, Frank McCauley and James Sheets.

Tickets for the dinner are $40 and may be obtained from City Clerk Joseph Shea, Tom Koch, executive director of Park-Forestry-Cemetery Departments; Purchasing Agent Al Grazioso, County Commissioner John Gillis and Michael McFarland who is succeeding Foy as auditor Oct. 4.

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS and First Lady, Joann, have a new addition to the family.

Michael James, their first grandson, fourth grandchild, was born Sept. 21 to their daughter, Kim and husband, Stephen Woodard in Atlanta, Ga. He weighed in at 7 pounds, 6 ounces.

And just as proud are the other grandparents, Arthur and Lois Woodward of Braintree. Arthur, retired director of Informational Services in the Quincy School System, is now director of the Professional Development Institute at Eastern Nazarene College.

IT TOOK A little while but Peter Kolson has squared away that little debt he owed Bruce Ayers.

It goes back to last year's Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day football game.

Kolson, who played for Quincy in the 1960s and Ayers for North in the 1970s, have been betting on their alma maters on the Thanksgiving Day game for the past five years.

This time North and Ayers won. Quincy and Kolson had won four in a row.

The wager: the loser takes the winner to a restaurant of his choice in his ward.

Ayers chose the Union Cafe on Billings Rd. where Kolson picked up the tab for a steak dinner with all the works.

The other part of the wager: the loser has to wear the school jersey of the winner as they dine. No way could Kolson get into Ayers' jersey. The Jolly Green Giant would have a better chance squeezing into Doug Flutie's.

So, the jersey was hung on the wall directly over Kolson as he ate.

But Ayers was determined Kolson would don North Quincy colors.

He brought along a white sweatshirt, compliments of North Quincy's No. 1 fan, Dr. Allan Yacubian, the model for the school's beloved symbol, the "Yakoo."

On the shirt, bright red lettering proclaims "I Love North Quincy." And with the sweatshirt came a Red Raider hat.

Kolson couldn't say it didn't fit. The size: extra, extra large.

When Kolson left, he was still wearing the sweatshirt and hat.

"You know," says Ayers, "I wouldn't be surprised if he went out knocking on a few doors while he was in the area. He could pick up a few North Quincy votes with that shirt and hat." (See photo Page 15)

KOLSON, who is vacating his Ward 1 council seat to run at-large, has a fundraiser--the annual Chowder House--tonight (Thursday), 7 to 9 p.m., at Raffael's, Enterprise Dr., North Quincy. Donation: $20.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1918 POSTCARD view of the old Bay State Street Railway Company's power plant on the Fore River in Quincy Point. This view is east from the old Point bridge that was on the shipyard side of the present bridge. Note the three-masted schooner, probably delivering coal. The plant was built in 1888 to provide power for the first electric trolleys in Quincy. It later was owned by the Eastern Mass. Street Railway Company. The plant was demolished to make room for the Proctor and Gamble Company factory built on the site in 1940. On the left are the wharves of the Eben W. Sheppard & Sons Coal Company.

Raytheon To Open Quincy Plant

Sept. 30 - Oct. 6, 1950
49 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

Charles Francis Adams, president of the Raytheon Corporation, announced that a plant would be opened in the city, at a temporary location in the Stop and Shop building at School St. and the Parkingway.

Raytheon would be the first new manufacturer to come to Quincy in 10 years. The last large company locating here was Procter and Gamble.

The announcement was made at the Howard Johnson restaurant in Quincy Square, attended by members of the city council and the Chamber of Commerce.

Adams was the son of former Quincy Mayor Charles Francis Adams who later served as Navy Secretary under President Hoover.

DOUGHBOY STATUE SLATED FOR NEW SITE

The Doughboy statue at the Coddington School was scheduled to be relocated in front of the Adams Academy, in time for a re-dedication ceremony on Armistice Day, Nov. 11.

The memorial was built under the auspices of the Quincy Legion and other veterans' organizations. W.C. Canniff and Sons of Penn St. was awarded the contract to re-locate the landmark statue.

CHIEF CITES SEVEN POLICEMEN

Police Chief Joseph Hughes cited seven policemen for their outstanding work involving the hit and run accident that killed a Quincy father of nine.

The chief called it "one of the most difficult hit and run cases in the history of the department."

Officers cited were Sgt. Philip Grady, Patrolmen Daniel McAuliffe and Edward Kusser, Special Officers James Fay and Charles Griffin with special praise given to Patrolmen Dante Pettinelli and Frederick Tighe whose investigation led to the arrest of the hit and run driver.

QUINCY-ISMS

City Manager William Deegan ordered a nighttime curfew at Faxon Park to end night-time disturbances. A similar curfew was imposed at Squantum Park last week... The Quincy Housing Authority announced that all 400 units in the newly opened Snug Harbor housing were full... The school committee approved the plans by the architectural firm of Anderson-Nichols for the new 16-room Germantown school. . . Congressman Richard Wigglesworth faulted President Truman for blocking Congress' plans to expand shipbuilding. . . A dinner was held at the Ships' Haven Restaurant for the 17 graduates of the Grossman's Construction Institute. . . George McEvoy, manager of the Western Union office at 92 Washington St., reported a robbery of $15... Mrs. Frank McCausland, president of the GOP Women's Club, announced their annual bridge party at the Woodward School. . . George Fay was coach for the Elks softball team. . . At Quincy City Hospital sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Thadeus Slomkowski of Alstead St. and to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chenette of Charles St., with a daughter born to Mr. and Mrs. Julio Verlicco of Sea St. . . A reception for 35 new members was held at the Jewish Community Center. Mrs. Irving Shapiro was chairman. . . John McAuley, the sexton at St. Joseph's, reported an arson attempt at the church. . . City Manager Deegan and Councillor Orcutt met with Atlantic residents concerning the problems at Teel Pond, following the near drowning of a three-year-old girl. . . Samoset Pharmacy held an open house following extensive renovations. The store was managed by Albert Paradise with the assistance of Allan, Esther and Mildred Jaspon and Hy Fienberg. . . Virginia Gossard, daughter of School Supt. and Mrs. Paul Gossard of Elm Ave., was awarded a fellowship at Radcliffe College. . . A new 40-foot flag pole was erected at the site of John Hancock's birthplace, in front of the Adams Academy, by the Adams Temple and School Fund. . . . Donald Edmonston was challenged by Fred Burgess for the presidency of Local Five Shipbuilders Union. . . Police Sgt. James Mullin was in his second term as Grand Knight of the Ave Maria Council K of C. . . The Quincy Taxpayers' Association estimated that a complete revaluation of the city would cost $125,000. . . Quincy's "big three" Mayor Burgin, Manager Deegan and Judge James Mulhall (director of Civil Defense) traveled to Washington for a two day secret session on national security issues.

Quincy's Great Shrinking Waterfront Park

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I was deeply dismayed to read that the former Duane's site by the Souther Tide Mill will soon be used for storage of new automobiles. This is an inappropriate and wasteful use of valuable waterfront land.

When the historic Souther Tide Mill first became endangered in the 1980's, the MDC and others proposed combining the whole seven acre Duane's site with the five acre Souther site to create a spectacular new 12 acre Quincy Waterfront Heritage Park. The new park would have fronted Town River Bay and the Broad Meadows salt marsh, preserving historic vistas. It would have joined both sides of the Old Quincy Canal, keeping the 1820's canal, wooden canal lock and tide mill intact as centerpieces in the new park.

Yet because the City never committed to open space preservation, non-waterfront portions of the Duane's site were given away: first to a Tide Mill Plaza (Pep Boys) proposal, and then to an Avalon Bay housing proposal. Yet in both the Pep Boys and Avalon Bay plans, a waterfront park edge would have still been created along the entire water edge of the Duane's site.

The current plan has taken all seven Duane's acres for private business use, and in so doing, has significantly reduced the size of Quincy's Waterfront Heritage Park and eliminated public access to the water. This problem is compounded by the fact that in 1998, the City gave away a vital half of the five acres on the Souther site to CVS. As a consequence, Quincy is now left with only a three acre Waterfront Heritage Park with extremely limited public access, a far cry from the 12 acres originally planned.

While nationally, governments and citizens are actively partnering to preserve rare open space and waterfront properties for future generations, this City appears to be in a deliberate campaign to promote urban sprawl.

Doesn't Want City To Change Harkins St. Name

(The writer of the following letter submitted a copy to The Quincy Sun for publication).

President, Quincy City Hall
City Hall

I recently read with great interest a letter in The Quincy Sun written by Guido Pettinelli which suggested changing the name of Haskins St. to Papile St. I would be the first to agree that the Papile family deserves to have a street named in their honor. There is however another side to this issue.

My name is Daniel Saunders. Harkins St. was named after my grandparents, John and Sarah Harkins. My mother, Hester Harkins, was raised in a home that was located at the corner of Main St. and Spring Ln. Shortly after my grandfather died in 1913 the Quincy City Council changed the name of Spring Lane to Harkins St. in his honor.

My grandfather, John, was a man known for his knowledge, honesty and integrity. He was a masonry contractor who participated in the building of the Coddington School as well as an addition to what is now known as Central Middle School.

I would be willing to work with the City Council to create a suitable memorial to the Papile family. I believe that the City of Quincy can find a way to honor both families.

When this proposal is presented to the Quincy City Council on Oct. 4, I hope that you will consider leaving the name of Harkins St. in place.

Remember Four-Legged Friends During Hurricane Season

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It's hurricane season and People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA) is asking people to please remember their four-legged friends.

During past natural disasters, PETA's emergency rescue team has witnessed sights ranging from a family who refused to evacuate if their animals were not allowed to come along, to a man who loaded his television set into the lifeboat while the dog looked on from his doghouse.

Some farmers simply abandoned the pigs and other animals they raise for slaughter. Rabbits were left in hutches to drown. Our workers pulled cats out of trees where they had clung for days in violent thunderstorms.

One family left three dogs chained in their backyard. They were found drowned when the flood waters receded. Imagine the terror of swimming frantically at the end of a chain as the water rises higher and higher.

Please take a few minutes now to plan how to save your animals in the event of a flood or other natural disaster. Take them with you if at all possible. Otherwise, arrange to get them to a friend or relative who lives somewhere safe. Never, never leave an animal confined or tied. Learn which motels accept animals.

Disasters hurt animals, too. Please lend them a helping hand.

Lizzie Borden Lecture Oct. 12 At Adams Shore Branch Library

Christopher Daley, an avid amateur historian, will present a slide lecture "Lizzie Borden, the mystery continues" Tuesday, Oct. 12, at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Shore Branch Library, 519 Sea St.

Over 100 years ago there was a real "who-dun-it" in Massachusetts when an elderly couple was brutally murdered in their own home. It was the summer of 1892 in Fall River, and the couple's name was Borden. Their daughter Lizzie was tried for the crime and acquitted but was justice really done?

Daley has read every book on the case and researched many of the original records and news reports. During his innumerable trips to Fall River he has spoken to many case experts and toured the sites related to the crime.

The slides are period photographs of all the major players from the victims, to the accused to the police. In addition to the crime scene itself there are slides of the courthouse, downtown Fall River, and the gravesite of Lizzie Borden.

Daley, who has presented a slide lecture on the Sacco-Vanzetti Case at the Library, is active in the Pembroke Historical Society.

RADIATOR LEAKS

If your vehicle's radiator is leaking, the coolant may not have been changed according to the recommended schedule and has become corrosive, Or, it may be that normal shaking and vibration has led to an eventual separation between parts connected by solder, epoxy, or mechanical crimps. Thermal forces arising from extremes in engine temperatures (as it heats up and cools down) may also have caused cracks in stressed areas. Regardless of the cause, a radiator leak must be checked as soon as possible because loss of coolant can spell disaster for the engine. Since remedies can range from clamp tightening or hose replacement to radiator repair or replacement, do not assume the worst until the problem is checked out.

Next time you need work done on any system, including its cooling system, bring your car, truck or SUV into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. Our highly trained, ASE Certified technicians and our availability of parts will assure you of a job well done. We're proud of our staff and you can trust us to get you back on the road quickly. We're conveniently located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Open: Mon-Fri 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Count on us for propane for grills, mobile homes and converted vehicles.

HINT: When a radiator leaks, the most common causes are readily repairable at far less than the cost of a quality replacement radiator.

Bricks To Memorialize Granite Workers Who Lost Lives In Quarries

The Granite Workers Memorial Committee announces 58 bricks, in memory of Quincy granite workers who died accidentally while working in Quincy quarries or stone sheds, will be placed at the Granite Workers Memorial Circle in Shea Park on Copeland St. this fall.

"This is beautiful. I'm very glad," said Sulo Soini, who strolled through the park Monday morning. Soini's father Peter was killed at Swingles quarry in 1943.

Edmund and Alba Tocci were also at Shea in memory of Cesidio Tocci, Edmund's grandfather who was crushed to death by a stone in 1905.

Many granite workers were crushed to death by multi-ton blocks of granite that fell on them. Others were killed by slipping and falling hundreds of feet into the deep quarry pits. Some workers died by being struck by falling or swinging derricks.

Dynamite blasts maimed, burned and killed Quincy quarrymen. Occasionally, teenage tool boys would get caught and killed in shafting belts that were used to fashion granite. Wagon loads of granite sometimes shifted or toppled, killing the wagon's occupants.

The Quincy granite industry's heyday from 1880-1920 saw the largest number of fatalities. The years 1880, 1882, 1895, 1905, 1908 and 1917 each had three work-related accidental deaths, while the years 1877, 1883, 1894, 1897, 1901, 1914, 1915 and 1930 recorded two each year.

Mark Woods and his wife Eleanor were also at the park. Woods stumbled upon Eleanor's relation to Severin Martel, who was killed at 38 in a quarry blast in 1897, while Mark was researching the family tree. Severin Martel is the great grandfather of Eleanor and her sisters, Kerri Hall and Karen Connell. They were there along with Martel's great, great, great grandchildren, toddlers Rebecca Hallahan and Zac Pungitore.

"We have deep Quincy roots," said Joanne Connell. "We grew up with these names on a daily basis."

Committee members such as Alba Tocci, Steve Cantelli, Peter Antonellis, and Linda Montillio are part of a Saturday clean-up crew which keeps Shea Park looking nice. Barbara Persampieri also lends a hand on Saturdays.

Peter Antonellis praised Alba Tocci and Steve Cantelli for keeping the memorial project alive during the past six years. "They begged, borrowed, ran raffles, carnivals, anything they could do," he said.

Donations can be made to The Granite Workers Memorial, c/o Alba Tocci, 15 Rodman St. Quincy.

Bricks cost $50 dollars each and you do not have to be affiliated with the granite quarries to purchase a brick.

Special thanks went out to Monti Granite and Bricklayers International local #52, who continue to donate their time for the project.

Below is a list of men who will be honored. If anyone knows the names of any other Quincy granite workers who died accidentally on the job, contact Steve Cantelli at 479-1019.

Project S.A.F.E. Set For Saturday

Volunteers To Check, Install Smoke Detectors For Seniors

The third annual Project S.A.F.E. (Smoke Alarms for Elders) will take place Saturday, Oct. 2 as volunteers criss-cross the city checking and installing smoke detectors in the homes of seniors.

Volunteers from the Quincy Fire Department, as well as service organizations including the Quincy Kiwanis, Quincy Lions and Quincy Rotary Clubs, will install smoke detectors for seniors living in their own homes Oct. 2.

Project S.A.F.E. program is a city-wide effort to identify need, provide information about fire safety and smoke detectors; and inspect and install free fire detectors in the homes of seniors at risk.

The smoke detector project is an extension of Beechwood's Senior S.A.F.E. program, designed to assist seniors remain independent and in their own homes as long as possible.

Senior service providers, elected officials, clubs, community centers, churches and Quincy seniors (living in their own homes) are encouraged to call the Beechwood Community Life Center at 617-471-5712 if they, or any senior they know:

- Has less than three smoke detectors.
- Has detectors that need checking, repair or replacing.
- Has any questions about smoke detectors.
- Is interested in receiving fire safety information.

The program kicked off Tuesday at the Quincy Rotary luncheon attended by representatives from the NFPA, Quincy Fire Department, Quincy Kiwanis and Quincy Lions clubs.

Sharon Gamache of the NFPA was the guest speaker. She discussed the NFPA's new fire and fall prevention program for "at risk seniors" which is now a national model.

For more information on Project S.A.F.E. or other city-wide senior programs for "seniors-at-risk" call 471-5712.

GRAY AREAS

As baby boomers age and live longer, the Census Bureau estimates that the 65-and-over set will increase from 35 million in 1995 to 53 million in 2020. This, coupled with the fact that the fertility rate in the U.S. is expected to hit 2.0 children per couple in the year 2000, means the proportion of older Americans is expected to rise considerably. By one estimate, the percentage of Americans over age 65 is expected to reach 18% of the U.S. population by the year 2023. Thus, at some point early in the next century, there will be more grandparents than grandchildren. Until then, this older segment of the population will likely exert greater influence over our culture than ever before.

Getting involved in the world around you is a key ingredient of finding value and connection in our lives as we age. At Marina Place (617-770-3264), a senior living residence, you'll find our appointments to be beautiful, our staff to be both friendly and skilled at meeting the needs of seniors and a location that can't be beat. To inquire about our services or for a look around, stop in at Four Seaport Drive.

Marina Place cordially invites you to join us for a lively debate on Tuesday, October 5, 7:30pm for Quincy City Councillor Candidates Night, Ward 6.

P.S. By one estimate, people aged 65 years and older are expected to comprise 34% of the electorate by the year 2038, up from 16% in 1966.

Rice-Stuffed Zucchini

It seems every time I turn around, someone is handing me a zucchini from either their garden or a neighbors.

After making fritters, and zucchini parmesan several times, I decided last weekend (since it was a bit cool), to stuff them. The stuffing was primarily with rice and they came out moist and delicious.

Stuffed Zucchini

1 cup rice
1/2 cup tomato sauce
pulp from zucchini
1 small onion (chopped)
2 stalks celery (diced)
1/4 cup grated romano cheese
salt and pepper to taste
enough seasoned bread crumbs for the topping
2-3 tablespoons oil

Cut the zucchini in half. Scoop out the middle with a small knife or a spoon discarding seeds. Cut the pulp up in little pieces.

Boil 1 cup raw rice according to directions. While this is cooking, in the hot oil, saute the celery, onion and the zucchini pulp. When the rice is done, add to the mixture with the tomato sauce the grated cheese and the salt and pepper.

Place stuffing in the center of the zucchini and fill to the top pressing down on each half. Sprinkle bread crumbs over the top. Place in a baking pan with a cup of water on the bottom. Cover with foil and bake in a 350 degree oven for about an hour, with the last 10 minutes, uncovered.

I cut them in large pieces and served them with sausages and meatballs.

P.S. As I prepare some of the recipes that are printed here, I don't always measure it precisely, but in this recipe I know for sure I started out by cooking one cup of rice.!

Festival Committee To Meet Thursday

The Quincy Festival Committee will meet tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Koch Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Pkwy., next to Adams Field.

The agenda will include planning the traditional special events for the coming holiday season including the 47th annual Christmas parade.

The parade theme this year is "Christmas Memories of the Twentieth Century". The parade will be Sunday, Nov.. 28 starting at 12:30 p.m. along Hancock St. from School St. and Quincy Ave. to North Quincy High School.

Other special events include turning on the holiday lights in downtown Quincy, grade school poster contest, Santa's arrival by parachute, the nativity pageant and annual awards.

Houghs Neck Legion Hosts Wheelchair Veterans Dinner

Hough's Neck American Legion Post No. 380 entertained some 75 veterans at the Post home on Sea St. for the annual Wheelchair Vets Day dinner and entertainment.

Veterans and attendants came by bus from Brockton and West Roxbury VA Hospitals and Chelsea Soldiers Home.

At the seafood luncheon, lobsters were provided by the Boston Harbor Lobstermen including Paul Urbanus, Ed Urbanus, Ken Crispo, Harry Crispo, Charles Holler, Fred Holler, Phil Anastasio, Mark O'Mara, Al Ferent, Paul Pender, Dave LaRosa and Skip Ryan.

Some 29 Legion and Auxiliary volunteers assisted at the meal. Entertainment was "Jo" from South Boston.

Also attending were Councillor-at-Large Paul Harold and Commander Leif Thornton of Bryan Post 613, VFW.

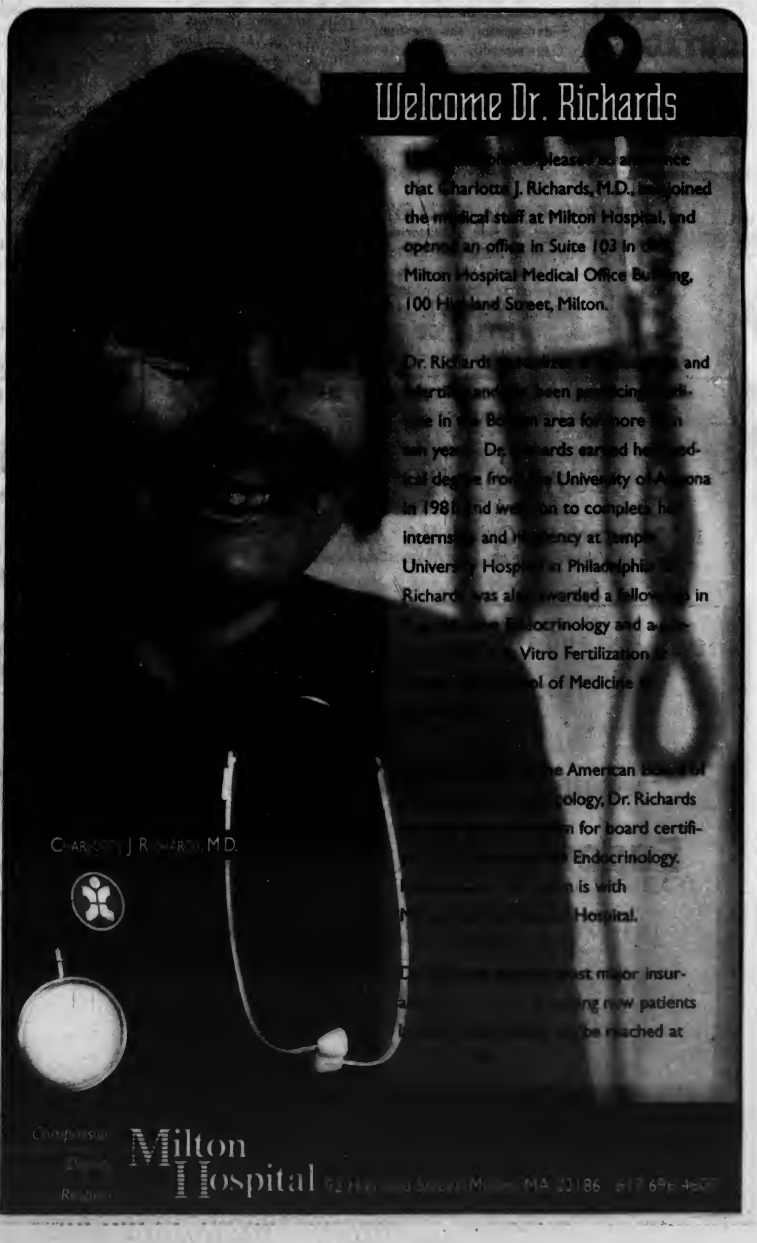
Crisis Center Food Pantry On Wheels Reports Twice As Many Deliveries

Quincy Crisis Center's "Food Pantry on Wheels" reports that it made twice as many food deliveries in both July and August as it did in June, with the trend continuing for September.



QCC is able to reach out and help those in need because of the generosity of individuals who donate food items to their pantry shelves.

Because of the many food deliveries over the summer, the shelves have become bare and the following items are needed to help replenish them: macaroni and cheese; canned pasta; jelly; spaghetti sauce; tomato paste; canned fruit; canned vegetables such as corn, green beans, peas, and carrots; dry milk; juices; and mayonnaise.

Donations are accepted at 282 Billings Rd., Quincy, or call (617) 847-6967.

PREGNANCY AND YOUR FEET

Pregnancy can definitely have an effect on your feet and how you walk. There are several factors that play a role like weight gain, a shifting of your "center of gravity," hormonal changes and an actual difference in the way your muscles work. The end result of this combination of factors is more joint and ligamentous laxity. This translates to the foot as an increase in pronation (flattening of the arch) and an out for gait (feet turning outward similar to the way a duck walks).

The dimension of your feet actually changes as well. Studies have tracked this to an actual increase in volume due to fluid retention. The feet do not seem to increase in length and width but the increased volume makes shoes feel tighter. Therefore, tighter shoes, postural changes and more loose ligaments and joints can lead to pathology. This may include foot pain, fractures of bones, ingrown nails and sprains. All these conditions are treatable and should not present a risk to the developing fetus.

If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

Free Flu Clinics For Residents Start Oct. 23

The Quincy Health Department announces the schedule for free flu clinics for Quincy residents over 18 years which begin Oct. 23 and continues through Nov. 9.

This year's flu shot contains the strains A/Beijing, A/Sydney, and B/Beijing to provide immunity against the types of flu which have been circulating in the past year and thought to be most likely to occur in the United States this winter.

Because influenza vaccines contains only killed viruses it cannot cause influenza.

Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue said the annual vaccination against influenza is recommended and available at the public clinics for:

- Everyone 65 years of age or older.
- Adults with serious long-term health problems as heart, lung, kidney disease, asthma, diabetes, anemia and other blood disorders.
- Adults whose immune system is weakened due to HIV/AIDS, or other diseases that affect the immune system, those receiving treatment with drugs such as long-term steroids and those receiving cancer treatment with x-rays or drugs.
- Health Care Workers and people providing essential community services or home care due to the above high-risk categories.
- Women who will be more than three months pregnant during the flu season.
- Anyone who wants to reduce their chance of catching the flu should consider getting the vaccine, Gallahue said.

Gallahue said the following people should consult with their physician before getting the flu vaccine:

- Anyone who has ever had a serious allergic reaction to eggs or a previous dose of the flue vaccine.
- Anyone who has a Gullain-Barre Syndrome.
- Anyone who is moderately or severely ill should wait until they recover before receiving the vaccine.

Residents of long-term care facilities and homebound senior citizens with chronic medical conditions should receive the vaccine, she said. For this reason The Quincy Health Department provides the vaccine to all Health Care Providers for dispensation by medical staff to their residents. Homebound seniors are encouraged to call the Quincy Health Department at 376-1275 to arrange for a time to receive the vaccine from their nurses.

The flu vaccine is only available at the public clinics to Quincy residents 18 years and older. Anyone 6 months to 18 years on long-term aspirin treatment who could develop Reye Syndrome if they catch the flu should be vaccinated and should contact their medical provider to receive the vaccine.

Quincy Group Hosts Annual Domestic Violence Observance

The Quincy Community Coalition for the Prevention of Domestic Violence will sponsor its fourth annual Interfaith Service of Remembrance and Healing Sunday, Oct. 3, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St.

The ecumenical service offers families and friends, survivors, service providers, and the community-at-large an opportunity to come together to remember and mourn lives lost, to find comfort, strength and inspiration, and to recommit to ending domestic violence. This year the group hopes to welcome participants from South Shore communities and the Greater Boston area.

The evening includes spiritually uplifting music, an inspirational address by a survivor of domestic violence, performance of the dramatically moving Woman Under the Blanket, and a silent candlelight procession commemorating Massachusetts' victims who have died from October 1998 to the present.

The Coalition also honors someone who contributes to "empowering women to move forward." This year, special recognition will be awarded to Gwen DeVasto, Brockton Family and Community Resources. DeVasto will be honored for her many years of singular dedication to preventing domestic violence through advocacy and education and her commitment to assisting women and their families.

Quincy Community United Methodist Church (617-773-3319) is wheelchair-accessible and one block from the Wollaston stop on the MBTA Braintree Red Line.

13-Foot Tall Sunflower Winner For Samborski Family

A 13-foot tall sunflower was the champ in this year's Quincy "Grow Together" summer contest in which over 200 families competed.

The Green Thumbs honors went to the Samborski family of Richie Rd. South Quincy who gave their prize giant tender loving care from day one.

Lynette Samborski says success came this year after five disappointing years of trying to grow sunflowers.

"When we tried to start seedlings in pots on the porch, the squirrels ate them as fast as they would sprout," she says. "If it wasn't the squirrels, it was the grubs that got them".

This year, she says, the family closely guarded the seedlings and added special nurturance from her sister's horse barn in Cohasset and Lynette's own backyard compost.

Other contestants grew lofty sunflowers measuring 9 feet, 8 inches; 10 feet and 10 feet 3 inches.

All the sunflowers came from hybrid seeds donated by Bob Almquist of Almquist Flowerland, a co-sponsor of the contest.

Other sponsors were Beechwood on the Bay and The Quincy Sun.

"Children, with parents and grandparents, aunts, uncles and Godparents took part in the "Growing Together" contest, said Sharron Beals, executive director of the Beechwood Center.

The Samborski family will be presented a full basket of prizes and gifts.

Senate Restores $1,483,704 In Local Road Funds

Despite a veto by Gov. Paul Cellucci, the Senate has moved to restore a $50 million allocation of funds for cities and towns to improve local roads and bridges.

The override would restore the Legislature's commitment to a full $150 million allocation of local road money, and restores the authorization for Quincy to receive $1,483,704, announces Sen. Michael Morrissey.

"It is also important to note that while the state allocates the funds, we recognize that local government knows where the greatest needs are, and we allow the decisions to be made by municipal officials," Morrissey said.

"In these economic good times, we can and should make capital improvements. I was pleased to vote to restore the funds because it represents responsible stewardship of the Commonwealth's infrastructure and future," Morrissey added.

In order for the Legislature to successfully override the governor's veto, the House must also vote by a 2/3 margin to do so. The House has not taken up the veto yet.

DPW Encourages Community Participation With Sailor's Home Pond Restoration

If Sailor's Home Pond is going to be restored, it is going to take time, energy, and patience. It will also require participation by the local residents.

That was the message given by the Quincy Department of Public Works in a community forum held recently at Beechwood Knoll Elementary School. The forum was part of a continuing effort to educate the public about their role in restoring Sailor's Home Pond, located on Rice Road in the Wollaston section of Quincy.

Presenters at the forum included Rosemary Nolan, program director for Quincy Department of Public Works; Professor Jonathan Twining of Eastern Nazarene College; and Beverly Cadorette of Comprehensive Environmental, Inc. of Dedham.

A 1998 study by Twining and his students at Eastern Nazarene College identified high phosphorus levels in the pond, which lead to blooms of green algae that make the water a muddy green color. At the forum, Twining said one reason the algae have taken over is the absence of other green plants to compete with the algae for nutrients such as phosphorus.

The Quincy Conservation Commission recently approved a plan developed by Twining to introduce native aquatic plant species into Sailor's Pond as part of the restoration plans. These plants, such as Sago pondweed and arrowhead, help to absorb excess phosphorus in stormwater inflows and the pond itself. By introducing these plants, they will compete with the green algae that have overtaken the pond, and hopefully improve water quality over time.

According to Twining, there are many things that local residents can do to reduce the amount of phosphorous contributed by humans to the pond ecosystem. These include picking up pet waste, refraining from feeding the ducks and dumping garbage into the pond, and reducing the use of fertilizer in the watershed of the pond.

There are several "pond-friendly" fertilizers available on the market with low concentrations of phosphorous. In addition, fertilizer should only be applied in late April and September, at a rate of 1/2 pound of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet.

There are a number of other ways to maintain a healthy lawn or garden without using fertilizers. Interested residents can contact Rosemary Nolan at the Quincy DPW (376-1901) for more information on these methods.

One way that residents can assist in the pond's restoration is to participate in a community cleanup being held at the pond Saturday, Oct. 2 from 8:30 a.m. to noon. Activities will include garbage cleanup and planting of new aquatic vegetation. All are invited to participate.

North Quincy High Freshman Orientatation Night

The North Quincy High School Counseling Center will hold Transition 99, an orientation and information night for freshman parents on Thursday, Sept. 30 from 6:45 to 8 p.m. in the North Quincy High School Media Center.

Topics will include: adjusting to high school, counseling services, promotion/graduation requirements, absence & tardy policies, understanding report cards and levels, and other activities.

QUINCY-TO-QUINCY Day will be held Friday, Oct. 8 at the Beechwood Community Life Center with residents from 14 other Quincys in the country invited. Planning the event are Vi Condon, Ruth Tuffy and Barbara Gilliland, coordinator.

Quincy-To-Quincy Day Set For Oct. 8

It will be "Quincy-to-Quincy Day" Friday, Oct. 8.

Residents of 15 other Quincys in the country have been invited to visit here that day by the Beechwood Community Life Center, 440 East Squantum St., North Quincy.

The idea was that of Barbara Gilliland who has visited or communicated with 12 of the Quincys through the years and is coordinating the event.

She is planning a full day of events, among them a noon Pizza Party hosted by Mayor James Sheets and a reception hosted by Beechwood at the center at 4 p.m.

The 15 Quincys are in: California, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Missouri, New Hampshire, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Foot Notes

by Dr. Richard A. Hacker

Surgeon-Podiatrist

FUNGAL INFECTIONS

Shoes and socks create a dark, moist environment for the feet, making them especially susceptible to fungal infections. Various kinds of fungi are prevalent everywhere and most are harmless unless they penetrate the skin. A fungus can penetrate a minor cut or cause the toenail to separate from its bed after an injury or repeated irritation. Fungus may cause the nail to thicken and turn brownish or yellow. As it grows, a foul-smelling, moist debris can be seen. The tow may hurt because of pressure on the thickened nail or the build-up of debris. Early treatment is best as the accumulation of debris can lead to an ingrown nail or a more serious infection that can spread past the foot.

Are you plagued by foot fungi or any other unpleasant foot condition? One of the best things you can do to take good care of your feet is to treat them to regular professional podiatric care. With all they do for you, we feel your feet deserve it. We'll do all we can to teach you how, together as a team, we can keep the smile in your step. Our patient-friendly office is located at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy. Please call for an appointment at 617-472-3466.

P.S. To reduce the pain associated with a thickened, infected toenail, a doctor may file the nail plate down, thinning it. Oral and topical medications may also be prescribed to treat the symptoms.

The topic will be "My Home, When to Sell, When to Stay." Refreshments will be served.

Mass. Realtors Convention, Trade Show In October

The largest real estate industry trade exposition to be held in Massachusetts this year will take place when the Massachusetts Association of Realtors® (MAR) holds its 75th annual convention and trade show, from October 5-7, at the Hynes Convention Center, Boston.

The three-day state convention will feature a two-day trade show, Tuesday, Oct 5 and Wednesday, Oct 6, allowing real estate professionals to shop for many of the latest industry-related products and services designed to enhance their business practices. Over 80 local and national vendors will be present at MAR's Trade Exposition including computer software and hardware providers, mortgage lenders, financial planners and insurance carriers, newspaper and trade publications, office supply firms, home inspectors, voice mail carriers, and sales and promotional marketing firms.

The MAR State Convention also offers over 30 education sessions, including daily offerings of courses which will allow agents to acquire the 12 hours of mandatory continuing education required to renew their real estate license. In all, the convention will offer over 60 hours of top-notch sessions for both new licensees and experienced brokers and agents, many of which will focus on the real estate industry's latest and most popular issues and trends.

Entrance to the MAR Trade Show is free to Realtors and those of the public interested in buying or selling real estate. The complete MAR Convention & Trade Show package prices are $200 for Realtors and $290 for non-member licensees. Single-day packages also are available at a cost of $90 for Realtors® and $135 for non-member licensees. For more information on the 1999 MAR Convention & Trade Show, contact the MAR Customer Service Dept. at 1-800-725-6272 or access the association web site at http://www.marealtor.com.

Friends Of Unborn Mark 15th Anniversary With Mass At St. John's

Quincy Residents Among 15,000 Expected For Respect Life Walk Sunday

By FR. JOSEPH O'BRIEN

Quincy residents will be among the nearly 15,000 expected to gather on Boston Common Sunday to participate in the 13th annual Respect Life Walk sponsored by the Mass. Citizens For Life.

An anticipated $100,000 in contributions raised will benefit 52 pro-life organizations statewide including Friends of the Unborn with houses in Quincy and Hull.

Registration and a rally at Beacon and Charles Sts. at 1 p.m. will precede the 2 p.m. start of the walk.

Cardinal Bernard Law, a regular at the event, is expected to address the assembly and walk behind the MCFL banner.

Friends of the Unborn recently marked their 15th anniversary with a Mass of Appreciation offered by Fr. William McCarthy at St. John's Church, Quincy Center.

"We gather to honor 15 years of bringing beautiful babies into the world," Father McCarthy remarked.

"We might say that we are pro-choice," he noted, "to the extent that when a man and a woman make a choice to use their gift of sexuality through intercourse, they have made their choice. What happens afterwards is up to God."

The Mass was also one of "peace and forgiveness", Father McCarthy explained, referring to the anxiety of some neighbors to a newly acquired property at 38 Edgemere Road which will consolidate the Quincy and Hull residences.

"I feel the neighbors have been terribly misinformed," said Maggie Bellotti, a FOTU board member. "I almost cried when I heard some of their reactions. They're all very good people in that neighborhood, and if they only read our prayer for the ministry, they'd know what we're all about. The girls and their babies will be a blessing in that neighborhood."

"Each of our girls has a beautiful story," said Marilyn Birnie who began this ministry in 1984 when she opened her Hull home to one homeless pregnant teen.

"Over the past 15 years, Friends of the Unborn has made a difference in 1300 young lives," she added.

Her response to those hesitant to welcome FOTU into the neighborhood is very optimistic: "Give us a year and they'll love us!"

FOTU has a professional staff of educators, nurses, social workers and pastoral care counselors. Girls are helped to complete their education, learn parenting skills, develop good nutritional habits, and be counseled in job placement, housing options and spirituality. FOTU is supported by private donations and has ties to the Archdiocesan Pro-life Office and Pregnancy Help outreach.

"It's amazing what happens to the girls when they come here," said Marilyn's husband, Rod Birnie. "There's a transformation that takes place. The girls develop maturity and self-confidence. They continue their education, become successful and start to prove themselves. It's amazing to witness."

"When you look around here today and see all these beautiful kids," he commented, "wouldn't it be a shame if they weren't around?"

"Here we have a dedicated group of people who make their Christian commitment come alive. A ministry like this puts pro-choice people in a bad position because we're living up to our commitment for life; their commitment to the mother ends with an abortion."

"I remember getting that first call from Marilyn asking advice about taking in a pregnant teen." said Leslie Collins, RN, archdiocesan director of Pregnancy Help."To witness Marilyn's self-sacrifice and generosity is truly humbling. I have come to love and respect her as a professional and friend."

"It's a privilege to be at Friends of the Unborn," said staff member, Beverly Lacks who has taught reading, writing and computer work for the past three years. "I feel each staff person has been drawn to this ministry for definite reasons. I enjoy going to work every single day. For me, it's not a job, it's really a gift. And Marilyn is beyond belief; she's like a Mother Teresa "I can't put it into words."

Marilyn's daughters Heidi Cerullo and Rachel Meissner have both been an integral part of the ministry through the years.

"This all started with the desire to help one girl," Rachel point out. "But with God's help and my mother's faith this has just grown and grown into what you see today. I tell you, my mother is an incredible women. She's a surrogate mother to all these girls and I'm very proud that she's my mother. It's helped me have a stronger faith in God seeing all the blessings he's showered on this ministry. It's been a tremendous blessing in my life."

Several parishes tithe regularly to FOTU, and Weymouth Knights of Columbus Council #5027 has been especially helpful with donations of brand new living room and dining room furniture, a heavy duty washer and dryer and six bedroom sets.

"They've adopted us," said Marilyn. "They also come on several holidays to provide dinners with all the fixings for our girls."

Bill Quigley of Chelmsford has been helping to raise funds for FOTU.

"I really wanted to do something to counter abortion." he explained. 'I'm a salesman and as I did my home work, Marilyn's name and the Friends of the Unborn keep coming up. I was really impressed with the work they're doing. When you hear some of the stories of these young girls, you can't help but be touched deeply. '

Mary Maloney, former teacher and guidance counselor for 33 years in the Boston School system and graduate of both Radcliffe and Tufts, has spent the last 10 years tutoring at FOTU enabling young mothers to get their GED certificate.

"Most of these girls have dropped out of school, and I help bring them back," she explained. "A lot of our staff have advanced degrees and are retired professionals like Paula Power, RN. She takes care of the babies while I teach the mothers. The staff her is loaded with talent."

At a reception following Mass, several graduates of the Friends of the Unborn, gave testimony to the much needed help they received.

"I could've had a place to live with my family, if I had an abortion," said Leda, a former resident. "When I didn't have anyone to reach out to, I met Marilyn and her wonderful staff. Sister Miriam was the first one to bring me around to get clothes for my baby."

"At Friends of the Unborn I found spirituality and an abundance of love. They helped me have my baby and now I have four children, am happily married to my husband, and I just graduated from college. I have a job as case manager for Headstart with ah 45 family caseload.

"But the most important thing is who helped point me in this direction. It was Mairlyn Birnie and the staff at Friends of the Unborn. My daughter Laura is now 11 years old and an honor student and I keep going to school to be an example to my family. With the help of God and these wonderful people, I'm standing before you today. I'm so proud!"

Chretien To Head Boston Oil Consumers Alliance

LARRY CHRETIEN

Larry Chretien has been named executive director of the Boston Oil Consumers Alliance (BOCA), a 6000-member organization in which members receive oil and service at below-market prices.

The organization, which began in 1982 and serves Boston and area suburbs, is based in Jamaica Plain. BOCA is also operating one of the nation's first "green co-ops" for electricity. Through BOCA, some members are purchasing pollution-free electricity made from landfill gas, solar panels, and wind power.

The mission of BOCA, a non-profit corporation, is "providing energy at an affordable price to consumers in Eastern and Central Massachusetts, improving the energy practices of households and small businesses, and educating the public about the social and environmental impacts of our energy use."

Joseph Kriesberg, president of the BOCA board of directors, said, "The board is thrilled to have someone of Larry Chretien's talent and commitment. With him as executive, we look forward to advancing our mission.

"We intend on enlarging our membership and helping consumers to make wise choices in the new marketplaces for electricity and natural gas."

In 1997, Massachusetts passed the "Electric Restructuring Act," which means that electric consumers will be given more choices in the coming years. The natural gas industry is expected to be competitive soon as well.

Since 1992, Chretien has been energy director at Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP). At QCAP, he was in charge of fuel assistance, weatherization, sewer and water assistance, cooling assistance, appliance management, and related programs.

Chretien was also a Quincy City Councilor from 1988 to 1995, representing Ward 3. His last day at QCAP will be Oct. 1 and he begins at BOCA on Oct. 4.

"In the last couple of years, most people have not had to think much about energy issues. The economy has been good and prices have been low," Chretien said.

"But I have taken the job at BOCA because they are well aware of a few facts. We all know the economy is going to slow down at some point and then more people will be looking to save money on their energy bills. Furthermore, oil prices are already beginning to rise because OPEC is cutting back production.

"People do not realize that we import a higher percentage of our energy than we did in the 1970's. Finally, how we consume energy has a great impact on our environment. Whether the problem is local smog or global warming, we need to work together and implement solutions," he added.

Chretien said he intends on raising the profile of BOCA. In doing so, he intends on forging partnerships with other consumer groups, human service agencies, environmental groups, non-profit organizations, labor unions, small businesses and other entities.

Anyone interested in BOCA can call (617) 524-3950 or 1-800-287-3950.

Dream Catchers Gift Shop Opens On Washington St

Dream Catchers recently held its grand opening at 549 Washington St., Rt. 3A in Quincy Point.

The store features custom gift baskets, incense, country items, inspirational cards and gifts, and aromatherapy products.

Dream Catchers is owned by Jean Luoni and her sister Louise LaRaia, wife of former mayor Joseph J. LaRaia.

Both LaRaia and Luoni successfully completed the 14-week "Entrepreneurial Training Program" offered through Quincy 2000.

The program walks its students through all of the necessary skills needed to start a new business. For instance, instructors teach how to construct a Business Plan which, when completed, is reviewed by a panel of bankers.

Also assisting in the planning and opening of Dream Catchers were the owners' sister Denise Lord, Joseph J. LaRaia, Luoni's husband Kenneth and their children.

The owners anticipate brisk business and hope to add more employees soon.

Senior Fitness Conference At Naval Reserve Station Oct. 14

The Senior Subcommittee of the Massachusetts Governor's Committee on Physical Fitness and Sports (MAGCPFS) will host the sixth annual Senior Fitness Conference for Health and Fitness Professionals Thursday, Oct. 14, from 8:15 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. in Quincy

The meeting represents a combined effort from professionals across the state to focus on the importance of physical fitness in our seniors and to discuss the latest research and trends within the field. Despite the numerous benefits of physical fitness for older Americans, the Surgeon General's Report of Physical Activity and Health states that by age 75, one in three men and one in two women engage in no physical activity at all.

The Senior Fitness Conference will begin at the Quincy Naval Reserve Station at 8:15 a.m. with a keynote address by Dr. Howard Koh, Massachusetts commissioner of public health. The address will be followed by morning lectures given by top professionals in the health and fitness field including Dr. Alan Jette of Boston University, Suzanne Gauthier of the Arthritis Foundation, Dr. Christine Economos of Tufts University and Dr. Wayne Westcott of the South Shore YMCA.

The conference will then move to the South Shore YMCA where fitness workshops will be held to provide hands-on training in a variety of areas such as deep water exercise for seniors, stretching techniques, yoga therapy and strength training with machines and free weights. In addition, the 3rd Annual Senior Fitness Awards Ceremony at 11:50 a.m. will recognize four deserving individuals for achievements within the field of health and fitness in senior citizens.

"The physical fitness of our senior citizens is more important than ever as people continue to live longer lives," said Ken Baldwin, senior subcommittee chairperson of the MAGCPFS. "This conference will bring together many of the state's experts on physical fitness in seniors to discuss the latest research and trends in the field and disseminate that information."

Regular physical exercise is linked with a number of health benefits important to senior citizens such as strengthening the heart and lungs, lowering blood pressure, building bone mass, protecting against the start of adult-onset diabetes, and helping to maintain a healthy weight. "If exercise could be packed into a pill, it would be the most widely prescribed, and beneficial, medicine in the nation," said Robert Butler, director of the National Institute on Aging.

Physicians, physical therapists, personal trainers and other health professionals will be on hand at the conference, but anyone interested in learning how to teach and train seniors safely and effectively is encouraged to come and participate. In addition, interested attendees can register for and take the Senior Fitness Association's Certification Exam to be held at the same location in conjunction with the conference. To register for the conference or for more information, call Mark Stewart at (508) 752-7313.

Hearing aid
"Tips from Tobias"

Stephen P. Tobias
Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist

Is there help for background noise?

The greatest hurdle for the hearing impaired, is understanding speech in the presence of noise. In a normal working ear, the brain can process complex sounds easier than in a hearing impaired ear. Traditional hearing aids (analog) amplify all sounds equally, even the ones that you don't want, making it difficult to carry on a conversation in the presence of noise.

Today's state-of- the-art in hearing aids is digital. A digital hearing aid can make 40 million calculations in one second! These are programmed for your hearing loss and designed to work more like normal hearing in the presence of noise. The volume adjusts automatically to adapt to noisy as well as quiet situations. Annoying feedback or "whistling" is also controlled by the digital circuitry. As impressive as these products have shown to be in the past 2-3 years, there is nothing better than normal natural hearing. Take care of what you have and protect your hearing from loud noises. Call or write for brochures on digital products. Now you go and spread the news! -Steve

Quincy Falls Short Against CM, Goal Line

Presidents Clash Saturday At Bridgewater-Raynham

By CHRIS POISSON

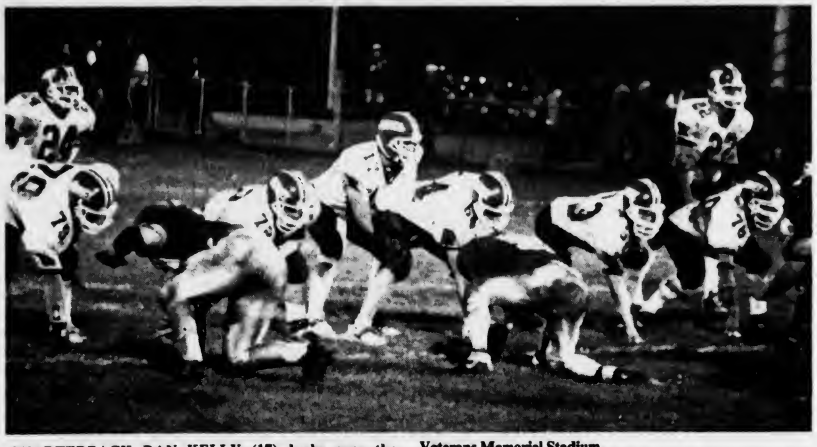
If you haven't watched a Quincy High School football game yet, all you needed to see was one play in Friday night's game to understand what type of season it has been.

Trailing 22-0 to Catholic Memorial, Quincy orchestrated a 15-play, 62-yard drive down to the 1-foot line near the end of the third quarter. Enough time to get back in the game.

But on the 16th play, on fourth down from 1 foot out, CM stuffed Quincy's run attempt as the quarter expired. And once again, the Presidents came up short, as they fell to 0-3 with the 22-0 loss at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"That sums up the whole season neatly," said Quincy head coach Bob Noble.

Quincy has now lost 13 straight and hits the road Saturday afternoon for the first time this season when it clashes with a tough Bridgewater-Raynham squad.



"We're in a position where every game is tough," Noble said. "We have to continue to work hard. I can't worry about the losing streak."

Offensively, Quincy didn't do anything against CM, gaining only 114 total yards. The defense played well during the first half, allowing just 49 yards. But in the second it continued to give up big plays as CM had 120 yards in the half, 99 from the ground.

"We stunk. This is the worst one we've played so far. Absolutely," Noble said.

But it was the failure to execute at the goal line that irked Noble.

"The goal line thing was the worst of it all," Noble said. "Fourth down and a foot at the goal line, you have to score. You have to have the pride that you'll get it in there. There's absolutely no excuse for that. None. That irritates me more than anything else."

QUARTERBACK DAN KELLY (17) looks over the Catholic Memorial defense in Friday night's 22-0 loss at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

In the first quarter, both teams punted on its first two possessions, with neither team crossing midfield. In the second, Quincy put a mini drive together, converting twice on fourth down to reach CM territory.

But on third and 3 at the 47-yard line, quarterback Dan Kelly (8 for 20 for 67 yards) scrambled out of the pocket and threw a perfect pass right into the hands of CM's Geoff DeForge, who jetted 60 yards into the end zone for a 6-0 lead as the PAT failed.

"Sometimes I think our quarterback is trying to do too many things," Noble said. "He's smarter than that. He's a great player. In that situation, it was third and 3 and that's four down territory. He tried to make a play that wasn't there."

With three minutes left in the half Quincy punted the ball from its 26-yard line, but the special teams unit couldn't bring down Brandon Lovett who returned it to the 27.

Three plays later, running back Ayne Briceno scampered for a 23-yard TD run with 1:56 remaining on the clock. Briceno added the two-point conversion for a 14-0 lead.

In the second half, CM came out storming as it scored on its first possession. On the drive, its ground game sliced its way through the defense, converting a third and 12 with a QB run along the way.

On third and 5 from the 21, with Quincy needing a stop, DeForge found Lovett, who made a one-handed grab for a touchdown with 7:02 left in the quarter.

On the extra-point attempt, Tony King couldn't handle the snap but he was able to pick up the ball and find Jayson Glenn for the two-point conversion and a 22-0 lead.

"They came out and pounded us offensively," Noble said. "Our defense was terrible. How many times can you give up big plays. It's becoming a reoccurring theme, over and over again."

Quincy Freshmen Football Win Two

The Quincy High freshmen football team has won its first two games of the 1999 season.

Two weeks ago it beat Randolph, 28-6. Kevin O'Connell, Matt Ramponi (two TDs) and Greg Morton scored for the Presidents. Shawn Munchbach scored two two-point conversions.

Last Thursday Quincy beat Catholic Memorial, 6-0, as it scored with less than a minute left in the game. O'Connell threw a pass to Ramponi who ran 40 yards to break the scoreless tie. The two-point conversion failed.

O'Connell, Ramponi, Jason Moore, Munchbach, David Andronico, Mike Sullivan, Anthony Sandonato, Matt Frangipane, Andrew Picard, Malcom Lynn, Marc Darois, Keith Hartshorn, Matt Hodges and Chris Jaques put in offensive efforts.

Catholic Memorial had one last chance but Quincy's defense stood strong as it earned its second win. Defensive standouts for Quincy were Chris Bolter, Ramponi, Jaques, Joe Gibbons, Hartshorn, O'Connell, Morton, Moore, Mike Cox, Frank Kelly, Munchbach, Lynn (interception), Steve Hawko, Ryan Greene, Dave Boncek, Marc Lopez, Darois, Joe Whiffen and Jeff Onyeokoro.

Special teams efforts were put in by Jamie Chiocchio, Steve Ekunseitan, Chris Dunlea, Tim Gleason, Denhis Hill, Mike Moody, Thuan Nguyen, Dan Coleman and Bob Ritchie.

Quincy plays Bridgewater-Raynham Thursday (today) at 4 p.m.

Panthers Storm Past Squantum, 22-6

The Quincy Point Panthers improved to 2-1 with a solid 22-6 victory over the Squantum Storm in the third week of Quincy Youth Football League action.

On the opening drive, Joe Priscella did the bulk of the groundwork and capped off his effort with a 12-yard touchdown run.

Quarterback Justin Thorley fired to Ed DeWitt for the two-point conversion.

The Storm scored after recovering a fumble deep in Panthers' territory to cut the lead to 8-6 at the intermission.

On the first drive of the second half, Priscella and Tony Popjonovich marched the Panthers down field and Popjonovich ran it in from 8 yards out for a 14-6 advantage.

Steve O'Neill and James Hutchins led the Panthers to their next score. Hutchins hauled in a 25-yard scoring strike from Thorley for the 20-6 lead. Thorley called his own number for the two-point conversion.

The Panthers had a solid effort from the offensive line of D.J. Andrews, Mark Hutchins, Nick Malvesti, Joe Ferrara and Derek Jacques.

Mike Lally and DeWitt led the Panthers' defense.

The Panthers face the Manets in the second meeting between the two on Sunday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Apaches Upset Manets With Goal Line Stand

The North Quincy Apaches held off a late game-scoring threat by the Hough's Neck Manets to preserve a 6-0 upset over the previously undefeated Manets.

At the end of the first quarter, Apaches' quarterback Tim Watson ran 45 yards to set up a first and goal from the 6-yard line. After three unsuccessful attempts to get into the end zone, Watson took it in himself on an 8-yard run.

The remainder of the half featured tough defensive play by both teams, as neither offense could gain any momentum.

In the second half the Manets' offense was able to put together some big plays, but the Apaches' defense, led by linebackers Anthony Wall and Wayne DeSchamp and defensive end Vincenzo Prisco, was able to turn away potential Manet scoring threats.

Late in the fourth quarter, the Manet offense was gaining big chunks of yardage and pushed the Apaches deep into their own end. But the defense dug in one last time and with its back nudging the goal line, the Apaches were able to hold off the Manets as time ran out.

Defensively for the Apaches, Wall, DeSchamp, Prisco and Watson all had strong games, as did Dan Cosgrove, Pat O'Donnell, Kyle Carmody and Andy MacAllister.

On offense, Prisco and Josh Hersey played well from their running back positions.

Next week the Quincy Youth Football League will play at Milton's Pierce Middle School field. In the 1 p.m. game, the Elks play the Storm. The Apaches will face the Milton Mustangs at 2:30 p.m., and the Manets and Panthers play at 4 p.m.

Penalties Spell Point Drought, Defeat For North Quincy

Red Raiders Host Falmouth Friday

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy football team hasn't found the end zone since the fourth quarter of Week 1, a time period spanning 91:23.

Actually, the Red Raiders found the end zone a couple times Friday night at Whitman-Hanson, but it was a short visit in six-point nation as they had two first-half touchdowns called back on penalties.

North Quincy (0-2-1) outplayed W-H (1-1) in the first half despite trailing 7-0, but the Panthers put 19 points on the board in the second to come away with an easy 26-0 victory at home.

"We played well in the first half," said head coach Peter Chrisom, Jr. "We had two touchdowns called back that hurt us. We just have to have confidence in what we do on offense out there. But they're a good team. They really came at us in the second half."

North Quincy will try to pick up its first win of the season Friday night when it hosts Falmouth.

"They're going to be tough," Chrisom said. "They're similar to us. They have a good quarterback [senior Josh Levy] that we have to be aware of."

W-H came out on fire in the second half as it scored touchdowns on its first two possessions. Ryan Griffith capped a 10-play drive with a 16-yard TD run for a 13-0 lead.

On their next possession, Taylor McKenna scored a 16-yard TD as he picked his game up a bit. McKenna was held in check in the first half, but came alive in the second and finished with 90 yards.

Early in the fourth quarter, Tony Generous scored from 9 yards out to make it 26-0. McKenna reeled off two 18-yard runs on the drive.

"[Our defense] can't wait around for them," Chrisom said. "We can't just sit there. We have to go out there and attack them."

Generous scored the Panthers first touchdown on a 42-yard run in the first quarter.

Senior tailback Steve Minukas, who gained over 100 yards, powered a successful running game in the first half as North Quincy put together two drives. But a clipping and an offsides penalty nullified two touchdowns.

North Cross-Country: Girls Win, Boys Bow

The North Quincy girls' cross country team continued its winning streak and the boys' team lost a heartbreaker while hosting Silver Lake last Tuesday.

North's girls dominated their meet, winning 15-44, with Lynda Wilson, Natalie Caron, Linda Nguyen, Sarah Houghton and Christine Marre taking the top five spots. Geneveive O'Brien took seventh.

In the boys' meet, the Lakers edged North, 26-29. Jeff Bartoloni topped all runners, finishing the 3.1-mile loop in a new course record of 16:43. Brian Breslin was third, John Fidalgo sixth and Frank Alibrandi and Steve Barkowski were ninth and 10th, respectively.

North's inexperience was the difference as all of the top six Lakers ran varsity a year ago, and North's Fidalgo and Alibrandi are newcomers.

"We feel that Silver Lake has the edge now, but come the league meet that will be negligible," said head coach Geoff Hennessy, pointing to the Oct. 23 event.

At the Manchester Invitational Saturday, five runners won medals over the challenging 5,000-meter course at hilly Derryfield Park.

The girls' team came in 13th out of 57 teams (305 points). Wilson finished 25th, Caron 38th, Houghton 48th, Nguyen 48th and Marre 119th.

The boys finished 35th out of 68 teams (556 points). Breslin was 19th, Bartoloni 38th, Fidalgo 126th, Alibrandi 184th and Barkowski 189th.

The only local high school to compete was Brookline, as its girls placed eighth, 50 points ahead of North Quincy. Over 3,000 runners, from all six New England states plus New York and Idaho, participated. North was only allowed to compete in the "A" division championship race because it was its first year involved.

North Quincy hosted Taunton Tuesday (Sept. 28) and will travel to Falmouth on Oct. 5. It will also take part in the Baystate Jamboree at Franklin Park this Saturday.

Quincy Resident To Produce Film On BU Hockey Player

Julie Campbell of Quincy, owner of Mark Campbell Productions, Inc., announces the recent signing of screenwriter James Redford to write the screenplay for the film "Eleven Seconds" based on the life of Travis Roy.

Roy is a former Boston University hockey player who became a paraplegic after crashing into the boards 11 seconds into his first collegiate shift in October, 1995.

Redford, a successful screenwriter and producer, had his original script "Hearts and Bones" (starring Kiefer Sutherland and Darryl Hannah) produced this past summer. Currently he is the writer on the set of the film "The Legend of Bagger Vance," being directed by his father Robert Redford. On Sept. 23,. HBO premiered his documentary "The Kindness of Strangers," for which James Redford was executive producer.

Redford is in Boston until Thursday (today) for research on the story of Roy. Later in the week, Redford will meet with the Roy family in Maine to continue his work on the film. On Monday, Oct. 4, Redford will join Bobby Orr and others at the Travis Roy Foundation's 1999 Beanpot Golf Tournament in Mashpee, MA, on Cape Cod.

Campbell chose to produce "Eleven seconds" because "Travis's personal story of courage and triumph over adversity made it especially appealing." Campbell has included Roy as co-producer.

Mark Campbell Productions is currently raising development funds for "Eleven Seconds" and has scheduled production for next summer.

North Quincy Girls' Soccer Stuns Falmouth

The North Quincy High School girls' soccer team improved its record to 3-2 by winning two of three games last week, including a 2-1 stunner against defending Division 1 South Sectional champs Falmouth on Sept 21.

It was the first time the Red Raiders have beaten the Clippers in girls' soccer.

After a scoreless first half in which the Red Raiders' defense, led by sophomore keeper Kathryn "Cat" MacRitchie, held the visitors at bay, North Quincy got on the scoreboard five minutes into the second.

Freshman stopper Erin McFarland boomed a 30-yard direct kick into the net for her first varsity goal.

Falmouth tied it up 10 minutes later, but with 18 minutes left in the game, junior Kellee Conley scored the game-winner as she pushed a shot past the Clipper keeper at the far post. The assist went to senior captain Maureen Holleran, who found Conley with a long flip throw.

Defensively, the Red Raiders were led by Conley, Kathlyn Gates, Kelly Rice and Lauren Sleeth.

Last Thursday, North Quincy had a letdown against Bridgewater-Raynham as it suffered a 3-0 loss at home. Two first-half goals proved to be North Quincy's downfall as it was never able to mount a sustained attack.

The Red Raiders did get good performances from freshman Katy Mercurio, Gates and Allie Lacey.

The following day, North Quincy rebounded to a take a 3-1 non-league win against Canton of the Hockomock League.

Again, McFarland got North Quincy on the scoreboard first, hitting a direct kick from 20 yards out to the far post. Senior captain Ashley Murphy then scored her first goal of the year, chipping a shot over the Bulldog keeper from 35 yards away.

In the second half, senior captain Caitlyn O'Donnell made a brilliant run with the ball and blasted her second goal of the season from the top of the penalty area.

Canton spoiled MacRitchie's shutout with eight minutes left in the game.

The Red Raiders got strong efforts from seniors Janelle Hersey, Kristin Coughlin, sophomore Kelly Coleman and freshman Lauren Kalil.

North Quincy opened its 1999 campaign by splitting two games two weeks ago.

On Sept. 15, perennial OCL power Silver Lake visited the Red Raiders in the home opener and came out with a 4-2 win.

North Quincy had the early lead when Coughlin took a feed from Conley and volleyed it home at the 3:30 mark.

North Quincy dominated the first 15 minutes as it kept play in Silver Lake's zone. It nearly took a 2-0 lead when Lacey's blast just missed the far post.

The Red Raiders maintained the lead until the visitors struck for two late first-half goals after the Raiders failed to clear two rebounds in front of MacRitchie.

Silver Lake took a 3-1 lead 10 minutes into the second half on Renee Gaudet's first of two goals.

North Quincy closed to within a goal when junior forward Jen Djerf blasted a shot from 15 yards out after stealing an errant Silver Lake pass. Djerf had been thwarted five minutes earlier by the goalie.

North Quincy continued to press the attack with scoring bids by Murphy and Lacey. The visitors closed out the scoring with a minute left in the game on Gaudet's second goal.

On Sept. 18, the Red Raiders traveled to Martha's Vineyard for a non-league match and rebounded with a 3-0 win.

Despite controlling play early, the score was tied 0-0 at halftime. O'Donnell, a threat all day, nearly had a goal as she hit the post midway through the half.

North Quincy's defense, led by Rice, Stacy Szesuil and McFarland, was solid.

The Raiders finally got on the scoreboard four minutes into the second half when junior defender Jen Conley picked up an errant clearing pass and blasted a 25-yard shot into the top corner.

Eighteen minutes later, O'Donnell took a set from Lacey and found the top corner from 20-yards out. Lacey then closed out the scoring with one minute left, knocking in a cross from O'Donnell for her first varsity goal.

MacRitchie was strong in goal with six saves to record her first varsity shutout. Also playing well for North Quincy were seniors Hersey, who had several scoring chances, Lauren Awed, Holleran and Gates.

North Quincy traveled to Barnstable Monday (Sept. 27), then hosted Plymouth South Wednesday (Sept. 29), and Saturday it will play rival Quincy at Veterans Memorial Stadium at 5 p.m.

Final Home Game Sunday Vs. Boston

Granite Can't Score Upset Against Lowell

FOOTBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy Granite had plenty of opportunities to score the upset Saturday night in a heavyweight fight, but they just couldn't land the punches to drop their opponent.

The Granite (3-2) failed to capitalize on great field position and wound up falling, 22-6, against the defending league champs Lowell Nor'easter (6-0) at Cawley Stadium.

"It was a dog fight," said captain David Harris. "We were pretty banged up from Saturday. It was a hard-hitting game. We beat ourselves. We played good football. When you're that close to the end zone you have to score. They took the victory for now."

Quincy will play the Boston Bandits Sunday at 6 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium in the final home game of the regular season. The Bandits (5-1) knocked off the Rockingham Cougars, 23-3, Saturday and sit atop the south division in first place. The Granite close out the regular season against the Bay State Bulldogs at Leominster High School on Oct. 10.

"It's the biggest game this year," Harris said. "They're a big rival because we have a lot of friends over there. We definitely need a win. This is our last home game of the regular season and we need all the fans to come out and support us."

Once again the Granite got off to a slow start as they trailed 14-0 late in the second quarter before running back Felipe Ogaldez returned a kickoff 98 yards for a touchdown. The extra point attempt by tight end Scott Spaulding was no good and Quincy trailed 14-6 at the half.

Quincy had many chances to put points on the board thanks to the defense's effort. Five times the defense gave the ball to the offense in Lowell territory, but Quincy came away with nothing. It was without its field goal kicker so it couldn't even try for the three points.

"Mistakes always hurt us and we didn't capitalize on their turnovers," Harris said. "We're not going to win like that. Our offense didn't have anything all night. The defense was on the field the whole game."

Quincy had trouble stopping Lowell's running game in the first half, but the defense made some adjustments at intermission to slow down its attack.

"We came out in the second half and our defense shut their offense down a little bit," Harris said. "They were running the ball against us in the first half and we had some trouble on the sweeps."

25 Residents Signed Up For Cancer Society Benefit Walk

According to advance orders on special t-shirts, more than 25 Quincy residents have signed up for the American Cancer Society's seventh annual Making Strides Against Breast Cancer, and therefore made a commitment to help fight this disease and support women undergoing treatment.

"This initial outpouring of support boosts our confidence that we will meet this year's goal of 30,000 participants when the registration tables for the walk open on Oct. 3," said Lana Lessem, walk manager for Making Strides Against Breast Cancer. "Quincy's efforts to support Making Strides are an important part of our success this year."

Making Strides Against Breast Cancer is the largest single-site breast cancer fundraiser in the nation. This 5.7 mile walk along Boston's Charles River Esplanade will help kick off National Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

Making Strides walkers are expected to raise $2.7 million in pledges. Funds raised will support the American Cancer Society's breast cancer research, education, and service programs for breast cancer patients and their families in Massachusetts. Many walkers participating in Making Strides Against Breast Cancer are themselves touched by personal experiences with breast cancer, or they become involved in honor of family members, friends and co-workers who are battling the disease.

The American Cancer Society is the nationwide community based voluntary health organization dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by preventing the disease, saving lives and diminishing suffering from cancer through research, education, advocacy and service. For more information about Breast Cancer Awareness Month, and how to walk or volunteer for Making Strides Against Breast Cancer, call the American Cancer Society at 1-800-952-7664, ext. 4700 or email Strides_Boston@cancer.org.

Jimmy Fund Seeks Local Walkers For Boston Marathon Walk Oct. 17

Last year, 90 Quincy residents walked from Hopkinton to Boston in the 30th Annual Boston Marathon® Jimmy Fund Walk, making Quincy a leading town in the effort to raise money for cancer care and research.

With funding needs for cancer research on the rise, the Jimmy Fund is hoping to attract more walkers from Quincy for the Oct. 17 event. The goal is for 7,000 walkers to raise more than $2 million through the one day event.

While individual walkers qualify to participate in the Walk by raising $100, Pacesetters are those who raise $500 or more. Pacesetters receive special recognition at the finish line. They will also receive a special club T-shirt and be invited to a reception held in their honor in the spring.

"Almost everyone has been affected by cancer in one way or another," said Emily Swymer, director of the Boston Marathon® Jimmy Fund Walk. "Either they have fought it themselves or had a family member or friend stricken by it. We're encouraging people to fight back by joining with their friends and neighbors in this fun, but important fundraising effort."

Walkers may choose to walk a half marathon that begins at Wellesley High School or they can join Jimmy Fund Clinic patients and their families in the Patient/Family Walk that starts at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

The 11th Annual Boston Marathon® Jimmy Fund Walk begins in Hopkinton at 7 a.m., in Wellesley at 11 a.m., and at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute at 2 p.m. All walkers finish at Copley Square where they will be met with music, food and a post-walk program featuring speakers from Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

For more information on how to join the fight against cancer by participating in the Boston Marathon® Jimmy Fund Walk on Sunday, Oct. 17, or how to join the Pacesetters, call Walk organizers at (800) 632-3562 or visit www.jimmyfund.org.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

GRANDMOTHER'S ARE SPECIAL!... A grandmother is a lady who has no children of her own, so she like other people's children. A grandfather is a man grandmother. Grandmothers don't have to do anything except to be there. They are old, so they shouldn't play hard or run. It is enough if they drive us to the market where the pretend horse is and have lots of dinner ready for us. They take us for walks and show us things like pretty leaves and caterpillars. They never say "hurry up." Sometimes they are fat, but not too fat to tie kid's shoes. They wear glasses and they can take their teeth and gums off. It is better they don't typewrite or play cards with anyone but us. They don't have to be smart; only answer questions like why dogs hate cats or why God isn't married. They don't baby-talk like visitors do because it is hard to understand. When they read to us they don't skip words or mind if it is the same story again. Everybody should try to have a grandmother, especially if they don't have a television, because grandmas are the only grown-ups who have got time . . . And this, of course goes for grandpas, too . . .

We wanted to share this with you. It was given to us by a friend who clipped it from a club bulletin . . . Enjoy it? We did!

Thomas F. Hurlebaus, 85

Long-Time Library Trustee

THOMAS F. HURLEBAUS

Thomas F. Hurlebaus, 85, of Houghs Neck, a long-time member of the Thomas Crane Public Library Board of Trustees, died Tuesday at Quincy Hospital.

Mr. Hurlebaus was the chief master sergeant of the United States Air Force and a member of the Mass. Air National Guard for 35 years.

He served in World War II from November, 1940 to October, 1945. He also served in Europe during the Berlin Crisis from 1961-62.

Mr. Hurlebaus was a past commander of the Quincy Veteran Council and past commander and life member of Houghs Neck American Legion Post #380.

He was also a member of the Quincy Historical Society Board of Trustees for many years.

"I was sad to learn of his death," said former Mayor Frank McCauley, who appointed Mr. Hurlebaus to the library's Board of Trustees in February, 1986. "I was a long-time friend of Tom Hurlebaus. I've known him for some 35-odd years and he was very active in the Houghs Neck community. He was a valued member of the community. My condolences go out to his family."

"He was a wonderful board member," said Ann McLaughlin, Library Director. "He certainly loved the city and its history, and was a big library user. He was a lovely gentleman. He always used the library and always made a point of telling the staff how much he appreciated their work."

Born in South Boston, Mr. Hurlebaus moved to Quincy in 1948. He was a graduate of South Boston High School.

In 1992, Mr. Hurlebaus was recognized for his involvement in the Houghs Neck community when he received the Houghs Neck Community Council extinguished senior citizen award.

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES March (21 to April 19) New avenues of learning have opened up in front of you, but not all of them are easy or comfortable. Do not drag unwilling participants down these paths with you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) No matter how much you hate it, put in some serious time at the office, work-bench, computer, etc. Do whatever is necessary in order to eliminate future headaches.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A simple formula takes the mystery out of several difficult equations. It is all right to revel in your newfound knowledge.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Resist the temptation to run away from a problem. You need to be there in order for things to get fixed, then life can resume its normal, happy course.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Words and ideas have a powerful effect on you. Intellectual companions may appeal to you on a more physical level.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Strange sleeping-and-waking dreams make you wonder at the turmoil in your subconscious. However, if you throw yourself into your work, you can appease your inner demons.

LIBRA (September 23 t o October 22) The checkbook balances with remarkable ease this week, and the house seems to clean itself. You are able to handle any task with a minimum of stress or effort.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your impetuous spirit may feel somewhat weighed down by inexplicable forces. Authority figures are impressed by this sudden change in your personality, but, of course, it will not last.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your unique abilities with friends, family and the community are much in demand at this time. Remember that every word and deed has the power to help or to hurt others.

CAPRICORN (December 22 January 19) It is not enough to know the truth right now. You must figure out how to wield it before it can protect you.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Reciprocity materializes in your day-to-day life. People are finally as eager to bestow gifts upon you as they are to receive them.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Apply your attention to all the mundane tasks and boring details you would rather ignore. Procrastination literally gets you nowhere.

YOU BORN THIS WEEK: Uncharted territories appeal to you more than the most highly recommended hot spots. You like to find your own way of doing things, and you don't feel the need for a partner or support group. Although you may tend to be distant or impersonal at times, you really do like people.

Health Care Training Course Starts Oct. 25 At Red Cross Office

The American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay will conduct a health care training course at its Quincy office, 1495 Hancock St., beginning Monday, Oct. 25.

The course will be held Monday, Wednesday and Thursday through Dec. 16 from 5 to 9:30 p.m.

Cost for the 100-hour dual certification program is $515, which includes all materials.

The dual certification program trains participants as a nurse aide and home health aide. Students will learn to care for residents in long-term care facilities and patients in hospitals as well as provide basic care in a home environment to allow clients to maintain an independent and quality lifestyle.

To qualify, each student must schedule and past an assessment test offered at the American Red Cross. The test is given at the American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay every Tuesday or Friday at 9 a.m.

To register for the dual certification course, call 1-800-564-1234, ext. 272, 235, or 221.

Depression Screening Oct. 7 At Quincy Medical Center

South Shore Mental Health and Quincy Medical Center (formerly Quincy Hospital) will co-sponsor a free depression screening program in observance of National Depression Screening Day Thursday, Oct. 7.

Screenings will be held at Quincy Medical Center, 114 Whitwell St., in conference rooms A and B from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 4 to 6 p.m.

The program is designed to provide information about the signs, symptoms and treatment of depression, and will include a video presentation, a self-evaluation questionnaire, and a private consultation with a mental health professional.

No registration is necessary. For more information, call 617-376-5427.

LEGAL NOTICE

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
THE TRIAL COURT
PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT
Norfolk Division
Docket 99E0062PP1

To David C. Ward of Quincy, MA and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Stuart Fay of Braintree, MA in the County, Norfolk representing that he hold as tenant in common an undivided part or share of certain land lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows: The land in Quincy, with the buildings thereon, being lot number 3 on a plan recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 974, Page 497, and bounded and described as follows:

SOUTHERLY on Richie Road, 55 feet; WESTERLY on Lot 2 on said plan, 96.5 feet; NORTHERLY on land now or late of Adams Real Estate Trust, 55.23 feet; and EASTERLY on lot 4 on said plan, 90.5 feet containing 5132 square feet of land setting forth that he desire that--all--of said land may be sold at private sale or public auction for not less than two hundred thousand ($200,000) dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Norfolk Probate Court, P.O. Box 269, Dedham, MA 02027-0269 before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the 13th day of October 1999, the return day of this citation.

Peter Shea Receives National Banking School Diploma

Peter M. Shea, Vice President of Operations at the Bank of Canton recently received a diploma from the National School of Banking of the America's Community Bankers Association.

Shea, a graduate of Bentley College in 1983, worked as the Assistant Vice President of Operations at Lincoln Trust Co. in Hingham, prior to joining The Bank of Canton in 1989.

The National School of Banking consists of three 10-day resident sessions spread over two years on the campus of Fairfield University. Students are also required to complete numerous intersessional research assignments. More than 3,000 financial industry executives have graduated from the school since its founding in 1960.

"This was a great opportunity to expand my knowledge of banking and its many facets, as well as current trends in the industry," Shea notes. "I believe that my participation in this program further illustrates The Bank of Canton's commitment to providing its customers with the highest quality of serv ice by providing quality educational opportunities for its employees."

Hospital Affiliation Close To Final Signing

added that "the union pieces are falling into place nicely."

Sheets termed the news from the state house as a "relief," He also remembered a time not too long ago when the thought of both bills nearing passage on the Senate floor seemed like a fantasy to most people.

"In this health care environment, when was the last time you saw a merger take place? There's been none," the mayor said. "To get this far is nothing short of a miracle."

Personally, Mayor Sheets described the saving of the soon-to-be Quincy Medical Center as a "very meaningful" event.

"You can do an awful lot of things in public life," said Sheets, "but helping preserve a hospital is something special."

McCauley, Sports Fees

(Cont'd from page1)

their budgets to get involved in sports."

McCauley sees a way to eliminate the fees without cost to the city.

He said the School Committee has had a proposal before it for sometime from Coca Cola company to put non-carbonated (juices) in the city's schools.

Under the proposal, McCauley said, the School Department would receive $50,000 a year from Coca Cola.

"This," he said, "is more than enough to cover the elimination of student athletic fees which amount to $40,000 to $45,000 per year."

Earlier this month, Creedon announced he was going to hire a second athletic director. Currently William Walker is the director.

Creedon would have one of the two take Quincy High School and the other North Quincy High School and then have them divide the five middle schools programs.

Creedon defended his decision to appoint a second A.D. "Each high school should have a supervisor thinking of ideas, meeting with parents, doing surveys, hiring trainers, managing health insurance, transportation, budgets, and equipment. Some people think that all an A.D. does is make schedules and attend games but that's a myth."

Creedon pointed to the decreasing numbers of sports participants at the high school level, most notably Quincy High's five-year low of 474 participants, and said that that is something a second A.D. could take a look at more closely. He said that, with two A.D.'s splitting the high schools and middle schools, more attention could be paid to non-traditional sports, female sports, and the diverse student populations unique to each school.

As for user fees, Creedon said that he proposed doing away with user fees years ago and that he is "seeking ways to eliminate the user fees."

He said that he supported the Coca Cola proposal but that it was still in a policy sub-committee.

Business Council Seeks Mediation Between Council, Developer

By MARILYN JACKSON

Frustrated at the stalemate between Highpoint developer Dean Stratouly and the City Council, the Quincy Business Council voted Tuesday to try to mediate the differences between the two and get the original luxury housing development off the ground.

Joseph McParland, a Quincy attorney for 30 years, suggested that someone of the stature of former Boston Mayor Kevin White would be an ideal third-party mediator, but, said McParland, "you've got to get the city to agree" to sitting down with a mediator.

Stratouly, president of Congress Group Ventures Inc. of Cambridge, spoke to the business council Tuesday to update the members about his proposal, noting that it was exactly two years ago that DDFA Associates, LLC, an affiliate of Congress Group Ventures, had acquired the 75-acre site.

Presently, Stratouly has applied for a comprehensive permit to build 1,641 apartments off Quarry Street, dedicating up to 410 apartments for affordable housing.

The application, which is under review by the Zoning Board of Appeals, calls for constructing 20 percent of the apartments as three-bedroom units, 40 percent as two-bedroom units and 40 percent as one-bedroom units.

Stratouly said he was confident that the new proposal will be approved and, if challenged, he would prevail before the state's Housing Appeals Committee. "Of the last 15 proposals, the Housing Appeals Committee upheld the developer 13 times and modified two other development proposals," Stratouly said.

Afterward, he said a ruling from the Housing Appeals Committee could take between six and nine months.

"Like you, I am a businessman," Stratouly told the group. "Congress Group Ventures has been in business for 20 years and has [weathered] real estate downturns in the 1970s and '80s. That shows the type of commitment and long-term determination we bring to this project.

"We're not a fly-by-night company. We have the wherewithal. We have built more than 5 million square feet of real estate — offices, shopping centers — and we have another 2 million square feet on the drawing boards, but we pale in comparison to The Flatley Company."

He noted that the two 25-story residential complex in East Cambridge known as Museum Towers which his firm built took 12 years and just sold for a record sum.

Progress Reported At State House

Favorable Signs For Hospital

By CRAIG SALTERS

Favorable signs appeared on Beacon Hill late Tuesday buoying Quincy Hospital's hopes of receiving the crucial state money needed to stay open and affiliate with Boston Medical Center.

Mayor James Sheets told The Sun he had been informed that both House Speaker Thomas Finneran and Senate President Thomas Birmingham were reporting progress on the $12.1 million no-interest loan the city is seeking.

Sheets said Rep. Ronald Mariano said Finneran had told him progress had been made and there was reason for optimism.

Senator Michael Morrissey, Sheets said, also reported that Birmingham had given him a similar reading on the situation.

Sheets said he, himself, had talked with Gov. Paul Cellucci Tuesday who assured him he would "cooperate fully" with Finneran and Birmingham.

Cellucci, according to Sheets, said once Finneran and Birmingham were in agreement, he would submit a bill to the legislature for its approval.

Although there were no guarantees, today (Thursday) was seen as the logical day for passage since both the House and Senate meet in formal session.

"All indications are that they have made substantial progress and that they will work things out this week," Sheets said.

Despite his optimism, Mayor Sheets also said Tuesday that, unless state funding becomes an actual reality this week, he will have to start closing down Quincy Hospital next Monday.

Sheets said next Monday is the last day the city and taxpayers can absorb the $30,000 a day losses incurred by the hospital as it awaits word on the $12.1

Frequent Tenant Police Calls May Cost Landlords

Landlords whose tenants overburden police with frequent telephone calls would be penalized under a city ordinance proposed by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi.

Raymondi, at Tuesday's city council meeting, requested City Solicitor Stephen McGrath to draft the ordinance.

The landlords would have to pay for the cost of extra police details assigned to watch their properties after a series of calls to police from tenants living there.

Raymondi said the idea is similar to an ordinance already on the books which fines owners of home security systems after more than three false alarms.

According to Raymondi, this suggestion came directly from the new Community Policing Unit which noticed that a handful of buildings in the city had weekly, if not daily, calls to the police department.

"This is another tool that the police department can use to be pro-active," Raymondi said. "If a landlord does not respond appropriately, we need a mechanism to fine him, to say 'shape up or pay the penalty.'"

As examples of inordinate calls, Raymondi pointed to problems at the housing complex at 145 Willard Street or, in his own ward, a rash of calls from

Second Quarter Taxes Due Nov. 1

Quincy's second quarter real estate bills have been mailed out and are due by Nov. 1 reports Treasurer-Tax Collector James Chiccino.

Property owners will have until that date to pay their bills, which are actually estimates based on last year's tax rates of $15.24 per $1,000 for residential and $32.28 per $1,000 for commercial/industrial.

Chiccino said that approximately 24,315 bills were sent this quarter for a total of slightly over $22 million.

Chiccino also said that this year's actual tax rates should be finalized sometime in November.

Frequent Tenant Police Calls May Cost Landlords

Grafton St.

Specifically, Raymondi said he was outraged that a synagogue on Grafton St. felt it needed barbed wire to be safe.

Council President Peter Kolson approved of the idea and said that he had seen forms of the ordinance in other cities. He promised to expedite the issue.

Councilor-at-large Frank McCauley also approved of a resolution to look into the ordinance, but cautioned that there were many issues that needed to be resolved. He warned of the City having to pay directly for the new details, the idea of condemning landlords for the actions of tenants, and the extreme difficulty in evicting troublesome tenants. "Let's go slow on this," McCauley urged his colleagues.

Raymondi said he understood the thorniness of the issue but wanted some decision by the end of the year.

"We need to analyze whether we can do it within both the Massachusetts and U.S. Constitutions," Raymondi said, adding that his goal was only to have "a policy statement by the end of the year, one way or the other."

Raymondi praised the Community Policing Unit for the idea of fining negligent landlords and for their work in general. He also added that, "Things are better today than they were two or three years ago. We're making tremendous strides."

Quincy Community Action Accepting Applications For Fuel, Water, Energy Assistance

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) is accepting applications for fuel assistance, sewer and water assistance, and energy conservation.

Quincy Community Action serves residents of Braintree, Milton, Quincy, and Weymouth.

For fuel assistance, homeowners and renters may be eligible -- depending upon household size and income. All types of heat are covered -- oil, gas, electric, and cases in which heat is included in the rent (except clients in subsidized housing with heat included are NOT eligible).

Eligible clients also receive discounts on utility bills:

- 33 percent on Mass. Electric
- 20 percent on Boston Gas
- 40 percent on Boston Edison
- $9.50 per month on Bell Atlantic

Recipients may also be eligible for energy conservation programs including: attic and wall insulation, heating system repair, and electric appliance management. Eligibility varies among the programs, but one application is used for all programs.

According to Beth Ann Strollo, QCAP's Executive Director, "We encourage people to call our office for these programs. Oil prices are expected to be higher this winter than the last couple. We can also expect colder temperatures.

"The eligibility guidelines for our programs vary, but our staff can help callers determine what they may be eligible for.

"We particularly wish to emphasize our Energy Conservation program in the town of Weymouth, funded through the Community Development Block Grant program. That program is available to residents with low -- and moderate -- incomes.

For more information, call 479-8181, extension 101. Appointments are necessary for new clients.

Ward 4 Candidates Forum On Oct. 14

Boom Time At Crown Colony

Hotel Construction To Start Nov. 1
Second Office Building Planned

By MARILYN JACKSON

Quincy's commercial real estate boom, like the residential real estate market, is booming.

Site preparation work is underway for a 240,000-square-foot office building in the northernmost section of Crown Colony office park, and work will begin Nov. 1 on a 460-room hotel on a 10-acre parcel at the southwesterly portion of the park, Joseph McParland told the Quincy Business Council Tuesday.

McParland, who works with The Flatley Company, and embattled developer Dean Stratouly, president of Congress Group Ventures which wants to build a 1,646-unit multi-family housing complex off Quarry Street, spoke to about two dozen business leaders Tuesday at a meeting at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

As McParland detailed all the ongoing construction at Crown Colony, he said Flatley also has plans to construct a second 240,000-square-foot building nearby but has not applied for any permits. There is plenty of space for parking for both buildings, about three times what the city requires, he said.

Already, several prospective tenants have expressed interest in locating in the as-yet-to-be-built offices, McParland said.

Just this week, the Greater Boston Real Estate Board issued a third-quarter-end report stating that office vacancies in the Boston Central District hovered at just 2 percent, pushing up average asking rates for Class A space to $50.26 per square foot, approximately 4 percent increase from the second quarter.

In the South-Route 128 South area, which includes Quincy, the vacancy rate increased to 8.7 percent, reflecting the addition of some 160,000 square feet of new office space at Batterymarch Park, said Tom Powers of Cushman & Wakefield.

The asking price for office space in the South-Route 128 market also increased about 4 percent from the last quarter to $25.70, according to Tom Collins, senior managing director of Cushman & Wakefield, citing GBREB statistics.

"Even though there are a couple of million of square feet of office space in the pipeline in the suburbs and another couple of million in Boston, it's still not enough to meet the demand of businesses that want to grow," said Collins.

There are other projects in the works at Crown Colony as well. Arbella Insurance is completing its second building in the office park, and Harvard Community Health Care plans to move out of its existing building at 1200 Crown Colony Dr. into new quarters which are presently under construction. although earlier this summer The Wall Street Journal stated it Harvard Community Health planned to sell both buildings.

In addition, The Patriot Ledger is exploring a concept to construct a smaller administration building on the site of its nearby printing plant. Its present quarters at 400 Crown Colony are on the market; the Ledger expects to continue to occupy about 65,000 square feet in that building until 2003.

McParland said The Flatley Company was the second bidder for the first Harvard Pilgrim Health Care building and had lost out to the Nordblom Company. Nordblom was expected to close on the deal Friday, according to Dan Bowen.

Crown Colony also includes a large medical complex and a child care facility and a new office building built by Lincoln Property Co. which has leased about half of the building to

High School Diploma Program For World War II Veterans

Quincy Veterans' Services is working with Quincy High and North Quincy High School to award diplomas to veterans from World War II who left school to enlist in the military and never had a chance to go back and earn their diploma.

Those who would like to receive an application for the diploma program should contact Henry P. Bradley, director of veterans services. The application should be filled out and returned by Wednesday, Oct. 13. To allow time to have the application checked out by the school and have diplomas ready for the graduation exercises scheduled for Nov. 8, North Quincy and Nov. 9, for Quincy High School, you may contact Quincy Veteran Services at 24 High School Ave., or phone 617-376-1192.

A diploma may be awarded to any veteran who was either killed in action or has died since his/her military service, as long as the paper work is filed, and checks out, Bradley said.

A Celebration For Rabbi Mann

The dictionary's definition of humility is "the state or quality of being humble."

We have our own special definition: Rabbi Jacob Mann.

MANN

He symbolizes what humility and humbleness is all about. He lives it.

Dean of Quincy clergy, he just recently turned 90, and is now in his 57th year as spiritual leader at Beth Israel. That is believed to be the longest anyone has served a Quincy house of worship.

He came to Beth Israel in 1942 during World War II at a young 23.

But he's still pretty young at age 90 and will be honored at a dinner Sunday, Oct. 24 at 5:30 p.m. at Temple Beth El, 1001 Hancock St.

It will be a double celebration: the Rabbi's 90th birthday and the 80th anniversary of Beth Israel Synagogue.

Born and ordained in Jerusalem, he came to the United States in 1930 and served in Connecticut before coming to Quincy and Beth Israel.

Two sons have followed in their father's footsteps: Rabbi Jonah Mann now of Queens, N.Y. and Rabbi Abraham Mann of Manhattan. A daughter, Esther Snyder lives in Israel.

And, there are eight grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

Mayor James Sheets and other city and state officials will be among the expected large turnout at the celebration for Rabbi Mann and Beth Israel Oct. 24.

Members of the planning committee include:

Harold Krasnoff, president-treasurer of Beth Israel Synagogue; William and Rita Needel, Melvin and Marion Needel, Sumner Greenberg, Herbert and Barbara Fine, Irving Isaacson and Bernard and Helen Warhauer.

For more information contact Rita Needel at 472-0582.

It was a great day for Beth Israel Synagogue when their new young rabbi arrived on that day back in 1942.

And, a great day for Quincy, too.

As we have said before, he is a Quincy treasure.

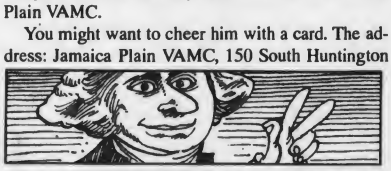
FORMER SCHOOL Committeeman Frank Anselmo, who recently turned 101, is now at the Jamaica Plain Veterans Administration Medical Center.



ANSELMO

The World War I-World War II veteran fractured his hip last month while playing pool in the recreation area at 1000 Southern Artery where he lives.

He underwent surgery at Brigham and Women's Hospital and was recently transferred to the Jamaica Plain VAMC.

You might want to cheer him with a card. The address: Jamaica Plain VAMC, 150 South Huntington Ave., Boston, MA 02130.

Wishing you a speedy recovery, Frank.

George Washington was the only president to receive all electoral college votes twice, in the 1788 and 1792 elections.

NEXT TIME you see Bob Curry, call him "Gramps."

CURRY

He and his wife, Cheryle, who hardly look it, are proud grandparents for the first time.

Brendan Robert Curry was born to Sean and Tara Curry Sept. 24 at South Shore Hospital. He weighed in at 7 pounds, 6 ounces.

And, of course, he is Sean and Tara's first child.

JOE HAJJAR is celebrating a business milestone at Joe's Yardrock on East Howard St., across from the shipyard: 35 years at the same location. Or, as he puts it, "35 years behind the same counter."

HAJJAR

Hajjar started there in October, 1964 with his father, Joe, when it was Joe's Lunch. Then it became Joe's Pub. And now, Joe's Yardrock with him the lone owner since 1981.

Hajjar has produced the City of Presidents Blues Festival the past seven years at Veterans Memorial Stadium bringing top blues singers and musicians from around the country.

LINDA TRACY, who lost a political bid in Quincy, is a winner on the Cape.

Tracy ran unsuccessfully against Ward 3 Councillor Pat McDermott in 1997.

Now living in Hyannis, she was recently elected as a member of the Barnstable Town Committee.

But misses Quincy.

NOT MANY Red Sox fans get to see a game in the style that Wollaston's Ed Spargo does.

SPARGO

This season, for the fifth straight year, he was invited by Red Sox CEO John Harrington to take in a game from the Sox partners' suite.

The annual invitation is because of Spargo's 80-year loyalty to the Sox, his words of encouragement when things aren't going too well, and the health literature he distributes free.

Harrington once told Spargo that Jean Yawkey thought of him as "part of the Red Sox family."

This year's invitation had a special sentimental meaning for Spargo. It marked the 80th anniversary of his first trip to Fenway Park in 1919 with his father, Will, who published a Quincy weekly and brother, Dick.

Spargo recalls that first game was against Cleveland but doesn't remember who won.

But he does remember that Ray Chapman was playing shortstop for Cleveland and Carl Mays was pitching for the Sox.

Later, the Sox committed the infamous "Curse of the Bambino" trade that sent Babe Ruth to the Yankees. Mays went with him.

And Spargo notes this irony: As a Yankee, Mays beaned Chapman who died from the injuries, baseball's only on-field fatality.

Incidentally, Ed will be 92 Nov. 27 and is looking forward to seeing a new millennium game at Fenway next year. Hopefully from the partners' suite.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A PICTURESQUE 1920's postcard showing one of the few section of New England's rocky coast in Quincy. Known as Chapel Rocks this scene is at Squantum Park. It is pretty much the same as when first seen by Myles Standish in 1621. The rocks, called tillite, are an unusual and rare conglomerate formed by glaciers millions of years before the last ice age. Today the Birch trees still cling precariously to this cliff and in fact thrive here; they grow all through this section of the park.

A Tribute To DOVE Co-Founder

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On Sept. 20, I lost a best friend and DOVE, Inc. lost its strongest supporter and co-founder, Rose Mary Lucci Kirwin, as the result of a sudden illness.

Rose Mary, or "Rosie" to those that knew her, belonged to the original Board of Directors of DOVE, incorporated in April of 1978.

From the first moment, it was apparent that her passion and dedication were unprecedented and she was intimately involved in every program and decision of DOVE to the time of her death. Throughout these 21 years of service, she acted as Founder, Board Member, Executive Director, Board President and at one time or the other chaired almost every Board Committee and always with the same fervor and enthusiasm. Rosie always provided a clear institutional memory for DOVE as well as some lively, enchanting stories of our history.

In 1981 when DOVE purchased its permanent shelter building, it was Rosie who enlisted her husband, Frank, who provided the architectural plans and, together with Rosie and her hammer, and the many other friends of DOVE got the building up and ready for occupancy. This is the type of commitment that Rose Mary was known for. We were involved in fundraising together and celebrated the happy day when we were able to burn our mortgage. She did not "join a cause" but made each issue worth fighting for and an integral part of her life.

In recent years, her advice and guidance was priceless to this organization and the cause of Domestic Violence. As our thoughts go now to her family and friends, we are reminded of why we are here and the reasons for Rosie's fervent commitment to ending domestic violence. Support Advances In Technology

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As a mother of three young children, I am aware of how the computer, Internet and other data services play a tremendous role in their education and affect their everyday life. Oddly enough, it is my children who have taught me about the Internet and the resources that it offers. This form of "distance learning," as some often call it, is not only instructing children but it is instructing adults and seniors as well. We need to continue to encourage advances in technology, not prohibit usage by regulating the industry.

So often in America, many industries are regulated and there is a lack of competition and growth in the marketplace. Internet users, like all consumers, should have choice among competing Internet service providers. By deregulating Internet access services, you will be providing market incentives for the access of advanced telecommunications services and a direct link to the "information superhighway."

I want to reiterate the importance of the Internet Freedom and Broadband Deployment Act of 1999 (HR 2420), in addition to several other bills introduced in the House and the Senate. The Internet is a phenomenon that we can not stop, nor should we; therefore we should ensure that providers and consumers can offer and make their own choices, hence supporting the advances in technology.

Della Chiesa, Curtin Top Mayoral Vote

Oct. 7 - 13
1957
42 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

Rep. and Plan E Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and former 10-year City Councillor Laurence Curtin topped this week's preliminary election ballot for mayor. It was the first time in 10 years that the city voted for a Plan A mayor, having recently rejected the Plan E (city manager) form of city government.

Della Chiesa racked up an impressive 8,555 votes with Curtin at 4,072. Eliminated from the mayoral contest was businessman Frank Foy and Attorney Edward Joyce.

All incumbent councillors were renominated along with former councillor Frank Orcutt and newcomers Joseph Brett and John Quinn.

High School Diploma Program For World War II Veterans

Quincy Veterans' Services is working with Quincy High and North Quincy High School to award diplomas to veterans from World War II who left school to enlist in the military and never had a chance to go back and earn their diploma.

Those who would like to receive an application for the diploma program should contact Henry P. Bradley, director of veterans services. The application should be filled out and returned by Wednesday, Oct. 13. To allow time to have the application checked out by the school and have diplomas ready for the graduation exercises scheduled for Nov. 8, North Quincy and Nov. 9, for Quincy High School, you may contact Quincy Veteran Services at 24 High School Ave., or phone 617-376-1192.

A diploma may be awarded to any veteran who was either killed in action or has died since his/her military service, as long as the paper work is filed, and checks out, Bradley said.

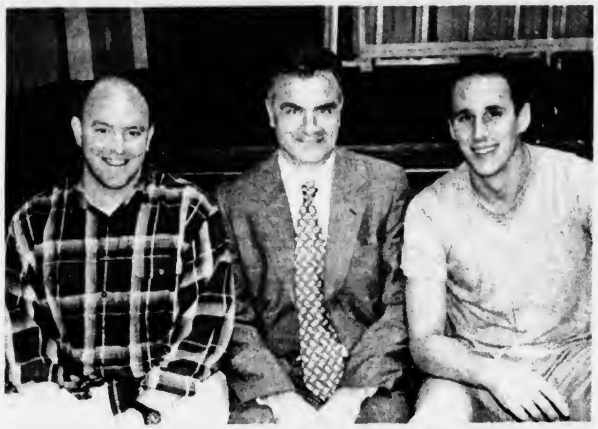
Michael Ricca Takes Part In Cabaret Symposium

MICHAEL RICCA

Michael Paul Ricca of Quincy, currently living in Boston, recently participated in a nine day Cabaret Symposium at the prestigious Eugene O'Neill Theater Center in Waterford, CT.

The Cabaret Symposium was founded in 1989 to pass the torch of Cabaret Masters onto gifted Cabaret artists of a new generation. The Symposium shares in the vision of Eugene O'Neill Theater Center to create an environment which nurtures artistic experimentation, growth and collaboration.



Two of the most prominent Master Teachers at this Symposium were Margaret Whiting (founder) who has recorded more than five hundred songs, has twelve Gold Records and more recently starred on Broadway in the Johnny Mercer musical "Dream." Julie Wilson is one of the most famous Cabaret singers in the country. Stephen Holden in the New York Times wrote, "Julie Wilson has established herself as the most elegant and fiercely expressive singer/actress on New York's Cabaret Circuit... unmatched by her peers." She won a Tony nomination for her Broadway performance in "Legs Diamond."

Auditions are held in various cities across the country to select thirty-five participants (Cabaret Fellows) who spend nine days of immersion in the art of cabaret in workshops, individual coaching and daily performances. They receive guidance from musical directors, singers, arrangers, writers, composers, publicists, designers, and club owners who are experts in the field of cabaret artistry. The master teachers work with each artist's unique ability, searching for their mark of individuality while choosing material and arrangements.

The art of cabaret is again gathering force in the performing art world as an alternative to other performing styles, as a method of preserving and mining the "gold" contained in American popular songs and as a place for new song writers to create. This is the eleventh year of the Symposium.

The last evening of the Symposium concluded with thirty-five participants forming five separate groups, who selected their own music, wrote their own script and performed, demonstrating their newly acquired insight into the art of Cabaret.

Michael Ricca is the son of Marion and Paul Ricca of 129 Madison Ave., Quincy.

'Stars Of La Cage' To Open Quincy Dinner Theatre Season

The Quincy Dinner Theater will open its season with laughter and the voices of "Cher," "Neil Diamond," "Barbra Streisand," "Elton John" and others on Columbus Day Weekend.

Or so it would appear, as Anthony and Eddie Edwards return to Quincy with their Las Vegas style drag show for two nights only.

Called "Stars of La Cage," the ensemble highlights the Edwards brothers, along with Titus Ulrich who impersonates Bonnie Rait and Celine Dion.

Tickets are $40 which includes a sit-down dinner served by Fasano's of Braintree.

Reservations are necessary. Call 1-877-81-STAGE (78243). Dates and times are Saturday, Oct. 9: 8 p.m. dinner and 9:30 p.m. show; Sunday, Oct. 10: 5 p.m. dinner and 6:30 p.m. show.

The theater is located at 1170 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Tim Semchenko In Lead Role For ENC's 'West Side Story'

Tim Semchenko, son of Jack Semchenko and Lewann Mina, has been selected for "Action," a lead role in Eastern Nazarene College's (ENC) fall production of West Side Story.

Semchenko is a junior at ENC this year and is a Youth Ministry major.

A graduate of North Quincy High School, he was active in various choir activities and theatre productions. He was also a member of the Red Raiders Football team.

In addition to his theatre pursuits at ENC, Semchenko has continued to distinguish his vocal abilities as a member of the college's A Cappella Choir and the select group, The Chamber Singers. He is also a member of the Lacrosse Club.

West Side Story, a contemporary re-telling of Shakespeare's Romeo & Juliet, is said to be one of the most significant creations of the American musical stage. ENC selected the musical to begin its 25th anniversary season.

Under the direction of Dr. Ronda Rice Winderl, the musical opens Oct. 14 at 7 p.m. at the college's Cove Auditorium.

Additional performances are available on October 15, 21, 22, and 23 at 7 p.m. and on Oct. 16 at 6 and 9 p.m. For more information or tickets, call (617) 745-3715.

Eastern Nazarene College is a four-year liberal arts college in Quincy, Massachusetts.

Adams' Birthplaces To Host Colonial Fair Columbus Day

The National Park Service, Adams National Historical Park will hold a traditional 18th century Colonial Fair Columbus Day, Oct. 11 at the Adams National Historical Park Birthplaces at 133 and 141 Franklin St.

Visitors will meet such personalities as Abigail Adams, played by Karen Yourell; Dr. Elisha Skinner, played by Edwin Page; and a Continental Army soldier, complete with 18th century military artifacts, as portrayed by Douglas Neumann.

Henry Cook will highlight the skill and artistry of 18th century tailoring. Sarah Blake will demonstrate the art of spinning and carding wool. Christine Lucero will display how early Americans made beeswax candles to light their homes. Participants can also watch artisan Julia Smith demonstrate Delft pottery painting and enter a drawing to win a silhouette portrait cut by artist Courtney Skinner.

Throughout the day participants will enjoy music from the American Colonial, Revolutionary, and Early Republic eras. The Middlesex County 4-H Fife & Drum Corps will perform at 11 a.m. At 1 p.m. the Middlesex County Volunteers Fife & Drum Corps will perform a program of martial, dance, and folk music drawn from the 17th, 18th, and early 19th centuries.

Visitors can also take part in mock skirmishes between Patriot militia and "Redcoats."

Refreshments such as fresh mulled apple cider, Johnny Cake, and ginger cookies will be served.

The program is free of charge. For more information, contact Adams National Historical Park Visitor Center at (617) 770-1175.

Quincy Rotary Club Seeks Members For Study Exchange

The Rotary Club of Quincy seeks applications for team members for a Group Study Exchange to Karnataka in India.

The program provides a unique educational opportunity for young professionals between the ages of 25 and 40 to travel in the host country in a four-week program that introduces the visiting team to the history, business, industry, government, education and culture in the country.

Karnataka has a population of nearly 50 million in an area of nearly 200,000 sq. km. and is located on the southern coast on the Arabian sea. It is known for its historic architecture, temples, wildlife and national parks and teak and rosewood forests. Bangalore is the center of India's science and technology. The region produces coffee, spices and 66 percent of the nation's silk.

Interested persons should contact Caryn Smith of the Quincy Rotary Club for information and application materials. All expenses except for personal items are paid for by the Rotary Foundation and the GSE Program.

The travel will take place from Feb. 1-29, 2000 during which team members will live with host families in the sponsoring district.

Applications are due at the Quincy Rotary Club on or before Oct. 15.

Foot Notes

by Dr. Richard A. Hacker
Surgeon-Podiatrist

ULCERATIONS OF THE FOOT

Stasis ulcers may at first appear to be itching or redness around the boniest points in the feet, most often in the ankles, heels and sides of the feet. The skin then loses its elasticity and scratching or otherwise irritating it may cause the skin to peel. Unchecked, this may turn into a painful, draining wound that will become infected if not treated. Frequently, foot ulcers are a side effect of poor circulation (sometimes due to diabetes) on the skin. You may be alerted to poor circulation in your extremities if the skin discolors, feels cool to the touch, or suddenly loses hair growth. The pooling of blood in dependent members may be caused by phlebitis or varicose veins.

As foot specialists, whenever our patients are dealing with foot ulcers or other medically related problems, we are happy to work with all their health care providers to ensure maximum treatment and comfort. We don't treat the entire body, but our experience shows that foot problems can affect, and be affected by, the health of the rest of the body. We do treat all kinds of foot diseases, conditions, disorders, injuries and bone deformities here at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy. PH: 617-472-3466.

P.S. If you have an underlying medical condition causing foot ulcerations, your physician and your podiatrist should work as a team to maintain your foot health.

Delahunt Urges Residents To Check Projected Social Security Benefits

Congressman William Delahunt urges local residents to carefully review -- and, if necessary, take steps to correct -- statements of projected Social Security benefits that are now being mailed.

On Friday, the US Social Security Administration launched a new project to inform every American worker over age 25 - including 3.3 million Massachusetts residents - of his or her projected Social Security retirement benefits. The statements, mailed about three months before the worker's birthday, will contain an estimate of the monthly retirement benefit at age 62, based on the worker's personal earning history.

The statements, mandated by congressional directive, were designed as a financial planning tool, and to educate the public on the variety of non-retirement benefits available under the Social Security system.

"With so much concern about the future of the Social Security program, this statement will spell out clearly what a beneficiary can expect upon retirement," Delahunt said. "It also itemizes the lifetime earnings record on which the projections are based, offering a chance each year to catch errors in the government's records."

Delahunt urged Quincy, South Shore and Cape and the Islands residents to scrutinize their statements thoroughly, in order to correct any inaccuracies as they appear - to make sure their later retirement benefits are properly calculated. The mailings outline procedures for reporting such mistakes.

WILLIAM DELAHUNT

The notices include personal data on an individual's earning record, Social Security and Medicare taxes paid, and resulting Social Security "credits" accumulated. On that basis, the statements estimate prospective levels of retirement, disability, survivors' and Medicare benefits.

"Many people don't focus on their likely benefits until just before they retire," Delahunt said. "But by then, it's too late to make financial planning adjustments - and it's difficult to clarify problems or resolve complications that may date back many years."

As co-chairman of the House Older Americans Caucus, Delahunt is planning a Congressional briefing on the new statements. This session will seek to inform colleagues about the progress of the mailing - and to help assess whether it is worth the cost (56 cents apiece) of producing and mailing 10 million notices each month.

Currently, individuals may request statements of projected benefits. The Social Security Administration has fulfilled nearly 37 million such requests.

Details about the forthcoming statements are available through the Congressman's office - or, for the cyber-savvy, from the he Social Security Administration website at www.ssa.gov/mystatement. The Internet webpage shows how to correct errors in statements, and has a projection chart that allows individuals to test how different assumptions might alter prospective retirement benefits.

Hotel Construction To Start Nov. 1, Second Office Building Planned

(Cont'd from page 3)

American Express, McParland said.

The Village at Crown Colony, he added, built by Lloyd Geisinger of the Thorndike Development Company, has been a success. "It was built in two years and sold in a year's time and has had three increases" in sales prices, McParland said.

Mayor James Sheets calls the proposed nine-story hotel "the crown jewel of Crown Colony," said McParland. It's on top of the park and has sweeping views of Quincy Bay and the Boston skyline. A rendering of the hotel, which is being built to Marriott International's specifications, shows the rear of the building facing the Southeast Expressway and the front entrance designed with a porte-cochère to receive visitors.

McParland said, fortunately, approvals for the new hotel proceeded quickly after Thomas Flatley had announced it would build a hotel for the Marriott. "Yes, there are traffic issues," McParland acknowledged, "and we're working to create a second access.

"We know we need a second access and second egress by the spring of 2001, or we won't be able to rent space," he said, adding that The Flatley Company has contracted with Rizzo Associates to develop engineering solutions.

The Class A office space brings a tremendous economic impact to the community, said Anthony Agnitti, president of the Quincy Business Council.

Congress Approves $1.5 Million For Town Brook Flood Control

An Energy and Water Appropriations bill recently approved by Congress includes $1.5 million for the Town Brook flood control project which impacts Quincy and Braintree.

Cong. Bill Delahunt said the money will continue reconstruction of the Quincy Dam, completing the third and final stage of this flood protection project, began seven years ago.

Quincy Cultural Center Accepting Applications For Local Programs

State Sen. Michael W. Morrissey and State Reps. A. Stephen Tobin, Ronald Mariano, and Bruce J. Ayers announce the Quincy Cultural Council is accepting applications for community cultural programs, ticket subsidy programs and other similar cultural programs for school-age children.

The Quincy Cultural Council will be accepting applications until Oct. 15.

Awards for this grant will be made in the spring of 2000.

"These local grants play a significant role in our community's cultural and economic life," said Morrissey. "This year an estimated $3.9 million will be distributed by the Massachusetts Cultural Council to 335 local cultural projects taking place in the year 2000."

"This funding reflects a unique state-local partnership of grassroots public support for culture in the local community," Tobin said.

The Massachusetts Cultural Council is a state agency that supports public programs in the arts, sciences and humanities. The Council distributes funding appropriated by the Legislature to the 335 local cultural councils using the Local Aid Formula.

Individuals or organizations may apply for general funding through the local cultural council. Projects eligible for funding include workshops, lectures, exhibitions, festivals, science education programs, artist projects and PASS funding "PASS funding is of a particular importance because it enables schools and youth groups to bring Pre-K to 12 students to cultural performances outside of school," said Mariano. Grant applications are subject to extensive review.

"Each grant is awarded after considering the benefit to the community, the qualifications of the individuals and organizations involved, the planning process, community interest and involvement, and popular segments served," said Morrissey.

"Also, all activities must take place in physically accessible facilities," Ayers added.

Applications can be acquired by contacting the Quincy cultural council chairperson at:

Arthur Keough, Chairperson, Quincy Cultural Council, 595 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02171, (617) 376-1322.

The completed forms must be submitted or postmarked by Oct. 15. Individual awards range from $250 to $1,500, with larger grants made on occasion.

The Quincy Legislative Delegation thanks and recognizes the hard work of Chairperson Arthur Keough and the Quincy Cultural Council, who are volunteers.

"Cultural council members volunteer their services to improve the quality of life we all enjoy, and their efforts are greatly appreciated," Morrissey said.

City Council Commends Squantum's Frank Buckley

Throughout the 30 years Frank Buckley has been working to make Squantum and Quincy a better place to live, he has never thought twice about a pat on the back.

But Tuesday night he got one.

At Tuesday night's council meeting Councillor and state Rep. Bruce Ayers presented Buckley with a City Council Commendation for his three decades of service to Squantum.

Ayers called it "an honor and a privilege to honor a community hero" and cited Buckley's work as past president of the Squantum Community Association, past president of the PTO, and coordinator and former grand marshall of the 4th of July parade. Ayers also mentioned Buckley's role as a Civil Defense coordinator, his involvement with church and youth programs, and his role in putting on the addition on the Squantum School.

"Frank Buckley is a credit to his family, his community, and the city of Quincy," Ayers said. "There was no issue too small."

Ayers presented Buckley with a plaque with each of the councillors' names engraved.

Buckley thanked the council for the award and then thanked his wife Sandra, his children and grandchildren, and his friends for their support.

Buckley called himself an "adopted son" because he moved to Quincy thirty five years ago. He said that, with the help of his wife, he realized that a person had two options when moving into a community: sit in bed or get involved.

"And when you do get involved," Buckley urged, "work with the councillor in your community."

Buckley said that he was always happy to work with Ayers and the council and that they were always very supportive.

Ayers also presented Buckley's wife Sandra, the director of the Squantum Community Center for the last 11 years, with a bouquet of roses.

Praise for the Buckleys was not hard to find.

Councillor Cahill thanked the Buckleys for welcoming him as a newcomer many years earlier. Councillor Durkin spoke of his long friendship with the Buckleys and their upholding of Squantum traditions. Councillor D'Amico praised Frank and Sandra as models of activism. Councillor Harold said that the Buckleys were good friends and one reason Squantum was such a special place to live.

Peter Kolson thanked the Buckleys on behalf of all the council and praised their humble nature. "You're not looking to beat the drum," Kolson said. "You just go out and do it."

Fire Department Family Safety Day Saturday

The Quincy Fire Department will hold a Family Fire Safety Day at Fire Headquarters, 40 Quincy Ave., Saturday, Oct. 9, from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Numerous safety agencies will be represented, including Boston Gas Company, Massachusetts Electric, Quincy Emergency Management, the MBTA, the National Fire Protection Association, the Shriners Burns Institute, and the Quincy Police Crime Prevention Unit.

Additionally, various fire and emergency apparatus will be available for viewing and demonstrations, including an antique fire engine from the Hingham Fire Museum, Fallon Ambulance, Quincy's Engine 1, Ladder 1 and Rescue 1, plus the hazardous material truck, the tunnel rescue truck and the fire investigation van.

The Braintree Fire Department's "safety house" will also be available for tours. Free pizza and drinks will be provided, compliments of Papa Gino's.

The Family Fire Safety Day is being held in conjunction with Fire Prevention Week activities. The public is invited to attend.

Public School Safety Topic For Ward 5

The Ward 5 Community Association will conduct its monthly meeting Thursday, Oct. 14 at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, Fenno St. at 7 p.m.

All are welcome.

The topic will be safety in Quincy's public schools. Guests will include Supt. Eugene Creedon and Ken McPhee, director of Security and Transportation for the Quincy Public Schools.

"In light of the rising concern about the safety of our children while they are in school, we thought that people might like to hear what measures are being taken here in Quincy to ensure a safe learning environment," said Association Vice President Dave Murphy.

The Ward 5 Community Association will conduct its annual election of officers at its November meeting. Any resident of Ward 5 who wishes to serve as an officer may submit their intentions, in writing, to the Ward 5 Community Association no later than Nov. 10. A letter of nomination may be presented at the October meeting or mailed to Doug Gutro, 10 Weston Ave., Quincy, MA 02170.

At the November meeting, the association will conduct a 50-50 fundraiser raffle. Tickets are $5 and can be purchased at association meetings or by mailing a check to Treasurer Timothy McAloon, 34 Randlett St., Quincy, MA 02170.

Manet Health Center Marks 20-Year Growth

The Board of Manet Community Health Center held a staff recognition breakfast this week expressing thanks for the access to health services provided everyday by the center's four sites.

Manet CHC is celebrating Health Center Week this week and the 20th anniversary of its opening in Houghs Neck in 1979.

Services at Manet are available to low income, uninsured individuals as well as to those with insurance.

Manet's Medical Director Fred Dolgin, M.D. noted "Manet has been an innovator in health care in Quincy and Hull. We introduced the role of nurse practitioners for patients. We worked with Quincy Hospital to bring Nurse Midwifery to the community. We introduced bilingual medical services in Quincy. Most recently, we have introduced the role of "hospitalist" to our services at Quincy Hospital."

Manet provides over 53,500 primary care visits annually.

Jim Hooley, CEO of the Neighborhood Health Plan, spoke to the staff at the breakfast about the important role community health centers continue to play in providing high quality care for low income populations.

"Community Health Centers provide the resources to help individuals who typically have not been in care, have limited resources and complicated social service needs." Manet works closely with area homeless shelters, day care programs and residential homes as well as providing comprehensive managed primary care.

Gertrude Peter, President of the Board of Directors extended her thanks to the staff recalling when the health center opened.

"From the beginning, we were told it could not be done...and here we are 20 years later with four sites. I like to compare Manet CHC to The Little Engine Who Could."

Manet CHC will be celebrating its 20th anniversary Oct. 21 at 6 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy. The Board of Directors will honor Rosemary Wahlberg, James Hooley, Robert Pressberg, M.D., and Sen. Edward Kennedy for their support of Manet CHC's services.

If you have not received an invitation and would like one, call 617-376-3030 ext 3112 or come on Oct. 21. Suggested donation is $35.

Free Depression Screening At Quincy Hospital

Over a lifetime, as many as one in five Americans will be affected by depression.

The good news is that in most cases, depression is treatable.

Quincy Heights, the Psychiatric division of Quincy Medical Center, is offering a free Depression Screening from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 7, in the Educational Center at the hospital, 114 Whitwell St.

The screening includes a lecture followed by a private evaluation by a mental health professional. Roberta Guez, LICSW, program director of Quincy Heights, will present the lecture, which covers how to recognize the signs and symptoms of depression and treatment options. The evaluation involves a written test to help identify depression and a discussion of the results.

No appointment is required. For more information about the Depression Screening, call Quincy Heights at (617) 376-5427.

Six Local Agencies To Share $53,350 In Project Bread Grants

Project Bread has awarded $53,350 in Walk for Hunger grants to six local food pantries, soup kitchens and food banks.

The funding is essential because more than half a million state residents are at risk of being hungry, and 63 percent of emergency food programs report an increase in demand for food aid.

Local agencies sharing the $53,350 in grants are:

• Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion, Quincy Crisis Center program, $16,000.

• Interfaith Social Services, Inc., Pantry Shelf program, $3,300.

• Quincy Community Action Programs, $18,150.

• Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, Father Bill's Place, $12,100.

• Salvation Army/Quincy Temple Corps, $1,100.

• Seaside Advocacy Group, $2,700.

The money for the grants was raised at Project Bread's 30th anniversary Walk for Hunger, which brings together 40,000 individuals from the state on the first Sunday in May to help hungry people.

CANCER TALK WITH CLAIRE FUNG, MD

Screening for Breast Cancer

Breast cancer is not only widespread, but also on the rise. This year, it will strike 5,000 Massachusetts women. While research has yet to explain what causes the disease, we are often able to detect breast cancer in its early stages.

If detected early, the disease is usually treatable and patients have a better choice of treatments. Therefore, women should get into the habit of examining their breasts monthly for lumps and other suspicious changes. Most breast cancers are found by women themselves which attests to the importance of breast self exams.

In addition, women between the ages of 20 and 40 should have a physician conducting a clinical breast exam, at a minimum of every three years. Women over 40 should have an annual clinical breast exam.

At 35, women should ask their physician about a baseline mammogram or breast x-ray. A mammogram can identify cancers too small to be detected by a breast self-exam or a clinical breast exam. A baseline mammogram at 35 is highly recommended, especially for women with a family history of breast cancer.

Women 40-49 face conflicting advice on mammograms. Annual mammograms during this age period, when the breast is younger and more dense, can give rise to false indications of cancer or of its absence.

While aware of these risks, my own experience suggests that women aged 40-49 can benefit from annual mammograms. As with all cancers, every case of breast cancer is unique and must be assessed accordingly. If you are in this age group, discuss having an annual mammogram with your physician.

Women over 50 experience an increased risk of breast cancer. The disease, however, is also easier to detect. Therefore, annual mammograms are not only beneficial for women in this age group, but are highly recommended.

Of course, no one method of screening — breast self-exam, clinical breast exam or mammography — is ideal. All three methods have a role to play in detecting this disease. Learn more about them and give yourself an edge in the fight against breast cancer.

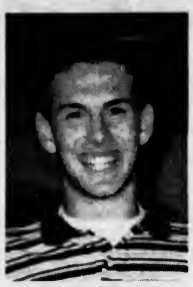
Kevin Moore Halloween Fundraiser Dance Oct. 23

The Quincy High School classes of the 1950's are sponsoring a Halloween dance and fundraiser for Kevin Moore, a Quincy High School athlete and student seriously injured in a car accident in May of 1998.

The event will take place Saturday, Oct. 23 from 7 to 12 p.m. at the Bryan Post, 24 Broad St., Quincy.



Kevin, the son of Gene and Jeanne Moore of Quincy Center, is doing well with his treatment at the Sunbridge Nursing Home, 49 Thomas Patten Drive, Randolph.

"Kevin is starting to respond to the people over there," said his father Gene. "We love it there. We're very thankful."

The Moores say that volunteers are needed to visit Sunbridge to speak to Kevin and help him respond. They ask that volunteers call Sunbridge for possible visiting hours.

"People have been wonderful," said Kevin's mother Jeanne. "His friends, people from Quincy, North Quincy, just the entire community."

The Moores want to give special thanks to Q.H.S. classes of the 1950's for sponsoring the dance and to the Gray family, especially Kevin's girlfriend Pam Gray, for their constant support.

KEVIN MOORE

Special guests at the dance will be June Knight and Michele Hughes from Oldies 103.3 (WODS). Music will be provided by a DJ and a 50's live band.

There will be a hot and cold buffet, raffles, a door prize, and costume prizes (although costumes are optional).

Donations are $15 apiece and $100 for a table of ten. Checks can be made out to: Q.H.S. 50's Dance.

Tickets are available from the following committe members: Vin Moscardelli, (617) 328-1312; Bob Derbes, (617) 471-1596; Ronnie Ivil, (781) 337-4347; Joe Chase, (617) 479-5267; George Mallett, (781) 740-8426; Satch Cavanaugh, (781) 337-2519; Peter Chella (781) 834-9251; Dottie Ivil, (781) 335-8579; Tommy Connors, (781) 837-1855; Jack Powers, (508) 564-4103; and Helena Veno, (617) 773-2217.

Tickets are also available from committee members Claire Van Felt and Nancy Kruger.

Conference Night Oct. 14 At North Quincy High School

The North Quincy High School staff and Parent Advisory Council will hold a "Back-To-School Conference Night" at the school Thursday, Oct. 14, from 6:45 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Parents are invited to attend and follow their student's schedule, meet his or her teachers, have an opportunity to receive literature outlining the course content, expectations, tests, and homework, and to confer with each teacher.

MA Motorists Begin Enhanced Emissions And Safety Test

The Department of Environmental Protection and the Registry of Motor Vehicles announces that more than 1,200 Massachusetts service stations are participating in the state's new vehicle inspection program, which began Oct. 1.

The Enhanced Emissions & Safety Test, designed to reduce air pollution by approximately 120 tons each day, was created to comply with the air quality requirements established by the Federal Clean Air Act of 1990.

"The Enhanced Emissions and Safety Test is one of the best tools available to give each vehicle owner the power to reduce the amount of pollution they contribute to the air," said Lauren A. Liss, Commissioner of the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection. "It's accurate and will effectively identify the worst polluting vehicles in the state."

"Our goal is to fulfill the requirement of the US Environmental Protection Agency's mandate with a program transition that is as seamless as possible while remaining focused on motorist convenience," said Registrar of Motor Vehicles Daniel A. Grabauskas. "Motorists can help themselves by maintaining their vehicles throughout the year and by having their vehicles inspected in the middle of the month rather than waiting until the last minute."

The US Environmental Protection Agency mandates that Massachusetts and 27 other states implement enhanced emissions tests for motor vehicles in order to reduce levels of air pollution to meet federal standards.

Owners of vehicles due for the annual inspection must have a valid vehicle registration and pay an annual fee of $29 in order to have the vehicle inspected. The Commonwealth's fee is among the lowest in the nation when compared to similar programs. Under the new program, all vehicles will undergo an emissions test every other year. However, as required by law, all vehicles are subject to a safety inspection each year.

For most cars, emission levels will be measured using a dynamometer, a treadmill-like device that simulates actual driving conditions and is linked to a sophisticated, computerized testing system. The test analyzes an emissions sample from a vehicle and measures it against the emissions standards for that vehicle's model year and engine type as determined by the EPA. Each year, approximately seven out of 10 vehicles will require a safety test only. Vehicles less than two years old, or model years 1983 or older are exempt from the emissions test, as are other vehicles with engine types known to perform well. Upon entry into the inspection station, the vehicle identification number will be entered into the program database and the inspector will be told if an emissions test is necessary.

In general, vehicles with odd number model years will be tested in odd number years, and even number model years will be tested in even number years. As the program began Oct. 1, not all inspection stations had the capability to perform the emissions portion of the inspection. All 1,200 stations in the network, however, will be able to issue valid inspection stickers. Owners of vehicles due for an emissions test who seek an inspection at a station not yet equipped to perform the emissions portion of the test will undergo the legislatively mandated annual safety test this year and will be given the emissions portion the following year.

The enhanced emissions testing program is part of a comprehensive plan to reduce air pollution and its impact on the health of Massachusetts' residents, particularly those suffering from lung and respiratory ailments. Emissions from cars, trucks and buses account for more than 40 percent of all pollution in the state.

For more information about the Massachusetts Enhanced Emissions and Safety Test, motorists can visit http://vehicletest.state.ma.us or call 1-877-387-8234.

New York was the first state to require the licensing of motor vehicles. The law was adopted in 1901.

Montclair-Wollaston Association Candidates' Night Tonight

The Montclair-Wollaston Neighborhood Association will sponsor a Candidates' Night tonight (Thursday) from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Wollaston School auditorium, corner of Beale and Taylor Sts.

Candidates for mayor, council at-large, Ward 3 city council, and school committee have been invited to attend.

Candidates for mayor and council at-large will each have an opportunity to highlight their qualifications and goals if elected to office. There will be no questions asked of these candidates.

School committee candidates will each be given up to three minutes to make an opening statement. A 10-minute question and answer period will follow. All candidates will be given two minutes to make a closing statement.

Candidates for Ward 3 city council will follow the same format.

The final election will be held Tuesday, Nov. 3.

Goodman Calls For Senior Safety Zones

Arline Goodman, Ward 5 City Council candidate, says Quincy should establish Senior Safety Zones at the city's 12 senior housing facilities similar to 20 miles-per-hour School Zones.

Speaking recently to senior citizens at Tobin Towers, 80 Clay St., Goodman called for a home rule pefition to establish the zones.

She told the group that Rep. Bruce Ayers filed legislation known as the Senior Safety Zone bill No. 1689 but the bill has been in the Transportation Committee since May 11.

Goodman said she feels Quincy should take the lead and create a law in Quincy that could be a model for the rest of the state.

She said that pedestrian safety is one of her priorities in this year's campaign and election.

OLD DOGS, NEW TRICKS?

We've all heard the old saw about not being able teach "old dogs new tricks," but at least one new study shows that older adults may not be as inflexible as one might imagine. In fact, when researchers from Princeton University and Ohio State University tested thousands of people, they found that middle-aged adults were more resistant to attitude change than older adults. The people in the study were questioned about their social and political views, then presented with opposing arguments of conflicting bits of information. While baby boomers stubbornly clung to their original beliefs, the elderly subjects were more open to changing their minds. Why? Perhaps changing life circumstances force them to accept change more readily.

One thing is certain. We can know that without any research, maintaining an open mind and flexible attitude helps one adjust to change no matter during what time of life it comes. Marina Place, a senior living residence, offers independent and assisted living. We work hard to offer you the amenities that make your life comfortable as well as the essentials that ensure you have the personal care assistance you require. For more information, call us at 617-770-3264 (Four Seaport Drive).

Get a real taste of Marina Place! Join us for buffet lunch, served in our gracious dining room every Thursday from 11:30 to 1:30pm. Seating is limited and reservations are necessary. Please call 617-770-3264.

P.S. Older persons' openness to attitude change is probably necessary for effective societal survival, as well as minimizing social conflict.

Safe At Play: Fence Provides Security

(NAPS)—Pets and children both need plenty of room to play, but sharing the same backyard can create problems. More and more people are double fencing backyards to provide a safe, sanitary children's play area surrounding the house while still providing plenty of room for larger pets.

Fencing provides safe play areas for children and pets.

"By fencing the perimeter of the yard and adding a second interior fence as a barrier to pets, children's play areas and patios remain separate," according to Linda Chamberlin-Clark, Certified Fence Professional, of C&C Fence in Lovejoy, GA. "Double fencing creates a more sanitary play area and allows family pets to join the family in the 'people area' to play when it's appropriate."

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Mother of two, Gloria Carter, highly recommends double fencing. "Our dog is always excited to see our little girl and ends up knocking her over or whacking her with his tail. A separate, fenced play area is a great idea for the sand box, swings, and other toys."

"By controlling access to the play area, dogs and toddlers can easily share a backyard. The dog has the rest of the yard for play and exercise and isn't forced into a dog pen or small run," explained Chamberlin-Clark, who was recently elected Secretary of the American Fence Association.

Dr. Michael Mason, a veterinarian in Marietta, GA, recommends a good-sized, fenced yard for dogs and has found smaller dog runs or pens to be detrimental to a dog's health because they can be somewhat unsanitary. He explained, "A good rule of thumb suggests allocating a minimum of 1,000 square feet of yard for every 10 lbs. a dog weighs."

"Building a pet barrier with wood, vinyl, chain link, ornamental aluminum or steel fence can give both children and pets the areas they need," Chamberlin-Clark explained. "Fences are now available in a variety of colors and can really add to the beauty and usefulness of a backyard."

To learn more about fencing, or to contact a reputable fence contractor in your area, visit the American Fence Association's web site at www.americanfenceassoc.org or call (800) 822-4342.

CONTEST CORNER

Contest Raises A Stink

(NAPS)—Let's face it: Sometimes, life stinks. And a new contest wants you to tell all about it.

RESOLVE Fabric Refresher is looking for the funniest, most embarrassing, or smelliest household fabric situations—and how you finally resolved them.

Whether it's pet or cooking odors, or even musty socks, your household "stinks" could win the sweet smell of fresh flowers.

To enter the "Real Resolutions" Contest, simply describe your stinkiest household fabric fix-up in 50 words or less and mail it to: RESOLVE Fabric Refresher "Real Resolutions," 411 Park Street, Upper Montclair, NJ 07043 by November 30, 1999.

The winner will receive a gift of fresh flowers each month for six months and a one-year supply of RESOLVE Fabric Refresher. Ten finalists will receive a basket filled with Reckitt & Colman products, and everyone who enters will receive a free fabric care booklet filled with helpful tips and a valuable coupon.

Reckitt & Colman, the maker of RESOLVE Fabric Refresher, is a leading manufacturer of household and food products, including LYSOL disinfectants, WOOLITE fabric wash and OLD ENGLISH furniture polish.

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS expresses cautious optimism for $12.1 million in state funding which would allow Quincy Hospital to merge with Boston Medical Center. Looking on at a press conference Friday in the Council Chambers of City Hall are members of the city's legislative delegation, from left, State Reps. Steve Tobin and Ron Mariano and Sen. Michael Morrissey.

LISTENING TO Mayor James Sheets remarks about the legislative impasse regarding funding for the proposed Quincy Hospital affiliation with Boston Medical Center at Friday's press conference at City Hall are, from left, Ward 6 Councillor and State Rep. Bruce Ayers, Quincy Hospital CEO Jeffrey Doran; and Paul Drew, vice president of Network Development for Boston Medical Center.

million no-interest loan it seeks.

Sheets said he is taking a "wait and see" approach.

"They (House Speaker Thomas Finneran and Senate President Thomas Birmingham) have to make the decision and I think they will help Quincy."

"It's at least $30,000," the Mayor said of the hospital's daily losses. "We had an Oct. 1 deadline. The City is still paying the employees' social security, unemployment, and workmen's compensation costs. The debt of these days falls back on taxpayers. We can't allow that to happen. We need a decision by Monday of next week."

"I've spoken with Ways and Means Chairman Paul Haley and others at the state level," Sheets said Tuesday. "They'll try to have the issues resolved so that it can pass on Thursday when the House and Senate are in formal session."

The issue to be resolved, according to Sheets, is funding for Carney and Brockton hospitals, which has become the sticking point between House Speaker Thomas Finneran and Senate President Thomas Birmingham.

Both Finneran and Birmingham say they support funding for Quincy Hospital. However, Finneran wants money for Carney and Brockton hospitals included with Quincy Hospital. Birmingham wants funding for those hospitals in a separate bill giving roughly $12 million in funding to several hospitals.

"Speaker Finneran believes that a revitalized Quincy Hospital will have an impact on Carney Hospital, which is in his district," Sheets explained. "He indicated approximately four weeks ago that he would support Quincy Hospital if Carney and Brockton were included. He also said that there would be no support if they were not included. His position has been consistent."

Sheets welcomed the news that Finneran and Birmingham were talking and that Governor Cellucci, in Maine at a New England Governors' Conference, was involved. Sheets said that the legislature had the option of passing the old bill on Thursday but that, more likely, Governor Cellucci would submit an entirely new bill with "clean funding" (the current bill uses funds from the childrens' and seniors' relief fund, something Finneran is opposed to).

Sheets praised the two busloads of seniors who left from Beechwood On the Bay Tuesday to protest outside the offices of both the speaker and the senate president. "They have a tremendous investment in Quincy Hospital and want their voices heard," Sheets said.

QCAP Plans First Time Homebuyers Workshop

The Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., a MHFA and HUD-approved First Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold a First Time Homebuyer's Workshop Saturdays, Oct. 16 and 23.

The workshop will be held at Randolph Town Hall, 6 South Main St., from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to qualify for the many different mortgage options available through the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs and other financing options.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. Focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within your budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program for your needs. Advanced registration is required and space is limited. The fee for the workshop is $40.

For more information and registration forms, call Deborah Mullay at (617) 479-8181.

Putting On A New Roof

(NAPS)—As the number of new homes as well as industrial and commercial buildings keeps growing, there's also a growing demand for people who can put on a new roof or a replacement.

To protect buildings and their contents from water, wind and sun damage, roofers repair and install various types of roofs, often incorporating skills regularly used in plumbing, carpentry, electrical and other fields.

According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, the roofing industry today is comprised of approximately 20,000 roofing contractors with about 138,000 employees. Its revenues have more than doubled over the past decade, approaching $30 billion annually.

A recent study showed that half of the roofers surveyed earned between $283 and $513 a week, with the average union roofer earning $25.75 an hour in 1997.

"Roofing is an often-overlooked career option, but offers all the rewards that come with the challenges of building, construction and restoration," said William A. Good, executive vice president of the National Roofing Contractors Association—the NRCA.

The Association recently mounted an aggressive program to highlight the rewards of careers in roofing and actively recruit students enrolled in vocational/technical education programs and young people entering the job market for the first time, in addition to attracting more women and minorities to the field.

Entry level roofers usually get on-the-job-training—earning while learning—while they work for experienced roofing contractors. Other options include completing approved apprenticeship programs.

Predictors for success in the trade include willingness to work hard, enthusiasm and eagerness to learn, good physical condition and skill in working with one's hands.

City Wants More From Bell Atlantic, Mass Electric

The Quincy City Council is putting a hold on all new construction projects from Massachusetts Electric and Bell Atlantic.

Upset at what it sees as unkept promises and lack of accountability, the council, led by President Peter Kolson, said that new petitions for conduits or "double poling" would stay in the public works committee until Bell Atlantic and Massachusetts Electric made good on promises of timeliness, safety, and general upkeep.

"My sympathy is not to do anything until we see a schedule, a workplan, an arborist, or these stay exactly where they are," Kolson said of the new petitions. "So that you have an understanding of how we feel."

Specifically, Kolson wants Mass Electric to honor its commitment to maintain the areas around substations in places such as Winthrop Park, O'Hara Circle, and elsewhere.

Some council members also want to see less "double poleing" around the city and less gutting of trees on the part of Mass Electric.

James Quinn, contract engineer, and Bob Beresford, who handles local right-of-way, represented Bell Atlantic. Hernan Yepez, an engineer, and Michael DellaBarber, an account manager, represented Mass Electric. The four were there to petition for six more conduits and various other projects, but what they got was an earful.

"Under what authority can Mass Electric destroy public property in the city of Quincy?" Raymondi asked DellaBarber and Yepez. "When it comes to malicious destruction of property, I can't find an exception for Mass Electric."

Raymondi said he was referring to the random gutting of trees on almost any street by Mass Electric. He said that the company or its subcontractors cut the trees to almost nothing so they wouldn't interfere with power lines. This, he said, ruins the beauty of the trees and can kill them when there's too much ice or snow. Raymondi was also upset that the Parks and Recreation department was not being notified.

Raymondi said that he had planted some of the trees himself and had seen the disregard of Mass Electric personally. He suggested that Mass Electric contribute money to Quincy's tree planting program.

DellaBarber said that he took exception to Raymondi's use of the word "malicious," that branches and wind pose the most serious threats to the distribution of their product to consumers, and that he would continue to work with the council.

"Can we get better?" DellaBarber asked. "Absolutely. But it's not something that happens overnight.

Bell Atlantic's Beresford promised a status report on its project in writing to the council by the end of the week.

But some council members were less than satisfied with that response.

"There has to be some oversight, and it has to be better oversight," Kolson said.

Allerton House To Host Seminars For Seniors And Family Caregivers

Allerton House at Hancock Park will host a three-session discussion seminar entitled Transitions: Challenges in Aging Oct. 13, 20, and Nov. 3 from 7-8:30 p.m. at the Allerton House Library, Hancock Park, Quincy.

The focus group, designed to tackle the difficult process of caring for an aging family member, is aimed at families taking on the challenge of care for seniors. The sessions will focus on concerns over quality of life, safety, health, and finances. Seniors are also invited to share their comments and concerns regarding quality of life in the aging process.

The group will be hosted by Claudia Rasmussen, Director of the Adult Day Health Center at Hancock Park, Peter Neville, Director of Marketing at Allerton House at Hancock Park, and Jane McVeigh, Counselor at the Marie Droste Counseling Center. Meetings are free and open to the public and limited to 12 participants. At the conclusion of the three seminars, the group will have developed a six to 12-week program of information-sharing to begin in January, 2000. Those interested should contact Peter Neville at Allerton House at Hancock Park at (617) 773-4222.

Allerton House at Hancock Park is a 42-unit assisted living residence owned and managed by Norwell-based Welch Healthcare and Retirement Group, which this year celebrates 50 years providing senior and rehabilitative healthcare services on the South Shore. Welch Healthcare is a member of AURUM, a post-acute network of elder care services.

Board Postpones Vote On Beer, Wine License

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board has agreed to postpone a vote regarding a request from Fuji Restaurant, 698 Hancock St. for a beer and wine license.

Chairman Joseph Shea continued the hearing until Oct. 12.

Atty. Louis Cassis told the board that owners Jimmy Liang and Peter Wai-Tak Tse, are eager to serve a Japanese wine called "Sake" which Cassis said goes with the culture of the food.

He likened the serving of a glass of sake with Japanese food to to an Italian Restaurant, who does not serve wine with the meal.

Cassis gave the board a petition with 100 names on it all in support of the license.

However, Ward 5 Councillor Steve Durkin urged the board to deny the license saying he has opposed the issuance of the license the first time they had applied several months ago. He alluded to the fact that other councillors before him had also opposed beer and wine in that congested area.

Cassis said persons who go to dine on Japanese food and have a drink of sake aren't the type that would "get drunk" or cause problems. He praised the two owners as being good businessmen in the small 19 seat restaurant, which Cassis added is the 'only authentic Japanese restaurant in Quincy."

During the hearing, Maralin Manning, executive secretary to the Quincy Center Business & Professional Association said "every good successful restaurant in the city serves beer and wine."

She said if they don't get the license, they are welcome to "join the restaurants in Quincy Center."

Building Inspector Walter White asked if only sake would be sold since it is a beer and wine license.

After conferring with the owners, Cassis said they would limit the serving of sake and Japanese beer.

Chairman Joseph Shea continued the hearing until Oct. 12.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

'The Law's On Your Side'

No one thinks drug dealers are good neighbors -- not the people who live in the neighborhood, not the businesses trying to make a living there, not the children who play in the parks, not the police officers who patrol the area.

Taking back the street and making them safer takes hard work, trust, and courage from all these people.

The law is on your side, but it works best when everyone with a stake in the neighborhood's health works together. Use partnerships with police, businesses, and local government to drive illegal drugs from your streets.

GETTING ORGANIZED:

Create a group -- call it an advisory commission, task force, neighborhood committee, or partnership. Make sure it includes residents, business owners, law enforcement, housing and other local agencies, religious groups, youth centers, schools, senior citizen centers, public housing managers.

• At the first get-together, let everyone talk about their concerns, even if that means criticizing the police and other city services.

• Decide on what problems take top priority for example, (other than drugs, these might include vandalism, rape, burglary, auto theft, or prostitution). Discuss realistic solutions, develop specific short- and long-term projects, and take action such as cleaning graffiti or rejuvenating a playground. This will forge bonds among the community partners along the way.

• Involve young people - if they are part of the problem, they've got to be part of the solution.

More Women Beating Breast Cancer With Improved Diagnosis, Treatment

This year more than 175,000 women will be diagnosed with breast cancer. That's one woman every three minutes.

However, 90 percent of women diagnosed with breast cancer survive and live well, especially when breast cancer is detected early and treated promptly. Arming yourself with information -- and there's plenty of it -- is an important step in protecting your health against breast cancer.

"It's critically important that women learn as much as they can about the disease, as well as know and practice the ways to detect and prevent breast cancer," notes Harry L. Greene II, M.D., a cancer specialist who is the executive vice president of the Massachusetts Medical Society. "The best way for a woman to start that process is to know her individual risk factors."

Who is at risk?

Breast cancer is the most common cancer among American women and the second leading cause of cancer death. In Massachusetts this year, an estimated 4,400 women will have been diagnosed with breast cancer.

While no woman is immune, certain women have an increased risk of getting breast cancer because of family history, age or lifestyle. Common risk factors for breast cancer include:

• A family history of breast cancer, especially in a mother, sister or daughter

• A personal medical history of cancer in one breast, which increases the risk of developing cancer in the other

• Previous radiation treatment in the chest area for such diseases as Hodgkin's disease or non-Hodgkin's lymphoma

• Reaching age 30 or older by the birth of the first child, or never having had a child

• Having two to five alcoholic drinks a day

"Having a risk factor, even several of them, does not necessarily mean that you will get breast cancer," Dr. Greene says. "But knowing one's risk factors is the most practical way for a woman and her physician to determine her chances of developing the disease and take steps to detect breast cancer early, when it is most treatable."

What you can do to detect breast cancer

The best defense against developing breast cancer is a good offense -- reducing the risk factors that you can control and taking the screening measures appropriate to your age and risk. The American Cancer Society recommends the following:

• Breast self-examination. All women over 20 should perform a monthly breast self-examination to detect changes such as development of lumps or swelling, skin irritation or dimpling, nipple pain or irregularities, and others. Your physician can show you how to perform a self-exam. Information is also available from the American Cancer Society.

• Mammography. A mammogram, medicine's name for an x-ray of the breast, is the single most effective way to screen for breast cancer. Mammograms can detect cancers that are smaller and at an earlier stage than cancers that can be felt. The American Cancer Society advises that women have a first mammogram at age 40 and then every one or two years thereafter. Women at high risk for breast cancer should have a mammogram every one or two years beginning at age 35. Many women do not realize that most health insurers now cover the costs of a mammogram without a physician referral.

• Breast examination by a health care professional. All women over age 40 are urged to receive an annual clinical breast exam; women 20-39 should get one every three years.

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"

Stephen P. Tobias
Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist

Will a hearing aid correct my loss right away?

No! You will notice an immediate difference in volume and some sounds will be clearer but it takes time to re-learn how to hear with a hearing aid. Your maximum potential may not be reached for a full year. Hearing is a learned process, the brain needs to store information received from the ear . When you first get a hearing aid, it is foreign to the brain. The brain wants to hear and will learn to the best of it's ability, if you give it enough practice. Try to be patient, practice and keep in touch with your Hearing Instrument Specialist for adjustments and fine tuning. Don't wait too long to get help. The longer you wait, the more difficult it is for the brain to re-learn how to hear again. This is a major reason why a hearing aid can end up in a desk drawer instead of an ear. There are other reasons, most of which can be overcome if your Specialist is dedicated to your success! If you carefully select your Specialist, they will carefully select your hearing instrument.

Now you go and spread the news! -Steve

North Quincy Visits Barnstable Friday

By CHRIS POISSON

The first half of Friday night's game looked like North Quincy was airing a re-run from Weeks 2 and 3.

Introduction: North Quincy outplays opponent but finds itself trailing 7-0 at the half.

Climax: North Quincy mounts comeback but commits costly penalties to take away touchdowns.

Conclusion: North Quincy falters down the stretch and allows opponents to run away with a win.

That was the script for episodes 2 and 3, and for the first 22 minutes against Falmouth it looked like it was being acted out again.

But North Quincy (1-2-1, 1-0 OCL) had a surprise ending in Week 4, as it overcame mistakes and a 7-0 deficit to pull out a thrilling 14-7 triumph in overtime.

North Quincy hits the road Friday night to take on league foe Barnstable (2-1), which is ranked No. 11 in the Globe Top 20.

"Big win for us," said assistant coach Tom Carter. "It's a big win for the program. We've played half of three games and this game we put two halves together, and another little one."

The "little one" was overtime and it was instituted because it was a league game, the first of the season. The overtime is like a shootout as each team gets the ball at the 10-yard line and has a set of downs to score.

On North Quincy's first play in OT, junior quarterback Max Repoff floated a pass to senior wideout Jody Bravo in the right corner of the end zone for a touchdown. The PAT was good and North Quincy was up 14-7.

On Falmouth's possession, the President's defense, led by its captains, came together. Tri-captain Brian Deptula tackled Jason Cleary in the backfield for a 3-yard loss and then fellow captain Ryan Murray picked off a Josh Levy pass to seal the victory.

"These kids haven't given up all year," said head coach Peter Chrisom, Jr. "They proved they can play football with anybody."

The Presidents dominated the first half. They were able to run the ball and control the clock as they had about 17 minutes in time of possession. Senior tailback Steve Minukas led the ground game, finishing with 134 yards on 30 carries.

After recovering a fumble at its own 43-yard line, North Quincy put together a 13-play drive, all run plays, down to the 2-yard line. The Presidents converted on a fourth-and-inches play during the drive, but on fourth and 2 from the 2 they were whistled for an illegal procedure. They had to settle

Point Panthers In Top Spot After Triumph Over Manets

FOOTBALL

The Quincy Point Panthers took over sole possession of first place in the Myers Division of the Quincy Youth Football League with a resounding 28-8 triumph against the Houghs Neck Manets Sunday.

The Panthers are also on top of the league's overall standings, tied with Milton. Both stand at 3-1. Milton leads the Desmond Division.

The Panthers got on the board early thanks to an 85-yard kickoff return by J.J. Naimkey, who put on a two-way show all afternoon at Brooks Field in Milton, the host site of last week's triple header. He also added the two-point conversion.

Just before halftime, Naimkey hauled in a 35-yard pass from Joe Priscella to give the Panthers a cushion at the intermission. Ed DeWitt added the two-point conversion.

In the third quarter, Naimkey followed up another long run with a 25-yard TD run.

With the Manets driving in the fourth quarter, Naimkey stepped up on defense with an interception and raced 80 yards for another Panthers' touchdown.

Panther QB Justin Thorley connected on big first down plays with DeWitt and James Hutchins on numerous occasions. Priscella and Bill Regens also stood out keeping the ground game in tact.

The Panthers defense held the Manets in check throughout the game. The defense was sparked by Mike Lally, Josh Webb, Derek Jacques, Jonathan Coska, Joe Ferrara, D.J. Andrews, Tony Pepjonovich and T.J. Pitts. Steven O'Neil led the way with a solid second-half effort.

The Manets scored in the final quarter to avoid the shutout.

The Panthers meet Milton Sunday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

QUARTERBACK LIAM HIGGINS received plenty of protection from his line and backs. Higgins tossed four TD passes in the Quincy Granite's 27-7 win against the Boston Bandits on Sunday.

Play Bay State In Playoff Tune-Up Sunday

Granite Rock Boston, Roll To 27-7 Victory

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy Granite finally put it all together for the first time this season.

The offense clicked from the get-go. The defense, besides one play, displayed a relentless attack. They capitalized on turnovers.

With the pieces in place, the Granite (4-2) rolled to a 27-7 victory against the Boston Bandits (5-2) Sunday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The referees called the game with three minutes left due to several on-field scuffles between the players.

"They said there was too much chippiness, and that they weren't going to ref anything like this," said head coach Ken McPhee. "I don't know. I think they should have kept it up. But it's their call. Not our's. We won the game. We'll take a win."

Quincy plays its season finale against the Bay State Bulldogs (3-3) Sunday afternoon at Leominster High School. The Bulldogs lost, 30-29, to the Tri-boro Rhinos in their last game.

The Granite are in third place in the South division, behind the Mass Havoc (6-1) and Bandits, and have clinched a playoff spot. If they win Sunday they'll clinch a home playoff game.

Bernard Lynch put Quincy in great field position when he returned the opening kickoff to the Bandit's 35-yard line. And on its first play, quarterback Liam Higgins (8 for 14 for 160 yards and 4 TDs) threw a beautiful lead pass to wideout Bill MacDougall for a 30-yard touchdown with 12:46 left in the first quarter. The PAT was good for a 7-0 lead.

"We finally got going early," said David Harris. "Liam Higgins came to play. He had us all fired up in the locker room. He had that look in his eyes."

It looked like it was going to be a shootout as the Bandits also scored on their first play of the game. Tailback Jackson Vetiac took a hand-off and broke loose down the right sideline for a 78-yard TD run with 9:15 left. The PAT tied it at 7-7.

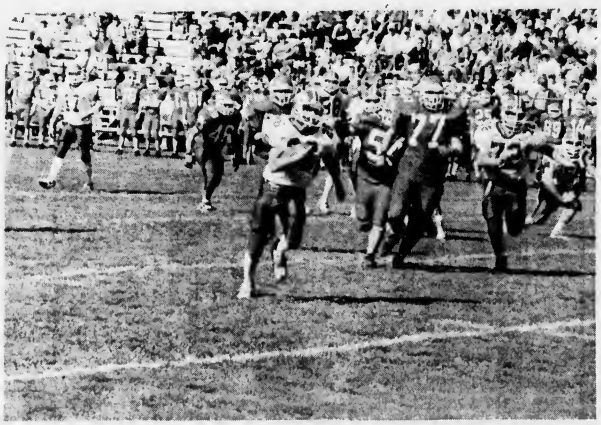
"We thought it was going to be shootout," Harris said. "But it wasn't the same Bandits. We picked it up a notch after that. One play doesn't make the whole game. That wasn't going to break us."

It turned out Quincy was the only team that was going to do the shooting. The Granite scored on their next possession, and four out of their first five.

They drove 69 yards down the field, with the help of four Bandit penalties, for their second touchdown. Higgins rolled to his right and hit tight end Scott Spaulding for a 22-yard TD strike. They had a 14-7 lead with the PAT.

Defensive back Jason Skiebekis intercepted Bandit quarterback Byron Beaman late in the second half, and the Granite turned turned that miscue into their third score.

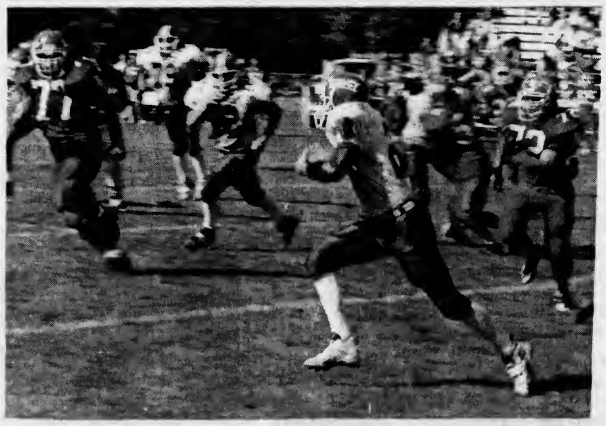
Higgins continued his aerial assault when he connected with fullback Mike Elder on a 13-yard screen pass for an important third-down conversion. He then fired a 23-yard bullet to Matt Fratarillo for a TD, his first of the season, with 1:54 left in the half.



"We finally got Matt Fratarillo a TD," McPhee said. "He's kind of been in a drought so it was nice."

Quincy continued its offensive attack in the second when it scored on its first possession. Spaulding hauled in his second TD catch of the game from Higgins, this time for 25 yards. The PAT failed and Quincy had a 27-7 lead.

"Higgins was immense," McPhee said. "He spread the ball around to a lot of receivers. We had a make-shift offensive line and they put it together and blocked well. All our offensive backs did a great job."



Several offensive linemen were missing so 190-pound linebacker Peter Kolson, named "All-purpose Pete" by his teammates, filled in at the guard spot.

Seven backs were used in the game with Bernard Lynch, Will Felix and Farouk Brown getting most of the carries early on. Dan Abraham, Felipe Ogaldez, Dan Gilmartin and Elder also saw some time in the backfield.

SENIOR RUSSELL MULLEN takes off for a 15-yard run late in the second quarter

Quincy Can't Catch Break, Bow To B-R

Presidents Host Falmouth Friday

By CHRIS POISSON

It's becoming a familiar scene at Quincy football games: One play seems to hold the Presidents back from a picking up a win.

There was the consecutive penalties that stalled a drive in their opponent's zone in Week 1. There was the blocked punt returned for a touchdown in Week 2. There was the failure to score from 1 foot away in Week 3.

And Saturday afternoon it was the yellow flag's turn to, once again, haunt the Presidents (0-4, 0-1 OCL) as they dropped a 34-12 decision at Bridgewater-Raynham (1-2, 1-0 OCL).

Quincy's next game is against Falmouth Friday night at 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

After cutting the lead to 21-12 at the half, Quincy came out in the third quarter and drove down to B-R's 30-yard line. On third down senior quarterback Dan Kelly hit senior back Russell Mullen for a pass to the 17-yard line. But the play was called back because of a holding penalty, and Quincy wound up with nothing.

Another drive killed.

B-R jumped out to an early 7-0 lead on John Dowd's 8-yard TD run just 1:21 into the game. Quincy came back in the first when captain Tim Pezzulo raced for a 25-yard TD. But the PAT was blocked and Quincy trailed 7-6.

In the second quarter, B-R quarterback Jay LeClerc, starting his first game, scored from 15 yards out to make it 14-6. Then LeClerc, who finished with 154 passing yards and four TDs (two rushing), hit Ed Casabian for a 51-yard strike and a 21-6 lead.

Quincy came back before the half as Kelly ran into the end zone from 2 yards out to cap a 10-play drive. The two-point conversion failed.

In the third, after Quincy hurt itself with penalties, LeClerc put together a long drive and finished it himself with a 1-yard keeper. The PAT failed and B-R had a 27-12 lead.

LeClerc hit Casabian for a 31-yard TD pass in the fourth to close out the scoring.

SOCCER

North Girls, Eaton Blank Quincy, 4-0

The North Quincy girls' soccer team evened its record at 4-4 with a convincing 4-0 win against cross-town rival Quincy Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Senior forward Janelle Hersey notched her first varsity goal nine minutes into the first half, taking a feed from senior captain Kristin Coughlin.

Quincy goalie Kerry Eaton kept the Raiders from doing more damage as she came up with several difficult saves. Caitlyn O'Donnell nearly made it 2-0 but her low hard shot just missed the far post.

Junior midfielder Kellee Conley made it 2-0 when she made a spectacular move in close to beat Eaton just before the half ended.

In the second half, it appeared as if Quincy had cut the lead to 2-1 when Kerrin Griffin found the far post on a free kick. However, the goal was waived off because the penalty was of an indirect free kick nature.

North Quincy freshman forward Lauren Kalil scored her first varsity goal midway through the second half, ringing a shot off the far post with Lauren Sleeth assisting.

Coughlin closed out the scoring late in the half after taking a fine feed from senior captain Maureen Holleran.

Playing well for North Quincy were midfielders Ashley Murphy, Casey Ridge and Lauren Awed. Defensively, Stacy Szcesuil, Kathryn Gates and Jen Conley stood out. Kathryn MacRitchie recorded her second shutout of the season.

Earlier in the week, North Quincy was blanked by both Barnstable, 3-0, and Plymouth South, 1-0.

Against Barnstable (Sept. 27), OCL All-Star Christel Kalweit scored a hat trick in a 12-minute span in the first half for all the scoring in the game.

For North Quincy, Awed had a strong game as did Jen Conley.

In a bizzare game against Plymouth South (Sept. 29), the Red Raiders held the Panthers to zero shots while they peppered the Panther's goalie. But the game was decided when Plymouth's Sarah Little took a corner, which deflected off of three North Quincy players and into the net.

Jen Djerf almost got the equalizer in the second half but her hard shot from 12 yards out grazed the crossbar.

North Quincy played at Silver Lake Regional Tuesday. It will play Taunton Thursday and Martha's Vineyard Regional Saturday, both at home. Thursday's game starts at 4 p.m. at Teal Field.

Jaehnig Chiropractic Junior League Champs

The Jaehnig Chiropractic Club recently won the Quincy Junior Baseball League championship to complete a fantastic season.

The Jaehnig Club defeated a very strong Burgin Platner Hurley squad, 5-2.

Chris Marinelli was the offensive hero as he blasted two tape-measure, two-run home runs to deep center field.

Jon O'Connor scattered five hits as he kept Burgin Platner off-balance with an assortment of fastballs and nasty change-ups. He helped his own cause with two singles.

Jim Garrigan walked and scored on Marinelli's first homer in the third inning. Burgin Platner answered with a run in the fourth when Justin Thorley scored on Tony Pepdjonovic's double.

They tied the game in the fifth with two outs when Bob Newcomb ripped a double off the bottom of the left field fence to score Tom Ross, who reached on a single up the middle.

The Jaehnig Club responded with the winning runs in the bottom half of the inning. Kevin Donovan led off with an opposite field double. With two outs, Dave Jaehnig stroked an RBI single and he scored when Marinelli launched his second two-run homer of the game, which landed over the playground behind the 20-foot center field fence at McCoy Stadium.

Matt Tobin had a solid single and was a force behind the plate defensively. The infield defense of second baseman John Fitzgerald, shortstop Jaehnig and third baseman Matt Jaehnig was flawless. Jon Allen, Nick and Mo Alkhatib, and Mike O'Mahoney also played well.

At the league banquet, manager Peter Currie and coaches Mark and Charlie Jaehnig presented trophies and team pictures to each member of the championship team, which finished the season with a 25-1 record.

Marinelli was presented the Coaches award, and Fitzgerald and O'Connor were given the Unsung Hero awards.

Dave Jaehnig was chosen as the 1999 George Richards Exemplory Player. This award, named after a man who coached for over 30 years in Quincy Little League, is voted on by each of the 12 managers. It's given to the player, who over a three-year career, best personifies the spirit of Quincy Youth Baseball based on athletic achievement and overall attitude.

The players and parents presented each of the three coaches with a beautifully embroidered Jaehnig Chiropractic baseball uniform.

Bob Foley Honored For 40 Years Of Service To Youth Baseball

Bob Foley was presented a plaque honoring him for his unprecedented years service by league president Everett Goodrich, on behalf of the Board of Directors, during the recent Quincy Youth Baseball Junior League Awards Banquet.

The plaque read: "Quincy Youth Baseball wishes to thank Bob Foley for his 40 years of dedication, support and commitment to the youth of Quincy."

Foley has not only been a volunteer coach for 40 years, he has also served as Junior League Vice President, Banquet Coordinator, coached travel teams and has helped out in many other aspects of Junior League Baseball.

Amy Satkevich Third Shutout For Archbishop Williams

Senior Amy Satkevich, a native of Quincy, stopped nine shots against Archbishop Williams recently to preserve a 2-0 win for the Fontbonne Academy soccer team.

This was the goalkeeper's third straight shutout in as many games of this young season. Fontbonne's record is now 3-0-0.

Satkevich made a spectacular diving save with about one minute left in the game, giving freshman Jilian Rae the game-winning goal, also her first career goal.

OUT IN THE COLD

Like humans, cars prefer warm weather to cold. The reason battery problems are more likely to crop up in the winter is that the chemical reaction that produces electricity in batteries cannot generate the same power in cold conditions that is possible when it is warm. To make matters worse, engine oil thickens in cold weather to make the starter work harder. To illustrate, at freezing, a battery's power can drop by 15% at the same time the engine requires 150% more cranking power. One way to ease this load is to switch to a lower viscosity engine oil during the winter months. While doing so, have your auto technician check the strength of the battery and the charging system.

Cold weather is not that far away. Make sure your car and it's electrical system is in the best condition. Our team at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO has earned a wonderful reputation from our many satisfied customers . . . . your friends and relatives. We are your local full service auto repair shop and take pride in our workmanship and the service we offer. Stop in and visit us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Open: Mon-Fri 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Count on us for propane for grills, mobile homes and converted vehicles.

HINT: Synthetic motor oils provide a thinner starting viscosity than conventional oils, which translates into easier starts and good cold weather lubrication.

for a 24-yard field-goal attempt, which kicker Mike Reidy missed with 1:08 left in the half.

Falmouth gained momentum from the goal-line stand. Senior fullback Joe Stegeman reeled off a 42-yard run to set up senior captain Phillip Schneider's 2-yard TD run with two seconds left on the clock. The PAT was good for a 7-0 lead.

"We knew we were still in this ballgame," Chrisom said. "There was still plenty of time. We weren't going to give up. The thing is these kids are going to make mistakes. They just have to overcome these mistakes and they did that [Friday]."

Both teams played a scoreless third quarter and at the start of the fourth, North Quincy finally put together a scoring drive. But it took a great Repoff-Bravo hook-up to keep the drive alive as North Quincy was penalized for holding to create a third-and-20 situation at the Falmouth 46.

Repoff fired a strike to Bravo (six catches for 72 yards all in the second half), who dodged a few defenders and raced 27 yards to pick up the first down at the 19-yard line.

"Max threw the ball very well tonight," Carter said. "That was huge. The pass was thrown where only Jody could catch it. And once Jody catches the ball he normally has a way of finding yardage."

Minukas capped off the drive with a 3-yard TD scamper with 7:29 left in the game. The PAT was good to tie the game at 7-7. The touchdown snapped a 116:54 scoring drought, nearly two hours of scoreless ball.

"We just came out in the second half and proved we could play," Chrisom said. "We didn't make a lot of changes. We just kept going with what was working for us."

Educator Establishes QHS Scholarship After 2,400-Mile Bicycle Trek

By LANCE MORGANELLI

Charles MacLaughlin was determined he would complete his planned 2,400 mile solo bike trek so he can start the "Quincy High School Heritage and Community Scholarship."

MacLaughlin, a science teacher at Quincy High School (QHS), set out on a solo ride in June to pedal from Clyde Park, Montana to Quincy. Yet he only reached Des Moines, Iowa, which is 1,100 miles, due to adverse wind conditions and family reasons. But he remained focused on reaching his 2,400-mile goal by riding the remaining 1,300 miles in the Marshfield and Pembroke areas.

The perpetual scholarship is designed for Quincy High School / Center for Technical Education students who normally do not receive recognition from the typical sources in high school such as sports and school activities but who have demonstrated a powerful drive to obtain his or her diploma and plan to attend college or a technical school.

"The Scholarship is for students who have overcome obstacles while getting a high school diploma and who are not normally recognized," MacLaughlin said during an interview.

In a May 21, 1999 Heritage Program newsletter, MacLaughlin stated, "We all know there are many young people who go unnoticed, who are truly heroes in our urban high School."

Additionally, the recipients will receive a copy of Great Expectations, by Charles Dickens.

As former director of the Heritage Program at QHS, MacLaughlin thought of the idea of the scholarship along the same views of his program. The Heritage program was developed by MacLaughlin in 1988 to encourage students to develop their qualities and to encourage those with difficulties to set goals to achieve.

MacLaughlin chose Clyde Park, Montana as his departure location because he takes his students to the G bar M Ranch yearly to explore nature and take part in a rural way of life.

CHARLES MacLAUGHLIN

The 17 day trek started June 13 in Clyde Park and finished June 29 in Des Moines, Iowa. Scheels Bicycle Stores in Des Moines packaged and sent his bike to his house. He then took a bus to Minneapolis, Minnesota and flew into Boston. MacLaughlin's decision to end the journey stemmed from riding alone in remote areas. Throughout the entire journey from when he decided upon it in Oct. of last year to when he finished the ride, his wife kept him focused.

During those miles, he saddled his Trek 730 hybrid bike with 60 lbs. of baggage. Some of what it contained was bike repair gear, snacks, water, foul weather gear, and clothes. The bike only sustained one flat tire which was the rear one. The flat occurred in Montana shortly after he commenced the trip.

He traveled through Montana, Wyoming, South Dakota, and Iowa using mostly interstate highways and occasional secondary roads.

MacLaughlin viewed the trip in increments of about 10 to 20 miles. He used a very simple yet effective way of thinking while on the trip:

"I never looked beyond my daily segments," said MacLaughlin.

He said what he was about to say may sound corny but it was true. "When I wanted to stop, I looked down on my bike and saw all my students names," MacLaughlin said. He wrote everyone's name who contributed to the scholarship on the frame of his bike.

He also mentioned that along the long stretches of roads he looked for water towers along the horizon which meant a town was ahead and he could rest.

MacLaughlin also used this journey as a time to reflect on himself. When asked if he could not find anyone to go with him, he responded adamantly, "I didn't want anyone [with me]."

MacLaughlin said that physically he could have made the trip, but it was emotionally straining on his wife as much as himself. He mentioned that at times along the interstate he looked ahead of himself and saw a gray ribbon meet the horizon which was, of course, the road yet to be traveled upon.

Music helped him mentally pursue the trip. Music which former and current students gave to him from previous Sold Out performances. Sold Out is a student-run community service variety show

At Wollaston Congregational Church

Rev. Elden Zuern Celebrates 50th Anniversary

Rev. Elden D.J. Zuern, who had feelings of becoming a minister when he was only three, recently celebrated the 50th anniversary of his ordination at a special worship service at Wollaston Congregational Church.

Rev. Zuern, 71, and whose middle initials are for David John, has served Wollaston Congregational Church as interim pastor and pastor since 1983.

He has served at other local churches and down through the years has generously given of himself to the community.

A graduate of Yankton College and Yankton School of Theology, he received his B.A. in 1948 and his Bachelor of Theology in 1949.

He was ordained in Shattuck, Ok. Aug. 7, 1949 where he accepted a call to be the pastor of St. Paul's Congregational Church serving until 1953. He then became pastor of United Congregational Church in McLaughlin, S.D., serving until 1960 when he came to this area and enrolled in Andover-Newton Theological School receiving his Masters of Divinity in 1963.

He was associate pastor at Quincy Point Congregational Church from 1960 to 1972 and a charter member of the Board of Trustees during the planning and construction of that church's 1000 Southern Artery seniors housing facility.

He served as a probation officer at Quincy District Court from 1973 to 1993.

Since 1973, Rev. Zuern has served several churches on a part-time basis including Bethany Congregational as asso--ciate pastor from 1977 to 1983.

He was the Protestant Juvenile Court chaplain at Quincy District Court, 1962-72 and Protestant Hospital Chaplain at Quincy Hospital, 1971-86.

He has also served on the Board of Directors and the Nominating Committee of the Massachusetts Conference and as chairman of the Christian Education Committee of the Metropolitan Boston Association.

Nationally, he served as chairman of the Christian Education Fellowship and president of the Association of United Church Educators.

His local activities have been many. Among them:

Chairman of the Ward 2 Civic Association Board of Directors; member South Shore Mental Health Association Board of Directors; a member and president of the Quincy Community Action Program. He has held each office of the Protestant Social Service Bureau, secretary-treasurer of the Inter-Agency Council, chaplain of his Masonic Lodge and a member of the Quincy Lions Club since 1969.

Rev. Zuern was born in Hazen, N.D., the only child of David and Hulda (Dallman) Zuern. He attended elementary school at a farm schoolhouse a mile and a half from his home.

He graduated from Hazen High School in May, 1947. And on Aug. 31 of that year, he and Norman Lorine Weil were married in the New Bethel Congregational Church where both had been active since childhood.

Their first child, Linda Marie, born in 1950, founded the Center of Independent Learning in Bourne on Cape Cod.

Their second child, Paula Faye, was born in 1952. She worked in accounting at Braintree Savings Bank and at the Apparel Buying Corporation until she was disabled by complications form diabetes in 1985. She died from a heart attack at her home Nov. 24, 1996 on her 44th birthday.

Rev. and Mrs. Zuern now live in Brockton and have a home and small farm in North Dakota, where they spend some of the summer months.

When he was only three, Rev.. Zuern had feelings about becoming a minister and would use the small saw mill on the North Dakota farm as a platform for preaching.

He has come a long way and to many real pulpits since.

Members of Wollaston Congregational Church are happy that their pulpit is the one he is at now.

A CITY OF Quincy citation honoring Rev. Elden Zuern of Wollaston Congregational Church on the 50th anniversary of his ordination was presented to him by City Councillor and former Mayor Frank McCauley representing Mayor James Sheets and the City Council. Rev. Zuern, a resident of Brockton, was also man an honorary citizen of Quincy by Sheets.

GUS OSTER, Wollaston Congregational Church deacon, congratulates Rev. Elden Zuern on the 50th anniversary of his ordination at a reception following the special worship service. Oster was the emcee.

Quincy Hospital Public Relations Department Wins Merit Award

Quincy Hospital's Public Relations Department recently won a Merit Award for their Occupational Health Services public relations program in the 16th annual Healthcare Advertising Awards.

The awards, presented by the publication Healthcare Marketing Report, recognize the best of healthcare advertising, annual reports, newsletters, direct mail, posters, calendars, and total public relations programs.

Quincy Hospital designed advertising, direct mail pieces, a brochure, postcard, service resource guide, pen and mousepad as part of their total public relations program for their Occupational Health Services department.

Djerf Christian Preschool Earns National Accreditation

Djerf Christian Preschool was recently granted accreditation by the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC)

This recognition has been achieved by approximately 7% of early childhood programs nationwide - some 6,146 programs as of June 1999, serving 566,675 children. Pastor James Kimmell, of Faith Lutheran Church, is the preschool's founder, said he is proud of the program and the church's support in the commendation from NAEYC. Djerf Christian Preschool is celebrating it's 30th year in service to the community.

NAEYC accreditation is a rigorous, voluntary process by which early childhood programs demonstrate that they meet national standards of excellence. Child care centers, preschools, kindergartens and before and after school programs are eligible to seek NAEYC accreditation. Approximately 12,000 programs are engaged in seeking accreditation.

Programs seeking accreditation undergo an intensive self-study, collecting information from parents, teachers, administrators and classroom observations. They receive an on-site visit, conducted by early childhood professionals especially trained by NAEYC, to validate their self-study results. All of this information is independently reviewed by a team of national experts who grant or defer accreditation. When awarded, accreditation is valid for three years.

"The heart of NAEYC accreditation focuses on the child's experience," said Jeanne Satterlund, director of Djerf Christian Preschool. "The process carefully considers all aspects of a program including health and safety, staffing, staff qualifications and physical environment. The greatest emphasis is on the children's relationships with the staff and how the program helps each child grow and learn intellectually, physically, socially and emotionally."

According to Satterlund, research supports the value of accreditation for children. Children's language and social skills especially benefit from the better quality found in NAEYC-accredited programs.

"These are critical areas for children's success in school as well as in life," said Satterlund.

Djerf Christian Preschool is located at 65 Roberts St, and serves 60 children ranging in age from 2.9 to 7 years. The preschool is an active member of the Quincy Community Partnership for Children Council, Safe Haven for Children initiative and licensed by the State Office of Child Care Services. Djerf Christian Preschool will display the NAEYC torch - the sign of NAEYC accreditation. Parents who look for the torch when choosing child care or early education program for their children will find programs, which have made a commitment to excellence for young children and families, said Satterlund.

TURF TOE

Turf toe is an injury related to the large toe joint,. It is called "turf toe" because it is seen often in athletes who play on artificial turf. In the South Shore, indoor soccer is very popular with several excellent facilities. However, the combination of artificial turf and more flexible, lighter shoes seem to be the culprit. In general, the sport of football seems to create more turf toe than other sports. Movements like running, cutting and quick "push-offs" apply great forces against the large toe.

Symptoms of turf toe may include pain, swelling and a decrease in motion of the large toe. The athlete will be more aware of the pain as he or she pushes off the toe at the start of a sudden movement (like the burst of a block). If the condition is not tended to, it may become a serious injury, making even walking difficult. Treatment includes rest, compression and possible change of athletic shoes (stiffer soles).

If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

PATIENCE . . . What a word . . . Much has been written and said about this eight lettered word . . .

It has been said that many a man thinks he is patient when, in reality, he is indifferent, It has also been said that many a person takes credit for being patient when they are simply putting off doing something unpleasant . . . And then there is an old Dutch proverb which states: "An ounce of patience is worth a pound of brains."

We especially like this quotation written by David Sarnoff: Patience is a two-sided coin. If patience is to be virtue it must be employed in a willingness to obtain all the facts, to deduce from the facts what should be done, if anything and to act in time and not too early or too late. If patience is merely to be used as an excuse for inaction and if you don't do anything but wait - and you wait too long and the opportunity is past - or if you convert it into lethargy or inaction, then that is the other side of the coin."

Deware Funeral Home To Host Teleconference On Children's Issues

How parents, teachers and other professional caregivers can identify and help troubled youth will be discussed during a live, via-satellite teleconference Tuesday, Oct. 12 at National Center for Death Education at Mt. Ida College in Newton.

Hosted by Deware Funeral Homes of Quincy, the Children's Caregivers Conference-Saving Our Children: teleconference will feature Dr. Bob Arnot, chief medical correspondent for NBC's Dateline and Today, and a panel of experts.

"The teleconference will explore what warning signals alert caregivers to kids' problems, what influence films and music have on the minds of children and what we can learn from the Columbine High School shooting," said Dr. Kiti Freier, associate professor of psychology and pediatrics at Loma Linda University and Children's Hospital.

"Most importantly, we will discuss what caregivers can do to assist kids in their own communities."

The Deware Funeral Home are one of more than 500 organizations in the U.S. and Canada hosting the Children's Caregivers Conference teleconference broadcast from Southern California. The event is sponsored nationally by Service Corporation International (SCI), the world's leading funeral service organization, in conjunction with Loma Linda University Children's Hospital.

"This conference is especially designed for clergy, educators/school personnel, psychologists, social workers, community groups, law enforcement officers, as well as other community leaders and caregivers who work with and care about our children," said Scott Deware, president of Deware Funeral Home. "We all live in Quincy together, and we know we must continue to work together to help our children."

During the teleconference, viewers will be able to participate by telephone with comments and questions for a panel of experts, including:

•Dr. Bruce Helshober, radio talk show host of Ask Your Doctor, and associate professor of medicine and adolescent medicine at Loma Linda University school of Medicine.

•James Garbarino, author of Lost Boys: Why Our Sons Turn Violent and How We Can Save Them.

•Dr. Drew Pinske, host of MTV's Loveline and medical Services at Pasadena's Las Encinas Hospital.

•Rose Espinoza, founder and coordinator of "Rosie's Garage," a volunteer tutoring program for children located in four low income neighborhoods in southern California.

•Rev. Norman Fong, program director for the Chinatown Community Development Center in San Francisco.

The teleconference is free of charge for all who attend. It will be held from 12:30-3:00 p.m. in the National Center for Death Education at Mt. Ida College in Newton.

The general public is also invited to attend. Participants are asked to arrive by noon.

Continuing Education Credits will also be offered for a variety of professions. For more information or a reservation, contact Deware Funeral Home at 1-800-344-7526.

Children's Caregivers Conference teleconference is part of a series of community-minded programs developed by SCI's continuing commitment to providing solutions to Community Issues.

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Gain distance from a loved one if you need time to think a matter through more carefully. It may be better to miss a deadline than to make a hasty decision.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your usual optimism returns as things start to go your way at last. A business proposition will open new doors to you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) At long last, you recognize a soulmate who has been right under your nose all along. This may be an excellent time to wear your heart on your sleeve.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You find yourself in the limelight right when you least expected it. Don't blush – you deserve every little bit of attention.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) If you've been burdening a friend with your problems lately, make sure that you are also listening to his or her woes. You are likely to be missing a subtle point.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Don't impose your judgments on your loved ones; no one is in the mood to hear a lecture. You shine more brightly in conversations with strangers.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) It's fine to know your limits, but it's also good to try to stretch them. Even if it's a small goal, be sure to set yourself a challenge.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Plan for the unknown, as adventures are highly likely to be in the offing. If you are lacking in energy, make sure to nurture yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) If a relationship is feeling one-sided, then it's high time to shift the balance of power. Whether subtle or not, this is guaranteed to occur in the near future.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) It may be that you are not making the most of your skills and abilities. If you find yourself feeling stagnant, take on a project that you know will be a challenge.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't make an assumption based on what might be faulty information. Make sure that you have checked your sources out carefully beforehand.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) There's a superhero inside you just bursting to get out – all you have to do is take that first step. Don't let fear of the unknown hold you back.

YOU BORN THIS WEEK: What distinguishes you most is your dramatic, flamboyant nature. You delight in being considered a one-of-a-kind creation, something others certainly see you as. Unfortunately this may also mean that you are a little self-absorbed.

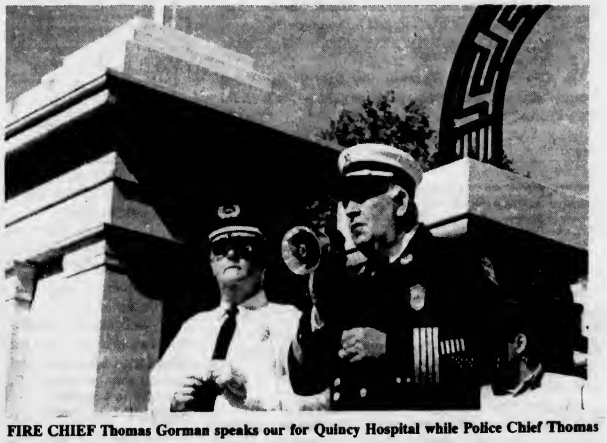
Rallying For Quincy Hospital



QUINCY RESIDENTS ARRIVE at the State House last week to rally for Quincy Hospital.

SAVE QUINCY HOSPITAL signs seemed to be everywhere around the State House at last week's rally. (Tony Siciliano photos)

COUNCILLOR FRANK MC CAULEY, chairman of the City Council Hospital Committee, calls on legislators to approve the loan.

FIRE CHIEF Thomas Gorman speaks our for Quincy Hospital while Police Chief Thomas Frane waits his turn.

ROBERT CURRY urges passage of the $12.1 million no-interest loan to keep Quincy Hospital open and to affiliate with Boston Medical Center. Waiting his turn to speak is Don Uvanitte.

JOHN NOONAN, chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging, tells how important Quincy Hospital is to the city's senior citizens.

initiated by MacLaughlin in 1996. He listened to the tapes every night before going to sleep in motel rooms and trailer parks along the way.

Letters written by students also encouraged him to pursue his adventure. He said he read the letters every night.

A typical day, such as June 23, started around 6:30 a.m. with breakfast usually at a local diner along an interstate. MacLaughlin was on the road by 7 a.m. traveling east.

Riding in segments of roughly 10 miles, he would meet people who were genuinely pleased with what he was doing. When asked the average reaction of people he met along the way, he said, "They were just very pleased."

On June 23 he traveled 94 miles. He left Plankinton, South Dakota at 7 a.m. and arrived at 3:30 p.m. in Sioux Falls, South Dakota. The skies were clear with humid air averaging about 80 degrees ferenheight. Aside from usually humid air, MacLaughlin said that the winds were the most difficult weather condition.

He planned his daily destinations and motel reservations a day in advance. Around mid-day he stopped at another diner or truck stop along the interstate then continued riding until he needed a short rest. At about 5:30 he would eat at a cafe in the area. By 7 p.m. he was in his motel room writing in his journal for about 15 minutes before almost immediately falling asleep.

MacLaughlin said that he brought a tent in case he could not find lodging but, "After 11 hours of riding you're not going to feel like pitching a tent."

He trained for the journey since Oct. 1998. Going to a health and fitness center, he committed himself to a full work-out regimen besides riding his bike nearly everyday. His eldest son, a former bicyclist racer, assisted him in the training process.

MacLaughlin has participated in community service long-distance bike rides before. In 1996 and 1998 he completed the Boston to New York Aids Ride.

He thanks the scholarship committee headed by two Heritage students, Tom Slowe and Sean Donovan. MacLaughlin is grateful of QHS students and staff, parents, and Quincy area businesses who contributed to the scholarship fund.

Currently, he has raised over $4,000. His goal is $10,000. Charles MacLaughlin is still accepting donations of any amount to the scholarship. Checks can be made payable to "Quincy High School/Big Sky" and sent to Quincy High School, c/o Charles MacLaughlin, 52 Coddington St., Quincy 02169.

INVITATION TO BID

CITY OF QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS
Department of Public Works
INVITATION TO BID

Sealed bids for the Purchase of Hydrants and Gate Valves will be received at the Office of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 until 10:00 a.m. on Tuesday, October 19, 1999, at which time they will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The bidder to whom the contract may be awarded will be required to appear at this office with the surety offered by him and execute the Contract within ten days from the date of the mailing of notice from the Commissioner to the bidder, according to the address given by him that the Contract is ready for signature. In case of his failure to do so, the Commissioner may, at his option, determine that the bidder has abandoned the contract and thereupon the certified check or bid bond shall become the property of the City of Quincy.

The bid must be accompanied by a certified check or bid bond in the amount of five percent (5%) of the total bid price. The bidder to whom the contract is awarded will be required to provide a 100% materials bond.

Bid packets are available in the Engineering Division of the Department of Public Works between the hours of 8:30 am to 3:30 pm beginning October 4, 1999. Bidders requesting documents by mail should include a check in the amount of $5.00 to cover the costs of shipping/handling.

The City of Quincy reserves the right to reject any or all bids or to accept the bid deemed best for the City.

Business Seeks Council, Developer Mediation

"That was the first multi-family development in 17 years, and 7.5 percent or 34 of those 435 apartments were set aside for low- and moderate-income individuals."

Anthony Agnitti, president of the Quincy Business Council, pointed out that the council had supported the Congress Group Ventures' original proposal, which had been pared down from 1,641 units to 1,195 luxury units. But the City Council, acting as the special permit granting authority for the Planned Unite Development, rejected the downsized proposal in March.

That plan had called for constructing 70 percent of the apartments as two-bedroom units and 30 percent as one-bedroom units

Since then, the city and Congress Group Ventures have been waging a court battle as Stratouly has been proceeding separately under the state's anti-snob zoning law to develop the property.

Asked how Quincy can get beyond the personality conflicts arising from the Highpoint proposal and move for the good of the city, Stratouly said he had no answers. "We're prepared to negotiate...and have offered to open up our books and share economics. Do I want to turn a profit? Absolutely.

"This is a capital-intensive project and it consumes money every day. We want to build," said Stratouly. "We have made every overture, but there is a lack of interest in resolving it."

Saying he would like to see the market-rate housing proposal resurrected, Don Uvanitte asked Stratouly whether he could propose a third alternative, and real estate broker James Stamos proposed a mix of single-family homes, townhouses and apartments for the 75-acre site.

"Single-family homes add to the negative tax load," said Stratouly, pointing out that his original proposal would have generated a net annual revenue of $1.5 million and would have included $22 million worth of improved infrastructure projects.

As the Highpoint project continues, said Stratouly, it will be resolved either in the courts or by the Housing Appeals Committee, in which both venues the city loses control.

"We laid out the various alternatives," he said. Under the present plan, Stratouly projected that between 400 and 500 children would be drawn into the Highpoint development which would impact the city by an additional $3 million to $5 million annually, over a period of 30 years' amortization.

Stately added that he would be required to contribute only a fraction of the infrastructure costs for water service and traffic mitigation necessary for the area, based on the percentage of the additional demands made by the new development.

And, he added, Congress Group Ventures is making a claim against the city of between $6 million and $8 million to clean up the site, which had been used as a city landfill for many years.

"This may be costing the city $3 million in revenue," said Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, "but it costs the other neighborhoods as well.

"They [the councillors] are protecting a small enclave, and it's not fair to the entire city," said Manning. She said she would like to see the cost analysis of both Highpoint proposals documented for the rest of the Quincy taxpayers to see.

Agnitti and Uvanitte suggested convening a meeting of the developer, the City Council, business council members and representatives of the neighborhood associations in an effort to resolve the stalemate, with the hope that such a meeting could be held in the next couple of weeks.

Victory -- At Last!!

Quincy Medical Center: A New Era

IT'S OFFICIAL -- Gov. Paul Cellucci and Lt. Gov. Jane Swift sign legislation authorization a state loan of $12.1 million for the new affiliation of Quincy Hospital with Boston Medical Center. The health care facility is now known as Quincy Medical Center.

SEN. TED KENNEDY praises Mayor James Sheets (seated at right) for his dedication and perseverance in keeping Quincy Hospital open as the new Quincy Medical Center. Among those looking on from the steps of the facility's administration building are (from left) Councillors Paul Harold and Tim Cahill, Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi, Rep. Steve Tobin, Rep. Bruce Ayers (foreground), Rep. James Sullivan of Braintree (foreground), Ward 5 Councillor Steve Durkin (background) and City Council President Peter Kolson (background).

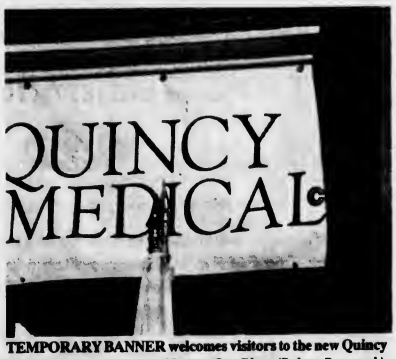
Quincy Hospital, nearly a victim of Medicare cuts, is today a survivor.



The facility, which had served the city and South Shore region for 109 years as a municipal institution, is now a private not-for-private community hospital renamed Quincy Medical Center.

A ceremony marking the hospital's affiliation with Boston Medical Center was held last Friday on the grounds of the facility under a deep blue, sun-splashed October sky. Gov. Paul Cellucci and Lt. Gov. Jane Swift signed legislation creating the affiliation and approving a critical $12.1 million interest-free loan as federal, state and local officials and hundreds of happy hospital employees and other supporters looked on.

Government leaders including Sen. Ted Kennedy and Gov. Cellucci said the hospital's new affiliation represents a victory in the "skirmish" of keeping hospitals open despite deep federal cuts in Medicare.

"When Congress passed the Balanced Budget Act in 1997, it was the final part of a process undertaken since 1993 to balance the federal budget and lay the groundwork for the current economic boom and the large budget surpluses we anticipate in the years ahead," Kennedy said.

"However, our ability to balance the budget was primarily attributable to deep savings achieved by the slowing rate of growth in Medicare provider payments and other Medicare policy reforms. At the time," Kennedy said, "these savings were expected to total $116 billion over five years, but the Congressional Budget Office has now increased its estimate of the impact to total $200 billion over five years -- far greater than Congress intended.

"There is bi-partisan support in Washington for measures to provide relief to Medicare providers that are suffering from the unexpected consequences of the Balanced Budget Act," the state's senior senator said.

Sixty percent of Quincy Hospital's revenue had come from Medicare, Kennedy noted. He added the facility provides invaluable care to the city's elderly and frail populations.

"Anything we can do to raise reimbursement under Medicare will help Quincy's bottom line on a daily basis. While it's too soon to predict the content or amount of the package that will ultimately be enacted," Kennedy said, "Quincy Medical Center will benefit.

Mayor James Sheets, one of the key figures in forging the new affiliation, said the future of health care hinges on patients' right and restoring Medicare cuts.

"There is a great battle raging across this country today. It's a battle to restore Medicare cuts. It's a battle for patient rights and all those health care issues that are so important to all people in the United States of America. . . . The balanced budget act doesn't work, will never work as long as it cuts Medicare."

Gov. Cellucci called quality health care for all the "great challenge" for the new millennium.

CVS Southern Artery Groundbreaking Friday

Ground will be broken Friday for the new CVS/Pharmacy store on Southern Artery.

A groundbreaking ceremony will be held at 1 p.m. with Major James Sheets, other city officials and representatives of CVS and Coffman Realty, Inc. of Brockton participating.

The site is the former Quincy Lumber Company.

The City Council approved the project last May. Plans presented then call for constructing a one-and-a-half story, 12,150-square foot New England-look building with two drive throughs.

CVS, according to the plans, will provide 99 parking spaces on 2.3 acres of the site.

CVS recently purchased both parcel on which Coffman Realty will build the new store and the adjacent waterfront parcel on which the historic Souther Tide Mill is located.

CVS and Coffman Realty have been working with city officials and community groups on a plan which will allow CVS to donate the approximate three-acre Tide Mill parcel to a non-profit corporation to save the historic mill and also create a waterfront heritage park.

The city has recently received proposals from five firms for the design of the repair work to Souther Tide Mill. They are being evaluated.

CVS also agreed to design a coordinated signal system from the Sea St.-Coddington St. intersection to Cove Way.

CVS also agreed to provide $50,000 for a traffic signal at the Southern Artery-River Way-Cove Way intersection.

A Good Reason To Celebrate For Quincy Medical Center

By CRAIG SALTERS

They had to put the cake on hold for exactly one week, but the folks at Quincy Medical Center could finally celebrate.

A midday ceremony Friday, Oct. 8 attended by no less than Governor Paul Cellucci, Senator Edward Kennedy, Representative William Delahunt, and Senate President Thomas Birmingham made official what a year ago, a week ago, seemed wishful thinking: Quincy Hospital is saved... really.

Cellucci signed into a law a bill providing a $12.1 million no-interest loan to what is now Quincy Medical Center, allowing the hospital to become a private, not-for-profit medical institution affiliated with Boston Medical Center.

Doctors, nurses, employees, and patients basked in the post-victory glow after Cellucci, on the very front lawn of Quincy Medical Center, signed the bill, the last hurdle in QMC-BMC affiliation.

"This is wonderful. It's a new beginning," said Mary Ryan RN MS, a nurse who provides orientation for new staff at the hospital.

Mary Beaugard RNC BSN, who also provides new staff orientation, agreed. When asked about the new addition of BMC staff to Quincy, she said, " They're going to love it here."

QMC patient Mary Lorraine Dever of Newport Ave. left her hospital bed just to attend the ceremonies.

"I begged and pleaded to come out here," Dever said. "It means so much to me to finally see this happen."

Dever, who underwent hip surgery last month, praised the whole staff for their excellent care and remembered a time she had to be rushed to Quincy Hospital with a ruptured "spider vein" in her leg. "I was there in two minutes," Dever recalled. "If I'd have had to go to South Shore Hospital, I wouldn't have made it."

Dever, who works at the Eventide Nursing Home, also pointed out that more family and friends come to visit her because everyone is nearby and that she appreciates the company.

Another senior, Sabina Stenberg, a senator of the Silver Haired Legislation, welcomed the new outpatient services and world-class research and technology that Boston Medical Center provides. "Seniors can come right here and have their needs filled," said Stenberg.

Dr. Tavi Diaz, chief of the Emergency Department, looked at the bigger picture but was just as cheerful. "This is a great day for patient care in Quincy. It's been a long time coming. It's been the most trying week that I have ever seen in this institution but this is a great feeling."

Many share that feeling that much of the joy is simple relief that the uncertainty is finally over.

"I've been here 36 years and this has been the hardest week of them all," said Linda Sullivan, an administrative coordinator at the hospital. Sullivan was quick to add, however, that the signing was " a very wonderful day for the city of Quincy."

"This week has been terribly stressful," said Marylou Thibeau, operations coordinator at the QMC lab. "You have husbands and wives who work here. Whole families were worried whether their parents would have jobs or not."

Tamara Erdley, a PR specialist at the hospital, described the emotional roller coaster the past week had been: "Last Friday I was so excited to celebrate that I came in early to work, and that's when I found out there were problems with the legislation. I was devastated."

But not devastated enough that she and hundreds of others didn't take part in daily rallies at the State House and across the state putting the pressure on lawmakers. "I think the legislators did the right thing, but they were surprised by the level of support from employees and the community," Erdley said. "I think they expected the Quincy Hospital issue to go away quietly."

Sandra Doyle, a physical therapist assistant at QMC, described the recent mood at the hospital as "somber" but now says she's thrilled. "I think Quincy Hospital has gotten a bad rap," said Doyle. "The public doesn't hear the thanks, they don't see the letters of appreciation on the walls."

Rita Kenney of Sea St., a resident of Quincy for 40 years and a volunteer at Quincy Hospital for 32 of them, couldn't hide the smile on her face or her appreciation for the QMC staff. "Nobody gave up, especially the employees," Kenney said. "Nobody."

Quincy Medical Center now boasts the increased outpatient care, the teaching and research power, and the additional expert staff that Boston Medical Center has to offer. This at a time when Mayor Sheets was prepared to begin shutting down Quincy Hospital Oct. 11.

Lease Problems Will Void Pawnbroker License

By CRAIG SALTERS

No lease means no license.

Pending a letter from the owners of 279 Willard Street, the pawnbroker's license granted to Golden Pawn pawnshop will be revoked by the licensing board at its next meeting Oct. 26.

The board put the matter on file until it received a signed letter from the owners of 279 Willard stating that they no longer intended to lease the property to the pawnshop, which would void the license.

At Tuesday's meeting Solicitor Jim Timmons informed those present that he had spoken to the owners of 279 Willard, Robert Crosby and Leo Martin Jr., and that they had decided not to lease the property to Ronald Van Dam, who wants to open the pawnshop.

"They (the owners) have no written agreement with Mr. Van Dam or his associates," Timmons said. "They have made a business decision not to look for a lease and instead look for a new tenant."

According to Timmons, the law states that, without an actual premises, the current license, although valid, is voidable.

"Although Mr. Van Dam holds a valid license, the fact that he has no premises renders the license voidable," said Timmons. "There is no basis for a pawnbroker's license to exist at this location."

Van Dam stated that he had put down a deposit on 279 Willard and had an understanding with the owners, although he could not recall whether he had actually signed a letter of intent. He also said that he was under the impression that the meeting was to discuss, not revoke, his license and that he now felt entitled to 48 hours notice and the option of legal counsel.

The immediate revocation of the license seemed certain until Walter White, director of Inspectional Services, wanted to see written confirmation that Van Dam either did or did not have a premises. Although Solicitor Timmons assured the board that no such confirmation was necessary, the board unanimously voted to wait for a letter from the owners of 279 Willard before they proceed with the revocation.

After Timmons' revelation, Van Dam expressed shock that legal representatives from Quincy had been in contact with his landlords. "I had absolutely no idea," Van Dam said.

Van Dam also defended his business and his ties to the community, reminding listeners that his grandfather had opened Quincy's Bargain Center in 1939 and that he had worked there from 1961 to 1980. He called the pawnshop a "bargain-retail business" which would operate in daylight hours, always have an owner present, photograph sellers, and send a computerized printout to the Quincy Police daily. " My concerns for the city of Quincy are just as large as yours," Van Dam told the audience. "Would I jeopardize my good family name? I think not."

News of the license's voidability comes at a time when the license, and the issuing of the license by the

Quincy: 'No Place For Hate'

The City of Quincy has officially signed on to the NO PLACE FOR HATE campaign.

Across the country, acts of violence and words of disrespect are dominating the news, shocking the citizens, both young and old, with the irrational cruelty of hate crimes from murder to harassment to vandalism.

Recently, national, state and local leaders gathered in Boston at the State House to launch the "No Place for Hate" statewide campaign. Sponsored by the Anti-Defamation League, the Massachusetts Municipal Association, and a coalition of over 50 organizations, the campaigns, guiding principle is to set community standards of respect for diversity by ending racism, anti-Semitism and bigotry of all kinds.

This program is designed to enable cities and towns to work toward being declared "No Place for Hate." Communities that participate in the program must fulfill one mandatory criterion and select three other activities from a menu of over 30 projects and programs to be completed by Dec. 31, 2000.

Activities range from anti-bias training for teachers and administration to creating signs to be displayed at city/town hall that symbolize a community's ideal of diversity. When completed ADL, the MMA and other coalition members will declare these communities "No Place for Hate", committed to the hate free ideal. Cities and towns will be awarded a plaque for city/town hall, a sign for the "entrance" to the community and will be listed in a regional registry of participating municipalities.

Anti-Defamation League Assistant Director, Kelly Vest, said,

"On behalf of the ADL, Massachusetts Municipal Association and over 50 other coalition members, we are thrilled to have the City of Quincy begin the process toward being declared No Place for Hate. By taking part in this program, the community of Quincy will be helping to set a standard of respect for diversity and anti-bias efforts, not only in their towns, but in the larger community as well. We look forward to working with members of the community to achieved this very important goal."

"The MMA, on behalf of Massachusetts communities is grateful to ADL for creating this program that will give cities and towns an opportunity to make a difference by supporting the primary goals of the program - awareness and understanding," said MMA executive Director Geoffrey C. Beckwith. "The MMA will collaborate with ADL to provide communities with all the information necessary to participate in this program," he concluded.

Sunbeams

By Henry Bosworth

Will He Or Won't He?

Will he or won't he?

He is Jim Sheets.

And the full question: will he or won't he run for a seventh term?

SHEETS

That question must be on the minds of a few mayoral hopefuls and political observers this week now that Quincy Hospital has been saved and rechristened for a new life as the Quincy Medical Center.

Which could also mean more political life for Sheets in the future.

If the hospital had shut down it would have been a major campaign issue in Election Year 2001 if Sheets was running.

Opponent(s) could point at him and say, "Mr. Mayor, you let that happen on your watch."

But if he was to be handed the blame if the hospital did close, then shouldn't he be handed the credit because it stayed open?

He didn't do it all by himself.

A lot of people -- city, state, federal, union -- worked along with him. But Sheets, most will agree, was the catalyst in the effort.

And as the mayor, there were long weeks of sometimes frustrating and discouraging rides on an emotional roller coaster. Up one day. Down the next. Then up. Then down. And, finally, up.

The hospital has been a must and convenience to Quincy residents for more than a century. If it closed they would be forced to go elsewhere -- an unknown and uncertain elsewhere for many.

And some 1,100 employees who were willing to take pay cuts, would have lost their jobs.

Instead of his accomplishments, Sheets' legacy in Quincy's history would have been as the mayor who "let our hospital close."

Some political observers were pretty much convinced that this year's election would be Sheets's Last Hurrah.

They felt that after 10 years, the fun was going out of being mayor. The issues that weren't there in the early years, were there now. And more might be waiting to pop in the next two years.

Sheets still has the shipyard, the concourse and the proposed new Quincy High School on his projects plate.

The shipyard could yet turn out to be a political banana peel for a big fall. If a Quincy-built tanker doesn't pass through the Fore River Bridge in the near future that could be a campaign issue two years from now, as a grand waste of money.

Sheets must have put in some tossing-and-turning nights during the long fight to keep the hospital open. And, was beginning to look it.

But the hospital victory has to be a rejuvenation tonic.

Will he run for that seventh term?

While walking with him during the Curry Walk, I casually asked him if he had any thoughts about the year 2001.

"Well," he said, "I can tell you one thing. I haven't decided not to run."

That was when the hospital issue was still very much up in the air and the odds no better than 50-50 for the right outcome.

A few steps later, he said: "There are still a lot of things that have to be done."

Indicating he wants to be around to see that they get done.

A seventh term?

You can now be sure--with the hospital open--that he hasn't ruled it out.

MELE

"I guess it's the one I used to slide on," he muses, referring to his baseball playing days. "It's coming along nicely, but slowly."

Sam broke in with the Red Sox as an outfielder in 1947 and rattled drives off and over the Green Monster.

He was introduced to pretty Connie Clements of Merrymount by Johnny Pesky and they were married in 1949. (They celebrated their 50th anniversary in January.)

Sam was traded to Washington in 1949 and went on to play for the White Sox and Baltimore, returned to the Red Sox in 1954, and then went to Cincinnati and Cleveland where he ended his major league career as a player in 1957.

He managed the Minnesota Twins to the American League pennant in 1965, losing the World Series in seven games to the Los Angeles Dodgers and Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale.

Sam later became a batting instructor and scout for the Red Sox, retiring three years ago.

Now rooting for them in the playoffs, Sam says, "They could do it."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A LATE 1920's postcard view of what was called Depot Square off Beale Street in Wollaston. The two buildings on the left are on Newport Avenue and are still extant, but everything else here is gone including the handsome Victorian depot and the original Howard Johnson's store in the right center. This area is now an MBTA parking lot for the Wollaston Red Line station. Today only a neglected stone marker on Beale Street marks the Howard Johnson site.

Thanks Local Citizens For Support, Patience Throughout Hospital Ordeal

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing to thank the people of Quincy for their support and patience throughout the Quincy Hospital ordeal. The city's legislative delegation, the Mayor, the City Council and this newspaper advocated zealously but displayed extraordinary forbearance throughout this difficult process.

The patients and employees of Quincy Hospital combined passion with professionalism in all presentations made to me and to the members of the Senate.

While you must feel as though you've been emotionally strapped backwards into a roller coaster, the final result is that a rejuvenated Quincy Hospital will continue to serve your community.

As the saying goes, "all's well that ends well." Thanks again for your help.

Appreciates High Point Development Coverage

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

We would like to thank The Quincy Sun for keeping its readers in Quincy informed of one of the potentially largest development proposal in the East Coast, the High Point Development on Quarry Street - on Mt. Ararat in West Quincy. The area is a contaminated waste site under Chapter 21E former Super Fund site.

Because of the geological makeup of granite in West Quincy, where quarrying made history word over, flooding is always imminent. Quincy granite was known as the finest, and therefore used as building material for impressive customs houses in many countries. This distinctive quality of the area is also the reason for continued flooding in West and South Quincy. For example, the resent multi-million dollar Army Corp of Engineers flood control project of Town Brook, was unable to correct the flooding of the area homes.

One can only imagine what will happen to us living around and below Mt. Ararat, if fifteen eight story buildings and some thirty acres on this historic 74 acre hill be covered by pavement. The developer is proposing water retention pools.

We are inquiring if standing waters present also a health risk of breeding decease-carrying mosquitoes. We are furthermore questioning the health risks of the air-born acpestos, and heavy metals leaching to the ground water as a result of this proposed development.

We are questioning: is this going to be another Love Canal or the Woburn case?

It is unconscionable that our politicians and health agents, not only in this city but at the state and federal level take a close look at this proposal and its potential health and increased flooding risk for the reasons stated here and time and time again by residents and engineers at public hearings.

Quincy City council won the first round of this battle of community preservation. Now on Oct. 12 the community has an opportunity to voice their opposition to the proposed colossal development and ask our leaders again to act heroically while there is still time.

Community Care Day A Special Day Of Giving

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

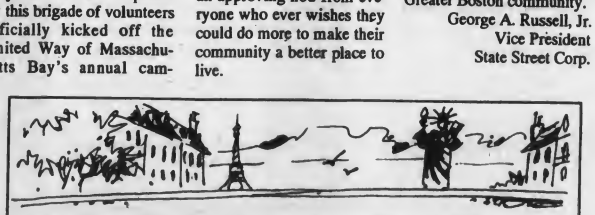
As chairman of Community Care Day, I would like to thank all the volunteers, event organizers, local companies, and United Way of Massachusetts Bay agencies for helping to make Sept. 15 a special day of caring and giving in our communities.

On Sept. 15, more than 1,500 people from 45 local companies put aside their routine duties to spend a day of work at dozens of local United Way agencies across Eastern Massachusetts. The beneficiaries of their good deeds include thousands of children, the elderly and disabled who rely on the voluntary contributions of people who care.



For the volunteers, it was a pleasure to take preschoolers apple picking, clear brush, paint buildings, and simply "click" with people beyond the Windows® of their PC's.

The work of 65 separate projects that was completed by this brigade of volunteers officially kicked off the United Way of Massachusetts Bay's annual campaign. It also underscored this year's campaign theme: Giving that Works, Caring that Counts.

The sweat equity of this impressive group of people may not get much media attention, but it's sure to win an approving nod from everyone who ever wishes they could do more to make their community a better place to live.

Combined, voluntary and monetary contributions pay dividends for the entire community, and there's no better time than the present to thank these volunteers, local businesses and organizations for investing in the Greater Boston community.

FBI Agents Sweep North Quincy

Oct. 14 - 20
1964
35 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

Carloads of FBI agents swept through North Quincy to arrest suspects in a $100,000 hijacking of a liquor shipment in South Boston.

Some 940 cases of liquor were recovered at a North Quincy market where the loot was being transferred from a tractor trailer to the market.

MASS. ELECTRIC STICKS WITH BROAD MEADOWS SITE

Officials from Mass. Electric reiterated their plans to build a generating plant on land they owned at Broad Meadows.

Mass. Electric was responding to a letter by Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, who inquired into the status of generating plants planned by Mass. Electric at Broad Meadows and Boston Edison at the Squantum Air Base.

While Mass. Electric said they expected construction to begin within the next few years, Boston Edison put off their project for a decade.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS REVIEW PLANS FOR NEW VO-TECH BUILDING

School officials were preoccupied with the details for the design of the new $5 million vocational-technical school, specifically the library.

While the issue of building a bridge over Woodward Ave. apparently had city council support, the site of the combined Quincy High School-Vo-Tech library was still in controversy.

Supt. Robert Pruit was being urged by QHS Principal Lloyd Creighton to keep the library in the old building.

Meanwhile, the issue of the playing fields was debated. Ten of the 19 acres of Faxon Field were bog, and without the use of pilings, it would take 15 years of filling by "ordinary methods" to develop the fields.

Donaher Scholarship Awarded At South Shore Conservatory

SOUTH SHORE CONSERVATORY Summer Wind Ensemble (SWE) Student Etienne Reyes, with SWE Conductor Malcolm W. Rowell, Jr., is the 1999 recipient of the Patrick J. Donaher Scholarship for B.C. High School musicians.

Watertown resident Etienne Reyes was recently awarded the Patrick J. Donaher Scholarship, presented annually to a B.C. High School student attending South Shore Conservatory's Summer Wind Ensemble program, a day camp for young musicians.

The Donaher Scholarship, established in 1994 by Brian P. Donaher of Wollaston in honor of his father, enables students to advance their music education in an environment which challenges them to perform at a higher level of musicianship.

For years, both of Brian Donaher's sons, Patrick and Luke, had been active in the camp for brass, woodwind and percussion students, before graduating from high school. Last year, Patrick worked as a woodwind coach for the wind ensemble.

A high senior school, Reyes has played saxophone in Summer Wind Ensemble (SWE) for two years. His exceptional playing was recently featured in SWE's Jazz Ensemble Concert in the Jane Carr Amphitheater on the grounds of the South Shore Conservatory in Hingham.

B.C. High School students interested in becoming a part of South Shore Conservatory's SWE program next year may apply for the Donaher Scholarship by contacting Matt Finnegan through the B.C. High music department.

For more information on SWE or other South Shore Conservatory programs, call 781-749-7565, ext. 10.

Chinese Language School Variety Show Fundraiser Saturday

The Chinese Language School of Quincy will hold a variety show to raise funds for victims of the Sept. 21 Taiwan earthquake.

The event will take place Saturday, Oct. 16 at 7 p.m. in the auditorium of Sacred Heart School, North Quincy.

The show will include performances by: Irish Step Dance Troupe; Triveni School of Dance (Indian dance); Kwong Kow Chinese School Dulcimer Troupe; and the Chinese Language School's own Chinese Folk Dance Class.

Admission is free. A box will be provided to accept cash or check donations for the earthquake victims with checks made payable to "Taiwan Earthquake Relief Fund." Donations mailed before Oct. 16 will be announced at the event.

City Councillor Paul D. Harold is the event chairman.

On Sept. 21 a devastating earthquake measuring 7.6 on the Richter Scale struck Taiwan, reducing parts of the country to rubble. The death toll is over 2,200 with 8,140 injured, 10,000 buildings destroyed, and 200,000 left homeless.

Tens of thousands of people are now living on the streets and hospitals are packed with injured people. Medical supplies, water, food, clothing and daily necessities are badly needed.

Montclair/Wollaston Assn. Social Friday At Adams Inn

ENC To Celebrate Heritage Day Oct. 19

Eastern Nazarene College will hold its annual Heritage Day service Tuesday, Oct. 19 at 9:45 a.m., celebrating 99 years as an institution of higher education and 80 years in Quincy. The service will be held in the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene.

Dr. Ruth Cameron, herself a lifetime faculty member at the college, will bring the Heritage Day address. Her remarks will focus on the life of Esther Williamson (1894-1982), longtime friend, faculty member and musician at Eastern Nazarene. Williamson was the founder of Eastern Nazarene College's prestigious A Cappella choir (1938) and it was she who was originally inspired to have a choral group perform Handel's Messiah during the Christmas season - an event which decades later remains a December highlight in Quincy. Williamson also was the adoptive mother of Esther Sanger, founder of the Quincy Crisis Center.

The Eastern Nazarene College Board of Trustees will be congregating in Quincy to attend this event, as will surviving members of Williamson's family. Highlights of the service will include choral selections by the A Cappella Choir.

Members of the community are invited to join the college on this day to celebrate Eastern Nazarene's history in Quincy and the dedicated life of service of Williamson.

NQ Catholic Women's Club Halloween Party Tonight

The Catholic Women's Club of North Quincy will meet tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. in the Sacred Heart School hall.

Natalie Sullivan will conduct a short business meeting. A Halloween party will follow. Prizes will be awarded for most original, funniest and scariest costumes.

Rosaleen McAuley is chairlady for the evening.

QHS Class Of 1959 40th Reunion Nov. 27

Beechwood Knoll Elementary School PTO Fall Festival Oct. 23

Beechwood Knoll Elementary School PTO will hold its annual Fall Festival Saturday, Oct. 23 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on the school grounds, Fenno St., rain or shine.

Last year's festival attracted hundreds of people and was a very profitable fundraiser for the school.

The money was used to fund field trips, purchase books for the library, purchase computer equipment and many other necessary items for the school.

This year's festival will feature food, music, games, arts and crafts, clowns, a moonbounce, pony rides, hayrides, and a silent auction. A prize drawing will include Patriots game tickets, tickets to Riverdance at the Wang Center, theater tickets and gift certificates.

Items up for bid in the silent auction include restaurant gift certificates, theater tickets, an estate plan donated by an attorney, contracting services, and other local goods and services.

Costume Party At Houghs Neck Congregational

The Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave., will have a Costume Party Oct. 27 with games and prizes.

Quincy Medical Center: A New Era

(Cont'd from page 1)

"I know this is just a skirmish, that we win today with the signing of this legislation. We win for the people of Quincy. But it's a skirmish in a much larger war. It is how do we keep the quality of health care in our country at the high level it is today . . . while at the same time making sure that every one of our citizens has access that health care.

"It is the great challenge that we face as we head into the new millennium."

Sheets said the affiliation marks a new beginning and a new chapter in the history of the Quincy Medical Center. He also expressed confidence that the facility's maternity ward, which closed in 1998, will reopen again.

"Those young and old, rich and poor who in the future will have their lives renewed here and those who once again, yes once again, will be born here will also fill the pages of its history far better than we could ever do here today.

"But for those of us who labored so hard for this day, we are blessed in a very, very special way for we have been a living part of one of Quincy's finest hours."

Sheets said the residents of Quincy and surrounding communities require and deserve access to the highest quality of medical services.

"QMC and BMC will create a dynamic partnership that will help reshape healthcare delivery for the South Shore. I am very excited about the future of QMC."

Quincy Medical Center has entered into a clinical affiliation with Boston Medical Center. Under the terms of the clinical affiliation, BMC physicians will provide clinical leadership and quality assurance oversight to the new entity. More than 25 BMC physicians have joined the staff at QMC.

"This is an important day for BMC and QMC," said Elaine Ullian, president and CEO of BMC. "Our two organizations have had a number of successful clinical relationships and this new affiliation allows us to expand on that. We look forward to providing quality health care services to the South Shore community."

Jeffrey Doran, CEO of Quincy Medical Center, said, "The transition has been supported by our medical staff, our employees and this entire community. We see tremendous new opportunities to enhance services for this community and make QMC the premier health care facility on the South Shore."

A Clinical Planning Committee, chaired by Joseph Loscalzo, MD, PhD, chief of the Department of Medicine at BMC, has been meeting regularly with QMC and BMC physicians over the past few months to review existing services and identify opportunities to expand services.

Two new clinical leaders have been appointed to work with Quincy Medical staff to continue to improve the quality care at QMC.

Jack Ansell, MD, has been appointed the new Chief of Medicine at QMC. He is also the BMC Vice Chairman, Department of Medicine.

Timothy Babineau, MD, is the new Chief of Surgery at QMC. He is also the Chief of Gastrointestinal and Minimally Invasive Surgery at BMC.

Twenty-seven other physicians who have joined the QMC medical staff.

They are:

Edward Alexander, MD (nephrology); Tom Barber, MD (infectious disease/GIM), James Becker, MD (general surgery), Patricia Barry, MD, MPH (geriatrics); Lewis Braverman, MD (endocrinology); Lay Coffman, MD (vascular medicine); Ravin Davidoff, MD (cardiology), Raffi Der Sarkissian, MD (ENT); Peter Dwyer, MD (orthopedic surgery); Robert Eberhardt, MD (vascular medicine and cardiology); Armour Forse, MD, PhD (general surgery); Gary Gibbons, MD (general surgery).

Also, Irwin Goldstein, MD (urology); Christine Hamori, MD (plastic surgery); Alice Jacobs, MD (cardiac catheterization); Harold Lazar, MD (cardiothoracic surgery); Peter Moyer (MD (emergency); David Lichtenstein, MD (gastroenterology); Robert Oates, MD (urology); Michael Osband, MD (pediatrics), James Reed, MD (neurosurgery), Stephen Stentovich, MD (general surgery); Richard Shemin, MD (cardiothoracic surgery); Carol Sulis, MD (infectious disease/infection control); Bob Vinci, MD (pediatrics); Jonathan Woodson, MD (general surgery), Barry Zuckerman, MD (pediatrics).

In addition, Boston Medical Center HealthNet Plan, a managed care product for MassHealth eligible patients, is being offered for the first time to Quincy area residents. QMC and the four Manet Community Health Center sites will be Boston HealthNet Plan providers.

The clinical affiliation also provides access to the world class clinical research at Boston University Medical Center.

The affiliation represents a $70 million commitment from the federal, state and Quincy government enabling the health care facility to pay off its debts and merge with Boston Medical Center. The city's share is $33 million, $23 million federal and $12.1 million from the state.

The state interest-free loan was the last piece of the financial puzzle. House Speaker Tom Finneran and Senate President Tom Birmingham reached a deal for the loan Oct. 6, nearly a week after the Oct. 1 "deadline." Oct. 1 is the beginning of the institution's new fiscal year.

Without the loan, Sheets said he would have shut the hospital down, laying off 1,100 workers and making Quincy the only major city in Massachusetts without its own hospital.

Sheets had asked Cellucci for $12.1 million in state assistance in February. "He immediately said he would help us. Our odyssey had begun. Today's signing of legislation passed yesterday marked its successful conclusion," the mayor said.

Cellucci credited Sheets with shepherding the affiliation legislation and state loan through the legislature.

"The mayor and I are friends but one of the reasons we're such good friends is that we agree on what we have to do to help our people and our communities. Mayor Sheets made a compelling case to me about what this facility means to the quality of life, particularly senior citizens, for the people of this city.

"He made a compelling case for the dedicated people who work in this hospital every single day caring for the people of this great city," the governor said moments after signing the loan legislation.

The mayor praised the City Council for "stepping up to the plate" and committing $33 million. "There are no other elected officials more committed to the job that had to be done at Quincy Hospital than the Quincy City Council.

"They have unanimously supported $33 million to ensure that the Quincy Medical Center is successful. They've studied and anguished over the transitioning out of this beautiful facility and all assets of this hospital to a private not-for-profit corporation affiliated with Boston Medical Center.

"It was a difficult decision but they did it and they did extraordinarily well," Sheets said.

Sen. Kennedy, in noting the mayor's determination to rescue the hospital, quipped, "I don't know how it is, Bill Delahunt, over in your office, or how it is Governor with you but every time I go out to my waiting room day and night Jim Sheets is out there. 'Can I just talk to you for one more minute, Senator?' This is the first time he's been back home with a smile on his face."

The state's senior senator called Sheets a "champion for Quincy and for decency and for all good things in government."

Quincy Medical Center -- Dawn Of A New Era

SEN. TED KENNEDY

"This has been a community facility. This has been a family serving facility. This has served children, the workers and senior citizens and now this great facility provides a combination of those services. It will provide not only the excellence in terms of medical care but it also has the outpatient care, the skilled senior service care, the home care, the wide-range of services that really make the difference in people's lives. It's a family center. It serves the people in Quincy and that's what we want to continue. That's what this is all about."

GOV. PAUL CELLUCCI

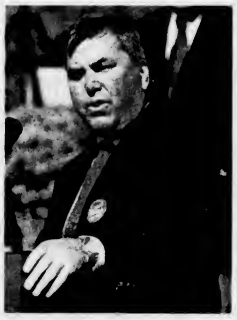
"The cutbacks in federal funds to our hospitals here in Massachusetts, particularly our teaching hospitals, really do threaten the quality of health care in our country because it's in the teaching hospitals that innovation and research and technology is driven. It's in the teaching hospitals that we train the doctors for this country and for much of the world. It's in our community hospitals, like this one, that we make that vital link in ensuring access to health care for all of our citizens."

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS

"It was a new kind of legislation, it was legislation that did set a precedent in a very real way. I deeply appreciate the effort in both the House and the Senate and the hard work and support Speaker Finneran and Senate President Birmingham engaged in to make today a reality. I also want to thank all of the employees at Quincy Hospital who did such a great job, and particularly the union leadership. You are very special because you were willing to sacrifice an awful lot to make this day possible."

CONG. BILL DELAHUNT

"As part of our health care system, every one knows who lives in a community the size of Quincy that as part of that system it's absolutely essential to have a community hospital. The day of the community hospital is not over. The best evidence of the fact that the community hospital will continue to exist is our presence here today. That is the live testimony to the fact that the community affiliated with teaching hospitals has a place in America."



SENATE PRESIDENT TOM BIRMINGHAM

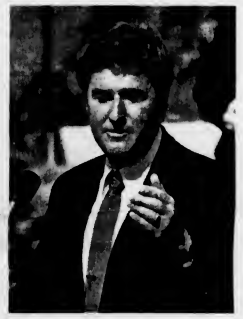
"This is the hospital that would not die. I'm here to express my gratitude to you, to say, thank you to your mayor, to your city councillors, to your legislative delegation, who not only advocated zealously for keeping the doors of Quincy Hospital open, they also displayed extraordinary forbearance under the most trying of circumstances, under the most difficult of ordeals. The greatest thanks are owed to those who utilize the services of this wonderful facility and to the employees of this facility."

LT. GOV. JANE SWIFT

"It is your commitment on a daily basis providing services to the most needy among us, providing the care and compassion that allows individuals at their time of greatest need to maintain their dignity that made this day happen. That is your challenge: to find people at their most vulnerable moment, to give them not just the services they need but to extend the humanity that they require to get through very difficult times in their lives."

SEN. MICHAEL MORRISSEY

"Your words were not lost on us in the Quincy delegation. As you look at each and every one of us there isn't one of us who represent you whose family has not been in the city for over 100 years. We all know how important this institution has been to the community and to our own families. This is not just a Quincy message, this is a message that resonates throughout the South Shore. We are an important part of the health care community here on the South Shore."



REP. STEVE TOBIN

"I have never been prouder to serve in the state legislature and to have worked on this issue with quality of people like Ron Mariano and Bruce Ayers and Mike Morrissey. . .And I can't tell you how proud I am to have gone to a gentlemen who did not really have an interest in this issue in the beginning but with the assistance of all of you at Quincy Hospital who helped make our case, (Rep.) Paul Haley was an early advocate for getting the funding for this hospital."

REP. RON MARIANO

"I want to thank the Senate President and the Speaker of the House, two men of principle who disagreed on how to solve this issue, but because of the arguments that you made, and that we made as a delegation, saw the need to come to some sort of resolution on this and did. They did it! This is a significant gesture to the people here who love this hospital, who have put their heart and soul into this."

REP. BRUCE AYERS

"This is a great day for the city of Quincy. I think one of the reasons Quincy is a great place to live is its people and its values. I think this hospital issue certainly brought that to the forefront. I want to congratulate and commend everyone here at the hospital and the unions for making the sacrifices."

QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER CEO JEFFREY DORAN

"Today we memorialized what truly is a historic moment in the city of Quincy and we celebrate the victory for the preservation of quality health care to our community. I am humbled by the enormity of our collective accomplishment and the tireless efforts of so many people, the privatization and the creation of this non-profit community hospital plus the establishment of an academic and clinical affiliation with Boston Medical Center. This is a success story for the people."

QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER employees applaud the signing of state legislation authorizing a $12.1 million interest free loan from the state which allowed the Quincy health care facility to affiliate with Boston Medical Center.

BOSTON MEDICAL CENTER CEO ELAINE ULLIAN

"As a native of Quincy, as someone born in this hospital, I can't tell you how proud I am today. Boston Medical Center will work with the Quincy Medical Center staff to plan the next chapter of enhanced care for this city. Twenty-nine doctors from Boston Medical Center are available to Quincy Medical Center as of today. And I'd like to thank Mayor Sheets for his perseverance. Jim Sheets is intelligent, creative and gutsy."

Pulitzer Prize Winning Author To Speak At Eastern Nazarene

Ed Larson, winner of the 1998 Pulitzer Prize for history, will be the first of this year's lecturers at Eastern Nazarene College (ENC) Oct. 20 at 8 p.m. in the Mann Student Center Auditorium, 23 East Elm Ave., Wollaston.

Dr. Larson is the Richard B. Russell Professor of History and Law at the University of Georgia, and also serves as a Senior Fellow at the Discovery Institute.

The Pulitzer Prize in history was awarded Larson for his book, Summer of the Gods: The Scopes Trial and America's Continuing Debate over Science and Religion, the context of which will be his topic for the lecture. Dr. Larson's previous books include Euthanasia: Spiritual, Medical and Legal Issues in Terminal Health Care (1988), and Sex, Race and Science: Eugenics in the Deep South (1985). The lecture is sponsored by the ENC History Department and by the Intercollegiate Studies Institute.

The 8 p.m. lecture will be followed by a question and answer period and a brief informal reception. The public is cordially invited to attend. There is no charge for the lecture or reception. For further information or directions to the campus, contact Krista Casler at (617) 745-3714.

Other lecturers scheduled in this series include: John Lukacs, March 15, 2000; Ed Knippers, March 20-22, 2000; and Stanley L. Jaki, April 10, 2000.

CANCER TALK WITH CLAIRE FUNG, MD

Breast Cancer Alert - Part 2

Second only to lung cancer, breast cancer is a leading cancer killer of women. The best defense against this disease is early detection. Fortunately, when detected early enough, breast cancer has a 90% cure rate.

In educating yourself about the disease, you should know that some women stand a greater risk of getting breast cancer than others. According to the American Cancer Society, the following factors increase your chance of developing breast cancer:

- over the age of 50
- history of breast cancer in your close family (mother, sister)
- first childbirth after age of 30
- never having children
- obesity (weighing 40% more than your recommended weight)

In assessing these risk factors, please note that they are just that, risk factors. They are not absolute indications of breast cancer because the majority of women with these risk factors do not develop breast cancer. Being aware of the risk factors, however, should alert you to the importance of regular screening for breast cancer.

As we noted last week, all three methods of screening — breast self-exam, clinical breast exam, and mammography — are essential in the fight against breast cancer. If the disease is caught when the cancer is small and localized the likelihood of needing to have a mastectomy is significantly reduced. A mastectomy is the surgical removal of the entire breast.

Precisely because we are doing a better job of early detection, mastectomies are not as necessary or as common as they used to be. If the cancerous tumor is small and has not spread beyond the breast, a lumpectomy is equally effective. A lumpectomy is the surgical removal of the cancerous lump/tumor and a small amount of surrounding tissue. Overall, the breast is saved.

As a radiation oncologist, I specialize in using radiation to combat cancer and I see the progress we are making in refining treatment. With advanced equipment, we can focus the radiation beam more precisely to eradicate or minimize the tumor. In the process, we conserve more of a patient's healthy tissue and reduce negative side effects.

Of course, in dealing with breast cancer there are no easy answers. Every case is unique and must be reviewed accordingly. Certain patients will require localized treatment such as surgery or radiation, others a more systemic approach such as chemo- or hormonal therapy. There is, however, plenty of information about all aspects of the disease from detection to emotional reactions to breast reconstruction. Your local chapter of the American Cancer Society is a valuable and free resource. Take advantage of this public service to educate yourself.

There are also many books on breast cancer. Dr. Susan Love's Breast Book is a guide for gathering information, understanding the diagnosis and choosing treatment. Informative and clearly written, it is an excellent education tool for those concerned about breast cancer.

A Chinese/English Bilingual Job Fair will be held Saturday, Oct. 16 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at President's Place, Quincy Sq.

The job fair is the second being coordinated by Yau's Marketing Services because of the success of the one held last year.

Betty Yau, president of Yau's Marketing Service said Saturday's fair offers employers a means of outreach to workers of Chinese descent who demonstrates a strong work ethnic, loyalty and commitment to education.

It also affords, she said, an opportunity for the workers to gain entry into the mainstream business community.

This year's job fair has been expanded to attract candidates with professional and technical skills as well as candidates with administrative or entry level experience, she said.

Faberge Egg Raffle To Help Raise Funds For Park Fountain

The Board of License Commissioners voted Tuesday to grant Quincy Partnership, in conjunction with Rogers Jewelry, a one day beer and wine license for its raffle of a Faberge egg.

The drawing will take place Sunday, Nov. 7 between 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. in the lobby of BankBoston in Quincy Center.

Quincy Partnership will sell 500 raffle tickets at $100 per ticket. They hope to raise $50,000 to help purchase a fountain for Merrymount Park. The fountain is estimated to cost $100,000.

The Faberge egg being raffled is one of 325 such eggs made to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the White House. The pictures of John Adams and his wife Abigail adorn the egg because the Adams were the first presidential family to move into the house in 1800.

The egg itself is the brainchild of Theo Faberge, the grandson of Carl Faberge, legendary jewelry maker to Czar Alexander III of Russia. Theo started his own jewelry company, the St. Petersburg Collection, in 1985.

Mark Bertman, owner of Rogers Jewelry, and Edward Keohane, president of the QP, discovered the eggs, valued at nearly $6,000 apiece, during a recent trip to Europe.

Bertman spoke at the license board meeting, saying that appetizers would be served along with champagne, wine, and beer.

The vote was unanimous.

Costume Parade, Music, Shopping

Quincy Center Family Harvest Festival Saturday

The ninth annual Quincy Center Family Harvest Festival will be held Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Hancock St. will be transformed into a pedestrian mall for the event which is sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Hancock St. will be closed from Granite St. to Cliveden St. for the event.

Rain date is Saturday, Oct. 23.

A highlight will be the popular Costume Parade for youngsters in grades kindergarten to 5. The parade will form at 1:30 p.m.

Members of the business and arts communities will serve as the judges. Prizes for the best costumes will be awarded in several categories.

"Hats Off", a local musical group, will perform throughout the day, sponsored by Victory Markets.

Over 60 QCBPA members and invited vendors will feature Fall decorations, early holiday gift items and food.

Also on hand will be clowns to entertain the youngsters.

A poster contest for students in grades 4 and 5 was held in conjunction with the festival on the theme "Our Family's Favorite Fall Activity." Winning posters will be displayed in the window of Quincy Center stores and businesses during the festival.

Entry forms for the costume parade were distributed to the Quincy public and parochial schools but are still available at the QCBPA office, 1416 Hancock St., or by calling 471-3232.

Sheets Turns Attention To Other Projects

The hospital crisis may be over, but Mayor James A. Sheets still sees work to be done in Quincy.

"There's enough projects to keep me busy," the mayor said Tuesday, mentioning such projects as Squantum Gardens, the construction of a new high school, the Quarry Hills golf course, and the completion of the Souther Tide Mill as a few examples.

Sheets emphasized that these projects had been addressed throughout the entire hospital issue, but admitted that they had to take a backseat, at least mentally, during the $70 million transition from Quincy Hospital to Quincy Medical Center.

"It's more a mental relief," said Sheets. "Clearly, the hospital occupies your mind."

Sheets sees the construction of Squantum Gardens, the new senior housing and recreation center, as Quincy's next major project. According to the mayor, the city is currently awaiting approval from the General Services Administration. After that, the next step will be for the Navy to convey the land to the city. Sheets is optimistic.

"I don't see any substantial issues with Squantum Gardens," said Sheets. "We should be able to move that forward."

Sheets expects the estimated 18 months of construction to begin in the spring.

Another top priority for the mayor is the construction of Quincy's new high school. Sheets has been in contact with David Colton, the city's DPW commissioner, and reported that engineering plans for the high school are moving forward. He also announced that the School Needs Task Force, the group which initially proposed the school, will be meeting again now that the hospital's troubles have been resolved.

Sheets also reported that 90% of the seven million cubic yards of landfill needed to create the Quarry Hills golf course in West Quincy will be in place by next summer, enough for landscapers to begin the task of tapering the 27 individual holes.

According to Sheets, Quarry Hills Associates received $53 million in payment for accepting the landfill, money which goes toward the construction of the site. As agreed, QHA is also building and maintaining in perpetuity four soccer fields, one softball field, and one baseball field in the area. When completed, the city's lease calls for Quincy to receive 10% of gross green fees and 10% of net clubhouse profits for the next fifty years.

Lastly, Sheets wants to develop a master plan for the quarry areas encompassing the new golf course and ball fields, the proposed "Little Fenway" ball field, and a possible museum with the Granite Rail quarry as a living exhibit of said museum.

Sheets reported that J.F. White is continuing its work filling in Swingles quarry and that the job was roughly 18% done. "Swingles quarry will be filled in," the mayor said.

FALL CAR CARE

Getting Better Gas Mileage

(NAPS)—Who's got money to burn? Six simple steps can help you get the most out of your gasoline dollar, say the pros at the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE), a non-profit group that certifies the competence of automotive technicians. Among the tips from ASE:

Lighten up. Remove unnecessary items from the vehicle. Less weight means better mileage.

Drive sensibly. Don't speed and avoid sudden accelerations and hard braking. Use cruise control on highways. Anticipate traffic patterns ahead and adjust your speed gradually. In addition to better gas mileage, your engine and brakes should last longer.

Maintain the engine. Follow the service schedules listed in the owner's manual. A well-maintained engine burns less fuel than a neglected one. Replace fluids and filters as recommended; have engine performance problems (rough idling, poor acceleration, etc.) corrected at a repair facility. Given today's high-tech engines, it's wise to have engine performance work done by an auto technician who has earned ASE certification, a national measure of competence.

Check tire pressure. Under inflated or poorly aligned tires waste fuel, since the engine must work harder to move the vehicle. Consult the owner's manual or tire sidewalls for recommended pressure. An alignment may be warranted if the tread is wearing unevenly or if the vehicle "pulls" while being driven on a flat road.

Stop idling around. Shut off the engine while waiting for friends and family. And since today's vehicles are designed to "warm up" fast, forget those ten-minute warm ups in the morning.

Consolidate daily errands and short trips. Some trips may be unnecessary. Also, travel when traffic is light to avoid stop-and-go conditions.

Spotlight On Auto Technicians

(NAPS)—Economic, environmental, and technological factors are making it more important than ever for consumers to find qualified auto technicians, report officials with the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE). According to ASE, the non-profit group that tests and certifies the nation's automotive technicians, the following trends are influencing modern automotive service and repair.

Economic considerations. As new vehicles have become more costly, consumers have become more concerned with protecting their auto investment. They are seeking out professional auto service for their state-of-the art vehicles.

Still other consumers are looking to extend the life of their current vehicles through regular, scheduled service. A survey of ASE-certified Master Auto Technicians confirms the wisdom of preventative maintenance—the technicians agreed that consumers could extend the life of their vehicles by up to 50 percent through regular maintenance.

ASE-certified auto technicians can be found at repair establishments displaying this blue and white sign.

Environmental awareness. Increasing numbers of motorists are practicing vehicle maintenance as a way of helping the environment. They are concerned to learn that a misfiring spark plug wastes gasoline, a poorly maintained engine pollutes excessively, or that underinflated tires wear out faster, causing poorer gasoline mileage and more refuse for landfills.

Technological advances. And as on-board computers, anti-lock brakes, and other advances make cars and trucks more efficient and dependable, this same technology limits the scope of do-it-yourself projects. Most consumers must increasingly rely on technicians for maintenance.

For motorists who have not yet found a good repair establishment, the following guidelines from the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) should help.

• Start shopping for a repair facility before you need one.

• Ask friends and associates for recommendations; consult local consumer organizations.

• Arrange for alternate transportation in advance so you will not feel forced to choose a shop based solely on location.

• Look for a neat, well-organized facility, with vehicles in the parking lot equal in value to your own and modern equipment in the service bays.

• Look for a courteous staff, with a service writer willing to listen to you and to answer your questions.

• Look for posted policies regarding labor rates, diagnostic fees, guarantees, acceptable methods of payment, etc.

• Ask if the repair facility specializes or if it usually handles your type of repair work.

• Look for signs of professionalism in the customer service area such as civic, community, or customer service awards.

• Look for evidence of qualified technicians: trade school diplomas, certificates of advanced course work, and ASE certification of the technicians.

Car Care Corner

Facts From Experts At The Standard Plus Club

Engine Knock

(NAPS)—Q. Lately, when I accelerate or climb a hill, my car's engine starts to knock. Any idea what causes that?

A. While it may often be caused by a tankful of inferior gas, ignition knock is often a sign that the engine needs some attention. Knocking can also be caused by a build-up of carbon inside the engine.

Late model cars are equipped with a knock sensor which "hears" the sound and makes corrective adjustments. But it cannot compensate for a severe malfunction. Both the lack of a tune-up and the carbon build-up can become conditions which may affect your engine performance and damage the engine.

Knocking is one of the most common signs your car needs a tune-up.

Joseph Ayube First Patient At Quincy Medical Center

If you want to know how important it is to have a hospital in Quincy, ask Joseph Ayube.

Ayube, of Briggs St., became the new Quincy Medical Center's first official patient when he was admitted with chest pains at 7:15 a.m. on Friday, Oct. 8.

He first noticed the pains sometime after 6 a.m. Later he and his wife Marita called 911 and Ayube was rushed by ambulance to the hospital.

He then suffered a heart attack in the emergency room of Quincy Medical Center.

Ayube credits his recovery to the timely, knowledgeable care he received from the paramedics and from QMC staff.

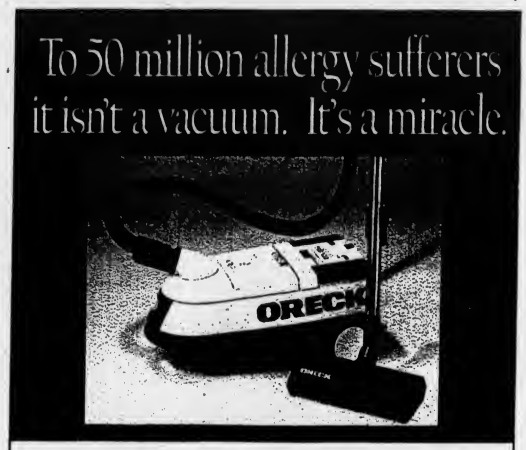
"I couldn't have had better treatment," Ayube recalled from his hospital bed just hours after the heart attack, and just hours after Governor Paul Cellucci had signed a bill on the front steps of QMC loaning the hospital enough money to remain open and affiliate with Boston Medical Center.

"It just doesn't touch you until something like this happens," Ayube said. "I was extremely lucky that the hospital was still here. If it wasn't for the quick response of the staff here, God knows what would have happened."

The hospital's status had been day-to-day ever since battles between the Massachusetts House and Senate killed the original loan package, forcing the hospital to miss its affiliation deadline of Oct. 1. The hospital was costing Quincy taxpayers roughly $30,000 a day and Mayor Sheets was set to announce its closing Oct. 11.

Although he and his wife are grateful for the care he received, Ayube had some words of warning to the politicians who almost let Quincy Hospital slip through their fingertips. Said Ayube:

"The next time a situation like this happens, don't play games. There are other areas you can cut, but these are people's lives. I pay taxes. I should receive quality health care in the United States of America."



As of this writing, Ayube was doing well and recovering in QMC's Intensive Care Unit.

Candidates' Night At O'Brien Towers Oct. 20

A Candidates' Night will be held Wednesday, Oct. 20 at 7 p.m. at Clement O'Brien Towers community room, 73 Bicknell St., Quincy.

The forum is being sponsored by residents of the Germantown community and O'Brien Towers/Crowley Ct. Tenants Association.

The format will be a "round table" discussion. At the beginning of the evening each candidate will be given two minutes for opening remarks to the entire assembly. Each candidate with then proceed to individual tables for a brief discussion and questions from voters.

GANGLIONS

Several types of cysts can form in the human foot. A commonly seen cyst is a ganglion. Ganglions are formed from tendon sheaths (a thin cover around the tendon) and contain a clear, gel-like fluid resembling joint fluid. Some ganglions may actually have a direct communication with a joint space. These cysts are usually found on the extensor surface (tendons that help pull the toes and foot up) of the foot. Ganglions are also common in the wrist.

In general, ganglions do not produce symptoms and just need to be watched closely. Treatment can include aspiration (removal of the fluid through a needle), cortisone injections for the smaller ones and surgical excision. Surgical excision may be indicated when shoe fit is difficult due to the location of the cyst, if an infection develops in the area, or if the mass impinges on a nearby structure such as a nerve.

If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney and South Shore Hospitals and Quincy Medical Center.

Essential Tools For Home Improvement

(NAPS)—While your home may be your castle and an escape from today's hectic world, it's probably not perfect. Decorating styles change. There are pictures to hang and shelves to install. Things break.

It's too pressing to ignore, but too minor to engage a professional. The question becomes one of where to begin.

Start with a good how-to book. Two that come highly recommended are Better Homes & Gardens—New Complete Guide to Home Repair & Improvement and New Complete Do-It-Yourself Manual by Reader's Digest.

With knowledge in hand, it's a good idea to have a basic set of tools. When choosing yours, experts advise that you buy the best quality you can afford.

Good tools can last a lifetime and help you get results like the pros, while poor ones tend to break, causing frustration, and can even damage your hard work.

A hardware or home center professional can help guide your selections. Here are the top ten tools that home experts say should be in every toolbox:

1. Toolbox—Start with a sturdy, latching container that can protect your tools and keep them together and ready to go.

2. Safety goggles—Protecting your safety is the first step in any do-it-yourself project.

3. Screwdrivers—Start with a couple sizes of both flat blade and Phillips types.

Picture this: a tool that makes it easier to make your home look picture-perfect.

4. Hammer—Choose a standard, 16-ounce claw hammer that will be heavy enough to accomplish most tasks and light enough to handle easily.

5. Metal tape measure—Choose one with a shock resistant case in a bright color that can be easily spotted in the toolbox. For added convenience, try one with a built-in voice recorder to keep track of your measurements like the Zircon Repeater that comes in various lengths.

6. Slip-joint pliers with wire cutting jaw

7. Adjustable wrench

8. Utility or box knife

9. Drill—This is the one power tool that's a must.

10. Stud finder—Whether you're hanging a picture or doing a major remodel, a stud finder can be worth its weight in gold. For example, the Zircon iSensor is compact, easy to use and it costs less than $10.

For more information about Zircon's iSensor, Repeater and other cutting-edge electronic hand tools, you can visit the website at www.zircon.com or call toll-free 800-245-9265.

Warning Signs For A New Floor

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

(NAPS)—When you get right down to it, things may be looking up for your home decor. Check and see if it's time to give your old flooring its walking papers.

According to Jeffrey Bilhuber, design consultant for the World Floor Covering Association, there are five ways to tell if your cork flooring should be uncorked, or your carpet carted out:

1. Wear and tear. Discolored, worn or otherwise damaged carpet or other flooring is a clear indications that the time has come.

2. Trends. Like to keep up with the latest trends? You can layer flooring for a distinctive look. Try a woven wood area rug that can be rolled up and stored.

3. Dramatic impact. New flooring options provide an opportunity to make a statement. Bamboo, for example, can give a room an exotic feel, while painted laminates offer bold, expressive possibilities.

4. Lifestyle changes. Are you still using the room for the same purpose as when you first laid down flooring? Or have there been new additions—children or pets—to the home? Your choice of floor covering should reflect the room's attitude and function. With little ones, the focus should be on comfort and durability. If you've adopted a dog or cat, choose carpet with low or cut pile so the carpet doesn't get snagged by claws.

5. Boredom. Do you yawn when you walk in your front door and survey the landscape? Spruce it up! Carpet prices have remained stable, with new fibers and production techniques that make it more affordable to be "out with the old..."

Replacing floor coverings doesn't have to strain your brain or drain your wallet.

Your local floor covering retailer is a great place to go for advice on updating your flooring. There's a world of ideas to fit every budget, so you don't have to overspend to create something delightful underfoot.

In architecture, a buttress is a projecting support built into or against the external wall of a building. A flying buttress is an arch that transfers the weight of the ceiling to a lower support.

QPEA Union Ratifies Bylaws, Elects Officers

The Quincy Public Employees Association (QPEA), a newly formed union representing an estimated 156 city employees, ratified its bylaws and elected most of its officials Sept. 30.

Although the actual elections are not scheduled for Oct. 12, all four officer positions and eight of the 11 executive board positions had candidates running unopposed. According to QPEA bylaws, those candidates win unanimous decision election.

The QPEA officers are: Andrew Ayer, president; Dominic Venturelli, vice president; Cathy Ierardi, secretary; and Warren Sproul, treasurer.

The new executive board members representing their departments are: Andrew Scheele, Health; Robert Lafleur, Council on Aging; Dianne LaForest and Ellen McCauley, Police; Patricia Healy, Veterans' Services; June Farrand, Parks and Recreation; and Kathy Nugent and Sean Hardy, Inspectional Services.

Five candidates are running for three executive board slots representing City Hall. The candidates are Joe Pearson, Margery Colton, Patty Flaherty, Vicki Tassney, and Heather Sargent.

The election for those last three slots will be held Oct. 12 at City Hall from noon to 2 p.m. Only City Hall employees from QPEA are eligible to cast votes for those positions.

Roughly 70 members were present at the Sept. 30 meeting.

Mount Ararat Assn. Candidates Night Oct. 21

The Mount Ararat Association is sponsoring a Candidates' Night/Debate Oct. 21 at 7:15 p.m. at the Bernazzani School, Furnace Brook Parkway.

Candidates for Ward 3 Councillor have been invited. They will debate issues presented from the Ward 3 community. They will also answer questions for those present.

Candidates for Mayor, City Council, and School Committee are also invited to attend.

Treasurer O'Brien To Address Democratic Brunch Oct. 24

State Treasurer Shannon Speaker will be the keynote speaker at the 12th annual Quincy City Democratic Committee brunch Sunday, Oct. 24 at 10 a.m. at the George F. Bryan Post, Broad St., Quincy.

All Democratic candidates for public office have been invited to attend.

"Since this is an election year, the City Committee expects that most candidates will attend. This will be an exciting event. Treasurer O'Brien should be an informative speaker," said Michael Cheney, City Committee chairman.

Tickets are $15 each. Tables of 10 are available at a discount price of $125.

For reservations, call Joanne Condon Walsh at 773-1684 or mail checks made payable to the Quincy Democratic Committee to Joanne Condon Walsh, 80 Harbourside Rd., North Quincy, MA 02171.

Support Group For Women With Eating Concerns

A support group for women with eating concerns will meet Tuesdays from 7 to 8:15 p.m. at 44 Greenleaf St., Quincy, for eight weeks.

Tentative start date is Oct. 19. Pre-group interview required.

Adult women with binge eating disorder (compulsive overeating) and bulimia nervosa are welcome.

Cost is $25 per group. For more information, call Kathleen Burns Kingsbury, LMHC at 617-376-3686 or 508-584-9161 ext. 8.

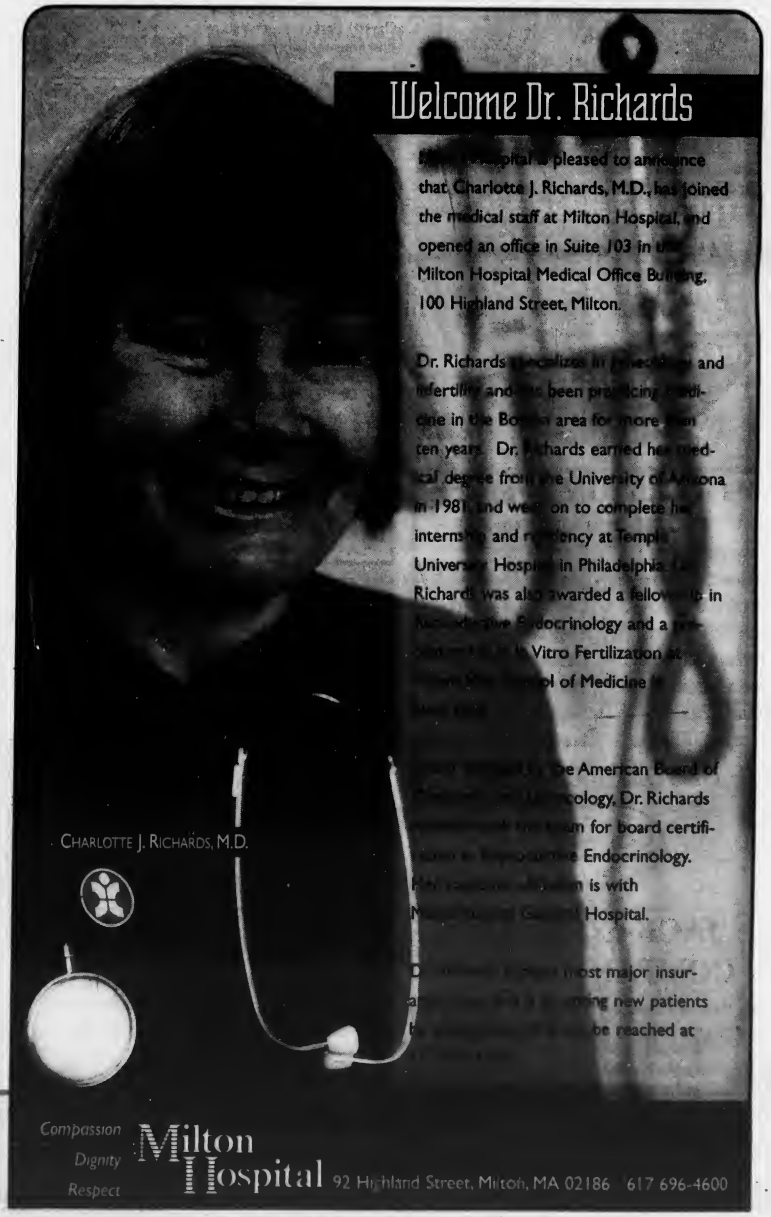
FEELING PUMPED UP?



We are all aware that a brisk walk or other aerobic exercise helps to lift the spirit. Now, recent research indicates that nothing boosts the morale of older individuals more than lifting weights. When researchers at Arizona State University reviewed 32 studies that looked into the impact that different kinds of exercise had among people aged 62 years and older, they found that weight training provided the biggest psychological boost. Older individuals noticed that being stronger helped them better handle such everyday tasks as opening jars and rising up out of their chairs. And, the payoffs of weight training were discerned as coming faster than with other types of exercising. Elderly weight trainers found this to be very gratifying.

It's never too late to begin taking care of your body. Ask you physician what is feasible for you given your age, exercise history and desires. At Marina Place, a senior living residence at Four Seaport Drive, we offer both assisted living and independent living for seniors. You'll feel like you have come to the right place because our staff makes you feel welcome and the surroundings here are beautiful. Phone: 617-770-3264.

Raise The Roof Day At Granite Village Saturday

The city of Quincy, HUD, Neighborhood Housing Services, and South Shore Habitat for Humanity will hold Raise the Roof Day Oct. 16 from 10 a.m. to noon at Granite Village, 110 Bower Rd., near the Quincy-Braintree line.

Volunteers will celebrate RTR Day by planting shrubs and bulbs around three units of Granite Village, the SSHH development of newly constructed first-time home buyer units for very low-income families.

Mayor James A. Sheets, city councillors, SSHH board members, Habitat families, and volunteers will be on hand to raise awareness on the need for affordable housing nationwide and on the South Shore.

The actual planting will take place from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. This will be followed by a brief program where Mayor Sheets, several city councillors, Planning Director Richard Meade, and HUD Community Builder Jaun Everetze are expected to speak on the issue of affordable housing.

Julie McKinney, president of the South Shore Habitat for Humanity, and Crystal Parker, representing the household selected to own one of the units under construction, will also speak about their search for an affordable home ownership unit. Father William Mullin of St. John's Church will give a reflection.

In addition, there will be banners on the various HUD programs and displays on affordable housing initiatives.

SSHH's Granite Village consists of nine first-time home buyer units for very low-income families in a 3.3 acre former quarry. Five of the nine homes have already been completed. The site was donated by Atlantic Development Corporation, the developer of Walmart and the Roche Bros. in an adjacent Quincy location.

South Shore Habitat for Humanity is an ecumenical Christian ministry working to build affordable homes in the communities south of Boston. Since its founding in 1986, it has completed 22 homes in 14 communities. SSHH uses volunteer labor and donated land and material wherever possible to keep cost down.

Anyone interested in volunteering or making a financial donation should contact the office at (781) 843-9080.

Will You Benefit From A Condo?

If you've been contemplating moving into a townhouse or condominium for your next home, you should first decide if it's the right move to make for you and your family.

Condominiums and townhouses are on the rise, specifically for three different markets:

1) those seeking their first home, 2) couples whose children have left home and 3) homeowners looking for a second home at resorts, in the mountains, the woods or along the seashore.

Regardless of whether it's a high-rise apartment, low-rise or a townhouse development, purchasing a condo requires special considerations. A condominium features a residential unit and shared traditional facilities such as laundry rooms, bicycle rooms, hallways, storage areas, parking lots, walkways, a clubhouse, swimming pool and tennis courts.

Because a good majority of the landscape maintenance is done by management, there is usually a monthly condominium fee to cover maintenance costs for these areas.

And before deciding if a condominium or townhouse is right for you, find out if the condo fee includes utilities, and if not, how much the utilities run on a monthly basis. Also determine whether the condo is cable-ready and has sufficient security.

Is a condominium or townhouse in your future? If so, find out the benefits of owning one.

Maybe a free brochure featuring everything you want to know about condos or townhouses will help.

To take advantage of this special offer, simply contact Vincent Moscardelli, ERA Central Real Estate, 128 McGrath Highway, Quincy or call 617-1312.

Allied American Insurance Now Offering Registry Of Motor Vehicles Services

Waiting in lines at the Registry of Motor Vehicles is now a thing of the past for many customers of Allied American Insurance Agency, Inc., as the agency's Quincy office now offers a magnitude of registry services.

Customers coming into the Allied American office at 382 Quincy Ave. are now able to acquire personal and commercial plates, register new, used or leased vehicles, transfer existing registrations and make vehicle and title inquiries. Allied American is one of 10 agencies to take part in this pilot program designed to shorten lines at the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

"Instead of having our customers go to the registry, we bring the registry to our customers," says Meg Somerville, personal lines marketing manager of the Quincy office.

Allied American Insurance Agency President Hope Aldrich says the added services will become a permanent part of what Allied American offers its customers.

"It's a win-win-win situation," she says. "The registry benefits because they will have shorter lines, we are able to provide some very valuable services to our customers, and our customers can get a new car on the road with one visit, as well as many other services."

Registry services provided by Allied are available during the same hours the Quincy branch is open, from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. weekdays.

The Quincy office of Allied American is open from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and claims service is available 24 hours a day. The office can be reached at (617) 328-8300. Allied American's headquarters are in Natick with offices in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Vermont.

Teaching Kids To Make Treats Part Of Healthy Diet

That sack full of Halloween candy your child collected after a full night of trick-or-treating doesn't have to be the "monster" we typically characterize it. The truth of the matter is Halloween can be the perfect time to teach kids (and ourselves) how to make treats a part of a healthy diet.

"A lifetime of healthy eating habits begins by learning how to eat a variety of foods, which can include those "treats" we sometimes call junk food," said Florine Mark of Weight Watchers.

Weight Watchers offers these Halloween tips to teach kids of all ages about healthy eating:

• Help children sort their bag of treats. Have them divide their stash into three piles. One pile is for their "absolute favorite" candy; the second is for "it's good, but I'd much rather have..." choices; and the last for "Nah, those are gross!". Get rid of the second and third piles, and put the first pile back into the bag. Explain to your child that the bag has now transformed into their personal "everything I really like" bag.

• Encourage your child to enjoy a piece of candy after a healthy meal. This way it's a guilt-free finish to a balanced diet.

• Reinforce portion control. Two or three pieces of bite-size candy can be as satisfying as several full size candy bars.

• Discourage mindless eating. We lose our sense of portion control when preoccupied with other things--TV, video games, chatting on the phone, reading a newspaper or studying. At snack time, dole out the portion of candy to be consumed and put away the rest of the stash. Savor your snack.

• Set a good example. When the goblins come knocking, hand out nutritious treats such as lower fat bite-size candy bars, bags of pretzels, sugarless gum.

• Talk and listen. Halloween is a great time to discuss food, nutrition and the importance of being physically active. What all of us learn now and adopt as behaviors set us up for positive behaviors for the rest of our lives.

Electrology: The Only Proven Method Of Permanent Hair Removal

October has been declared National Electrology Awareness Month by the American Electrology Association.

If unwanted hair controls your time, reorders your life or impacts any social or professional commitments you want to make, electrolysis is your ticket to freedom. Whether you have an abundance of unwanted hair due to a diagnosed medical condition or you are simply tired of tweezing the hairs from your face, eyebrows, chin or on your body, this safe, reliable and time-honored procedure is for you. When pro-rated over a lifetime of permanence, it is most affordable compared to all other temporary methods.

In 1875, Dr. Charles Michel, a French ophthalmologist practicing in St. Louis, first utilized a delicate needle to conduct electrical current to remove an ingrown eyelash. Ever since, electrolysis has been recognized as the only method of permanent hair removal. In fact, electrolysis remains the only proven method of permanent hair removal.

Electrolysis has been proven safe and effective for many generations. Modern electrolysis utilizes refined, computerized equipment and well-manufactured, sterile, disposable probes.

Permanent hair removal through electrolysis results in beautifully smooth, hair-free skin.

Electrology is a respected health care profession worthy of physician referrals and medical interaction. The American Electrology Association (AEA), the largest and oldest professional membership organization, has developed national professional programs to serve as models for competent professional and ethical business practices in the industry and for International Board Certification. The "Certified Professional Electrologist" (CPE) has gained international recognition.

To receive the AEA's public information brochure, "Electrology... The Permanent Choice," contact Christine Sardina, a registered electrologist and instructor at Christine's Electrology & Day Spa, 1073 Hancock St., Suite 401, Quincy, (617) 786-1620.

Hearing aid
"Tips from Tobias"
"I hear what I want to hear".
How would you know? This statement is commonly used by people that have not yet come to terms with their hearing loss!
It is painful to hear it, because I know that they are years away from trying to correct their loss. Most people are unaware how an uncorrected hearing loss can effect their lives.
The results of a recent survey of over 4000 hearing impaired people and their significant others has been published. Some of the highlights are as follows.
•People with untreated hearing loss register significantly higher levels of depression, anger and frustration, anxiety, and other negative emotions than do people with comparable hearing loss who use hearing aids.
• Nearly half of the hearing aid wearers surveyed reported improvement in their overall quality of life attributable to their use of hearing aids. More than 60% of the family members or close friends reported that hearing aids had improved the life of users.
You cannot afford to ignore a hearing loss. Live your life to it's fullest and be healthy! Now you go and spread the news! - Steve

Chiropractic Update

SAVE YOUR BACK WHILE RAKING LEAVES

Once again the change of season is upon us; the summer vacation to New Hampshire or the Cape is just a memory, and we realize that soon enough we will be dealing with snow and ice. Autumn is, for many folks, the prettiest season of the year, but it is not without potential health risks to the back and spine. In my opinion, the two main culprits of the Fall season are the fallen leaves and the changing weather conditions.

It has been my experience that fall's colder and occasionally damper weather can contribute to the aggravation of many back or neck problems, such as chronic sprains, strains or arthritic conditions. Secondly, the repetitive twisting and bending actions done by a person while raking leaves is a very common cause of lower back, mid back and/or shoulder problems.

If you are planning to clean up your yard and will be raking leaves, the following guidelines may be helpful:

1) Warm up prior to raking as you would do before exercising.

2) Switch sides when raking so that you are not always raking the leaves in the same direction.

3) Try to keep your back straight and whenever possible, get down on your knees to rake under bushes or hedges, or when lifting leaves into a trash barrel.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

Childhood Depression

(NAPS)—Childhood depression is more than the normal ups and downs of growing up.

It's not something children grow out of. Depression is a real, identifiable and potentially fatal illness that affects millions of American children.

"Fortunately, it's a disease that can be effectively treated. Like most illnesses, treatment is most effective when the disease is recognized early on," said David G. Fassler, M.D., Chair of the American Psychiatric Association's Council on Children, Adolescents and their families and author of Help Me I'm Sad, a book about childhood depression.

Symptoms may include lack of energy, dramatic weight loss, irritability and sleep disrupted by bad dreams. Any child who has thoughts about suicide should be taken to a physician and evaluated immediately.

Treatment usually includes a combination of individual therapy for the child, family therapy and consultation with the child's school. It may also include the use of medication.

Presidents Bow In Another Heartbreaker

Quincy Hosts Powerful Rockland Saturday

By CHRIS POISSON

It wasn't too long ago when Quincy blew a 21-6 fourth-quarter lead before losing to Randolph, 23-21, on a last second field goal.

There's no way it could happen again. Right?

Well, lets just say when Quincy went up 21-0 in the first half against Falmouth Friday night, no one thought the rest of the game would be a cakewalk.

And it wasn't. Quincy's offense sputtered in the second half, the defense froze and, yes, the Presidents (0-5 overall, 0-2 OCL) wound up losing another heartbreaker, 22-21, in the final minutes of the game.

Quincy will battle non-league powerhouse Rockland Saturday at 7 p.m. at home.

Last week, Falmouth (2-2, 1-1) suffered a painful 14-7 overtime loss to North Quincy, but this time around Veterans Memorial Stadium was a lot sweeter.

"I'm sick of losing," said head coach Bob Noble. "I'm tired of it. I hate it. This is just cruel for the kids. What can you say to them. You can't say anything to them that they don't already know."

Quincy probably could've put the game away in the middle of the fourth quarter but, like the previous games, it couldn't come up with that one play.

Senior Andy Tam intercepted a Josh Levy pass near the end of the third to give Quincy great field position at its 49. With a 21-14 lead, another score surely would have locked up Quincy's first win of the season.

The Presidents drove down to the 18-yard line, but on a fourth-and-three play senior running back Russell Mullen ran a sweep to the right side only to be met in the backfield by a swarming Falmouth defense for a 2-yard loss.

"It's fourth-and-three and you have to convert," Noble said. "It epitomizes the whole game. It's another big play we have to make and we didn't to it."

With 7:55 remaining in the game, Falmouth marched 80 yards on 12 plays behind the shifty legs of sophomore Jason Cleary, who rushed for 50 yards on the game-winning drive. He finished with 104 yards, 88 in the second half.

Levy capped off the drive with a 5-yard keeper on third down to pull his team within one, 21-20, with 1:58 left in the game.

Falmouth didn't hesitate going for the win as Cleary plunged his way into the end zone for the two-point conversion.

"You can't let a team drive 80 yards on you to win the game," Noble said. Some one has to step up and stop them. They didn't run anything we didn't expect. How many times can a quarterback run outside on us?"

Quincy might have played its best ball of the season in the first half. It gained 211 total yards, running the ball effectively to set up the pass. The defense also came up with three turnovers.

Quincy punted on its first possession but Falmouth's Jeff Boswell bobbled the catch and Quincy recovered at its 48. Senior quarterback Dan Kelly led his team down field for a score. Rolling to his left, Kelly threw a bullet across the middle to Mullen for a 8-yard TD. The PAT was no good.

On Falmouth's next possession Levy threw an interception and Quincy turned into another score. Kelly ran it in himself from 2 yards out with 2:58 left in the first. Captain Tim Pezzulo converted the two points for a 14-0 lead.

Falmouth moved the ball late in the first but Quincy's defense stopped them on a fourth-and-10 play at its 13. Kelly then engineered an 87-yard drive, hitting all three of his passes. His last one was a 28-yard TD strike to Tam with 6:45 left in the half.

Kelly shredded the Falmouth defense threw the air, connecting on his first seven pass attempts. He finished the half 7 for 10 with a 124 yards and 2 TDs.

"He played great," Noble said. "He makes big plays for us. I don't know, maybe we should go with him some more."

Falmouth got on the board before the half. Levy hit Boswell for a 43-yard pass to the 7-yard line. On the next play Boswell rumbled in for a 7-yard TD.

That was the beginning of the comeback as Kelly threw an interception on Quincy's next series. Falmouth had the ball at the 30 and executed its two-minute offense to perfection. With 12 seconds left and Falmouth at the Quincy 8, Levy had a pass deflected and Pezzulo came up with the interception to keep Falmouth off the board for the moment.

Only halftime, though, slowed down Falmouth's comeback

North Quincy Burned By Gomes, Barnstable

Raiders Tangle With Taunton Friday

By CHRIS POISSON

Coming off its first win of the season, an emotional 14-7 overtime victory against Falmouth last week, North Quincy seemed fired up for perhaps its biggest game of the year - a Friday night date at OCL foe Barnstable.

But Barnstable's Stefan Gomes was a blaze North Quincy couldn't contain, as he scorched the Red Raiders for five touchdowns and a 100-yard interception return on a conversion to lead his team to a 43-8 blowout.

North Quincy (1-3-1 overall, 1-1-0 OCL) will try to rebound Friday night when it hosts Taunton (2-2, 1-1) at 7 p.m.

Last season, the Red Raiders held Gomes in check as he only scored on a 28-yard reverse. But they still lost the game, 32-18.

Barnstable got on the board in the first quarter when Gomes scored a 23-yard TD. Steve Merlesena kicked the PAT for a 7-0 lead.

Gomes' highlight show began in the second when he got things rolling with a 3-yard TD run for a 14-0 lead. Then came the Deion Sanders-like performance. Gomes took off for a 67-yard punt return for a touchdown and another one from 60 yards out. The PAT failed both times.

Trailing 26-0 to start the third, North Quincy finally put something together. The defense came up with a safety and it drove down the field on its ensuing possession. Senior captain Brian Deptula had a 5-yard TD run to cut the lead to 26-8.

North Quincy tried a pass for the two-point conversion but Gomes picked it off and jetted 100 yards the other way for the two points.

Gomes scored his third touchdown on the ground from 15 yards out later in the quarter for a 35-8 lead. Shaw Dee Summtner closed out the scoring with a 3-yard TD run in the fourth.

Quincy Jr. Rangers Grinding It Out In Inaugural Season

Hockey Program Focuses On Preparing Players For College, Life

By CHRIS POISSON

The Grinder works hard in the corners and other places nobody else wants to go.

The Grinder's the guy who doesn't have the grades to get the scholarship. So he works the night shift to pay for classes.

The Grinder's willing to sacrifice the body. Stopping a speeding puck with your face isn't pretty but then again, neither is the name "Grinder."

The Grinder always sticks up for his teammates. Why? Because they're teammates. And the other guys aren't.

This excerpt is taken from a 1993 Sports Illustrated issue and Tom McDonald, general manager and head coach of the Quincy Junior Rangers, chose to print it on the inside cover of the Oct. 2 game program against the West River Wolves.

Usually, McDonald writes up a brief article about the team but he's in the middle of moving back to his hometown of Rockland, and just hasn't had the time. So he chose this passage, which explains what his first-year junior hockey team, ages 16-20, is all about.

Monday, Oct. 4, 2:15 p.m.: Practice begins at 3:00 but several players have hit the ice early to work on their shots, hoping one day it will score them with a college team. Grinders.

Saturday, Oct. 9, 8:20 p.m.: It's the middle of the first period against the Boston Jr. Blackhawks and captain Jason Sullivan is flattened at the blue line. Shaken up a bit, he stays on his shift and ends up chasing down a Blackhawk player to prevent a breakaway. Grinder.

"I put that excerpt in there for the team and the parents to give another spin off of what this team is about," McDonald says. "If they like it, they like it. If they don't, they don't. It's not one of those things I force. I just thought it was interesting."

McDonald is the man who made the Rangers possible. As a goalie coach for the Rhode Island Sharks of the Eastern Junior Hockey League, McDonald was impressed with what junior hockey offered.

"It gave the same exposure as prep school hockey but it was a longer season, 60 games," McDonald says. "I feel it's the best thing for kids. If the kids want to propel themselves into college, this is where they should be. If they need that bridge, that extra year to prepare themselves for college, this is where to come."

After two years in the Ocean State McDonald moved on to become the assistant coach of the Bridgewater Bandits, but he had aspirations of landing a head coaching job. One problem: no one was exactly shooting pucks his way.

Having grown up in the area playing local hockey for Rockland High School, McDonald felt Quincy was the perfect spot for a junior team, so why not pursue it. He hooked up with Mark Warsofsky, owner of M&M Trucking, and got things rolling.

"No one was knocking down my door, so I took it upon myself," McDonald

Granite Host First Playoff Game Sunday

Quincy (6-2) Battles Boston At 7 PM

The Quincy Granite clinched a home game for the first round of the playoffs Sunday afternoon on the road.

But they got some help from a 12th man - Mother Nature.

The season finale against the Bay State Bulldogs was canceled because of the rain, and the New England Football League awarded the Granite with a 6-0 win because the Bulldogs couldn't find another stadium and had to forfeit.

It's the second time this season Quincy has been given a 6-0 forfeit win. The first was Sept. 11 when a non-league opponent backed out of a game

Quincy finished the regular season with 6-2 record, locking up the No. 2 seed in the South Division. It will host No. 3 Boston Bandits Sunday at 7 p.m.

In the other bracket, No. 1 Mass Havoc, the defending league champs, will host No. 4 Bulldogs.

The Granite and Bandits squared off a few weeks ago at Veterans Memorial Stadium, and Quincy stomped them, 27-7, behind the right arm of quarterback Liam Higgins.

Higgins zeroed in on his receivers as he lit the Bandit defense for four touchdown passes. He has eight TD passes in five games this season.

Quincy was also successful on the ground as seven backs were used in rotation.

"I think we're going to mix it up a little," said captain David Harris. "But Liam has a great arm and he's looking good in practice."

In that game the Bandits committed many costly penalties which gave the Granite offense second chances. And for the first time all season they were able to capitalize and get the six points.

Harris, though, doesn't see that Bandit team showing up again Sunday.

"They're looking a lot better," said Harris, who watched the Bandits play the Havoc last week. "They weren't the same team when we played them. I think they're going to come to play."

Also, the refs called that first game with three minutes to go because of several on-field scuffles. Harris has several friends on the team - quarterback Byron Beaman, linebacker Terrence Pennington, linebacker Mike Branch - and expects a cleaner match this time around.

Quincy will look to continue its strong play right through the post season, as it has its sights set on a championship. And it would love a rematch against the Lowell Nor'easter of the North Division for the crown.

On Sept. 25, Quincy traveled to Cawley Stadium and were embarrassed by Lowell, suffering a 22-6 loss in which it did nothing right.

"We turned it up a notch after that," Harris said. "They'll be in the hunt for the championship and we want to be there right next to them."

Outstanding Performances For North Cross Country

The North Quincy cross country team turned in some outstanding performances in recent weeks.

The girls drubbed Taunton (Sept. 28), 15-46, with Lynda Wilson, Natalie Caron, Linda Nguyen, Sarah Houghton, Christine Marre and Genevieve O'Brien all placing in the top 10.

The boys lost a close one, 26-31, to the Tigers despite Brian Breslin and Jeff Bartoloni finishing 2-3. Other top 10 finishers were John Fidalgo and Steve Barkowski. Frank Alibrandi came in 11th.

At the Baystate Invitational (Sept. 25), the girls placed fifth in the Championship Division, with Wilson, Caron, Houghton and Nguyen all finishing in the top 50 and receiving medals.

No. 3 Colonie of Albany, NY win the tournament. Cambridge, a strong Division I contender, league rival Barnstable and Newburyport, the Division IV defending champs, placed ahead of North Quincy.

In the boys race Bartoloni was fourth and Breslin sixth.

At Falmouth (Oct. 5), the girls had their 14-meet winning streak snapped, losing 26-29. No. 2 Caron had to run with a bad cold.
Wilson (2nd), Nguyen (4th), Houghton (6th), O'Brien (8th), Marre (9th) and Kellyrose O'Brien all ran season-best performances.

New Bedford competed as well as part of a tri-meet and were no challenge, losing 15-47.

On the boys side, the loss of Fidalgo (knee) was the key factor in the Red Raiders' losses to both teams, despite Bartoloni and Breslin taking 1-2 overall. Barkowski and Alibrandi continued to improve.

In the meet at Bridgewater-Raynham last Thursday, North Quincy runners got back on their feet with a double win. Bartoloni and Breslin propelled the boys along with Fidalgo, Barkowski and Alibrandi. The 25-30 win put them at 2-3, on target for the OCL championships.

The girls had little trouble with the Lady Trojans, winning 19-37. Wilson, Nguyen, Houghton and Caron took the top four spots with Genevieve O'Brien and Marre going 7-9.

"We just need to be healthy to win," said head coach Geoff Hennessy. "No team in this league can lose one of its top five and beat another good team. I'll take a loss and trade it for good postseason wins any day. Fidalgo and Caron had minor setbacks and now they're back. The possibility of us taking both the boys and girls OCL on Oct. 23 is very real. It certainly won't be for lack of work, planning or desire."

North Quincy hosted Barnstable Tuesday in a meet that might decide the league for the girls. The team travels to Rhode Island Saturday for the Brown Invitational, where it will rematch with Brookline, Cambridge and Barnstable. It's dual meet season concludes against Quincy and Fontbonne on Oct. 19. All home meets are at Pageant Field.

MacRitchie, North Girls Post Three Shutouts

SOCCER

Sophomore goalie Kathryn MacRitchie led the North Quincy girls' soccer team to a 3-1 record last week, posting three consecutive shutouts to lower her goals-against average to 1.45.

She blanked Taunton, Martha's Vineyard and Canton and now has five for the season.

North Quincy started off the week at Silver Lake (Oct. 5) and suffered its worst defeat in five years, losing 7-0. North Quincy actually controlled play early with midfielders Casey Ridge, Ashley Murphy and Allie Lacey dominating the middle of the field.

But the Lakers strung together five goals before halftime to put the game out of reach.

The Red Raiders bounced back against Taunton (Oct. 7) as the offense exploded in the 8-0 victory. Sophomore forward Lauren Sleeth notched her first goal of the year off a feed from Caitlyn O'Donnell.

Murphy made it 2-0, chipping in a goal from 30 yards out with Janelle Hersey getting the assist. O'Donnell then scored the first of her two goals with Sleeth assisting.

Twenty seconds into the second half O'Donnell blasted a shot inside the near post with Murphy picking up the assist.

North Quincy continued to dominate play with junior Colleen Lahar knocking in two goals (first varsity goals), one unassisted and the other with Stacy Szcesuil assisting.

Lacey scored her second goal with a 35-yard shot past the startled Tiger keeper. Jen Djerf closed out the scoring late in the half, taking a feed from freshman Erin McFarland.

Defensively, North Quincy got outstanding performances from Jen Conley, Lacey and Kathlyn Gates.

Martha's Vineyard traveled to North Quincy Saturday and left with a 3-0 loss. The game was scoreless throughout the first 35 minutes before senior captain Maureen Holleran took a great pass from Lacey and volleyed a left-footed shot inside the far post.

North Quincy struck again two minutes later as freshman Katy Mercurio collected a poor punt by the Vinelander goalie and deposited it in the back of the net for her first varsity goal.

Sleeth scored her second goal of the season with two minutes left in the game. Senior captain Kristin Coughlin tallied the assist.

Kelly Coleman played her best game of the season with a great defensive effort. Lauren Enos also played a strong game at her sweeper position, making several big plays to thwart dangerous scoring attempts.

On Monday, North Quincy hit the road for a rematch with Canton and came away with tough 1-0 win. The Red Raiders were outplayed for most of the first half and only the stellar defensive efforts of Szcesuil, Conley and McFarland kept the hosts from scoring.

North Quincy picked up play in the second half and scored the only goal of the game as Kellee Conely blasted a low hard shot 17 minutes into the half which caught the far post. Jen Conley got credit for the assist.

MacRitchie made the biggest save of the game, kicking out a Canton bid from in close with five minutes left.

North Quincy has a 7-5 record and only needs four more points to qualify for the state tournament for the third consecutive year.

"Everybody is contributing in some manner this year," said head coach Paul Bregoli. "We don't have one kid up front who puts the ball in the net for us. But we've gotten goals from 14 different players this year. Thus far, it's been a real team effort and a lot of hard work."

North Quincy traveled to Falmouth Wednesday (Oct. 13). It will play at Bridgewater-Raynham Friday and will make up a game against Taunton on Monday.

Girls Under 12 Soccer Results

Many Quincy Youth Soccer games were washed out Sunday but the Under 12 Girls division played Saturday.

Under 12 Girls

Peter M. Skoler M.D. edged Ladybugs, 4-3. Devin Cahill, Stephanie Cesero, Shawna Kennedy and Sarah Kennedy scored for Skoler. Allison Dahlquist picked up an assist.

Julianna Eagles scored a pair of goals to lead the Ladybugs. Courtney Hall added a goal with an assist from Jessica Fubel. Hall also had an assist as did Jackie Mullen. Megan Campbell, Katelyn Dwyer and Jenn Reidy played well.

Lydon Russell Funeral Home earned a 4-0 win against Millenium. Cassie Kurtzman scored twice and Roberta Phelan and Laura Bloomer each found the back of the net. Jenna McEachern recorded an assist. Donyelle Carmody, Mary Burke and Annmarie Campanale were strong.

Kerri Maxey, Jill MacIsaac and Halle Acton had strong outings for Millenium.

The Strikers knocked off Bruces By Abromowicz, 5-2. Katelyn Keeley netted two goals, Molly Mansfield, Tara Whooley and Erin Connolly each had one. Caitlyn Rooney, Erin Thomas and Elled Dinicola had assists. Nola Ellif and Christina Graziano played well.

Marykate Stille and Caroline Gillis scored Abromowicz's goals. Kerri-Ann Cabral notched an assist. Christine Guerrero, Courtney Wills and Erin McMahon turned in strong games.

The Kicks pulled out a 2-1 victory against the Rockets. Donika Hajrizaj and Karen Frawley scored the Kicks' goals. Nicole Saylor had an assist.

Kelly McManus scored the Rockets goal with Laura Norton getting the helper. Katey Anderson, Molly Griffin and Caitlin Wilson played well.

The Kicks beat the Strikers, 7-6. Katelyn Keeley tallied a hat trick for the Strikers. Courtney Jago, Erin Connelly and Molly Mansfield added the other goals.

FOR OUR CHILDREN'S SAKE

According to a recent study of more than 17,500 safety seats by the National Safe Kids Campaign, fully 85% of the seats are used incorrectly. Babies belong in rear-facing safety seats at least until their first birthday. Most infant seats, which double as carriers, are deigned for babies weighing 20 pounds and less. Children under the age of one who exceed that weight should be placed in rear-facing convertible seats certified for heavier babies. Toddlers ages 1 to 4 (20 to 40 pounds) can switch to a front-facing seat with harness. And, children ages 4 to 8 (40 to 60 pounds) may move to booster seats that enable them to make proper use of the vehicle's lap/shoulder belt.

Your safety and that of your family is our concern. Please use seat belts and the proper seat for your children. Maintaining your vehicle is important in maintaining safety. Bring it to the ASE Certified professionals at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO and trust its care to our experienced technicians. Our friendly staff will gladly answer all your questions here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Open: Mon-Fri 8am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: Any child under the age of 12 is safest when properly buckled into the vehicle's backseat.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT Director John Franceschini (right) presents Leonard Ciavarro (center) the men's 50 and over championship cup while finalist Dan Dunn looks on.

New Champions, Traditions Highlight Tennis Tourney

New champions and old traditions highlighted the recent 29th annual Quincy Tennis Tournament.

New champions were crowned in eight of nine divisions of play. Also, the men's doubles championship bowl was dedicated to long-time tournament participant Henry "The Master" McAuliffe who past away this year.

This year's tournament drew over 100 participants to the event, which is under the direction of the Quincy Recreation Department and co-sponsored by the Quincy Municipal Credit Union.

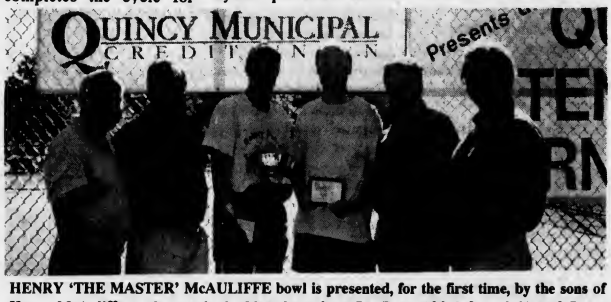
The Henry "The Master" McAuliffe Bowl was presented by members of the McAuliffe family to tournament legend Joe Ryan and rookie Jason Andrews. The two joined forces to defeat David Hamburger and Mike Hughes, 6-1, 6-4, in the men's doubles championship match.

The champion in the men's singles event was Andrews, who defeated Chi Wong, 6-4, 6-2, in a grueling final. Andrews accepted the Lionel "Shine" Buckley Cup from long-time tournament director John Franceschini. It was the first trip for both players to the singles championship match, and Andrews' second championship this year.

On the women's side Janet Diesel defeated Francesca DiBona, 6-4, 6-3, to capture her first singles title. Diesel and DiBona faced tough competition on their way to the final match due to the great play of Phoebe Chan, Laurie Hanrahan and Ellee Struss.

Long-time champion Leonard Ciavarro won the men's 50 and over division for the first time by beating Dan Dunn, 6-3, 6-2. This completes the cycle for Ciavarro who has now won every division.

The William F. Ryan Bowl for the mixed doubles champions went to Tom Savoie and Janet Diesel. They are the only champions from last year who returned to the winner's circle. They defeated Richard Griffin and Tracey Maloney, 6-1, 6-0, to retain their title.



DiBona and Dianne Lynch prevailed as the women's doubles champions by defeating Cynthia Riddick and Helen Mao, 7-5, 6-2, in one of the tournament's best matches. They are one of the youngest to win this division.

John Zarnoch topped Peter Jacobson, 6-2, 6-1, to win the men's 35 and over championship. Zarnoch knocked off Ciavarro, 3-6, 6-2, 6-2, to advance to the final match.

New Champions, Traditions Highlight Tennis Tourney

(Cont'd from page 26)

Veteran Dan Dunn was crowned the new winner of the men's "B" division with a 6-4, 6-2 win against Joe Hanrahan. Dunn had a great year as he qualified for two championship matches.

"It is always nice to see a tournament veteran win his first championship match," said Franceschini.

Paul Vu established himself as a player to watch in the future, as he became the new 16 and under boys champion. Vu ousted Billy Harding, 6-4, 6-7, 6-1, in a rematch of last year's championship match.

Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, commended Franceschini and assistant director Michelle Hanly for the organization and supervision of this 15-day event. The tournament is still believed to be the longest running and largest municipal tennis event in New England. Welch also praised the involvement of the Quincy Municipal Credit Union for stepping in to sponsor this event.

"This tournament provides valuable recreation and traditional activities for youth, adults and is one of the opportunities for family members to participate together," he said. "We are fortunate to have the financial backing to keep the event affordable."

QPD's Donovan To Lead Jimmy Fund Walk Team

Sgt. Jack Donovan of the Quincy Police will be one of over 6,000 walkers participating in the Boston Marathon® Jimmy Fund Walk Sunday, Oct. 17 to raise money for patient care and research for new cancer treatments at Dana-Farber Institute.

Sgt. Donovan and his wife Joan will lead the fifty walkers of "Team Patrice" in honor of their daughter Patrice who lost her battle with cancer at the age of twenty-one.

"There is nothing more devastating than losing a child to cancer," said Sgt. Donovan. "If I can help by walking 27 miles so we can put an end to cancer, I will continue to do so as long as I can walk."

Other than the Boston Marathon itself, the Walk is the only event that the Boston Athletic Association allows to take place along its famed 26.2 mile race route. Participants may choose to walk 26.2 miles, 13.1 miles or the 3-mile Patient-Family Walk in the fundraising event.

Participants in the Walk have raised more than $11.6 million for the Jimmy Fund over the ten-year history of the event. All walkers must raise a minimum of $100 in contributions to benefit cancer research, while those who raise $500 or more automatically become members of the exclusive Pacesetter Club. Last year's Walk raised over $2.3 million, while the goal for this year's event to battle cancer is $2.4 million.

The Walk is supported by the B.A.A., Polaroid Corporation, Toys R Us, Sun Life of Canada and Stop & Shop, who provides walkers with food and refreshments all along the course, and nearly 20 additional corporate sponsors.

To support Sgt. Donovan and Team Patrice, checks made payable to "Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk" can be sent to Sgt. Jack Donovan, c/o Quincy Police Dept., 1 Sea St., Quincy, MA 02170.

For more information about the Jimmy Fund Walk, call 1-800-632-3562.

THE TWO QUINCY 12-year-old travel teams combined forces to capture the Medford Invitational Tournament Championship. Jr. Rangers Grinding It Out In Inaugural Season says. "I sat down with Quincy Youth and between us we designed a program and put it together. I can't say enough about how responsive they've been to everything I've asked them."

The program is now in its seventh week. The Rangers have 1-10 record through their first 11 games and some may say the program hasn't been successful. But they have only been out of one game, an 11-5 shellacking at the hands of the Blackhawks in the season opener.

"Any organization, that first year you might struggle," says assistant coach Kyle Robertson. "But these kids have a good attitude. Hopefully we can get a couple of W's to get their morale up."

"As far as junior standings go we're on the outside, but being a first-year program we're hanging in games and getting better," McDonald says. "I feel we're definitely developing these kids. No question."

And that's what the program is really about. Sure, no one likes to lose. But McDonald's program offers more than just wins and loses. It prepares kids for college.

"If players come here thinking they are just going to play hockey and not go to school, they're not going to play here," McDonald says. "That's what it's not about. This program definitely educates each player hockey-wise and out of the walls of the hockey rink."

One way it does that is by providing a 10-week SAT course. In addition to the 4 1/2 hours at the rink and two hours at the gym each week, the players spend their Friday nights or Saturday mornings in the classroom for two hours.

Academic director John Lucier teaches the course to try to improve each kids' score. He also shows them how to write form letters to colleges so the kids can portray themselves as more than just hockey players.

McDonald is realistic, however. He understands that not every player will reach college

"We have some kids that just aren't going to go to college," McDonald says. "But they have certain objectives and hopefully playing hockey here will keep them ambitious enough.

"My main objective is to better each kid and prepare them for life in general, whether it be college or in the work force."

As for Saturday's game, the Rangers didn't get their second win of the year. They lost 8-1, but the game was closer than the final score. And the players showed class at the end of the game by not getting involved in any off-ice scuffles that were brewing.

"Our players are dedicated to this program," McDonald says. "They're buying into what this program is all about. They believe in it. They're going to better their futures by playing here.

"I can't say enough about them. They're working hard every game."

True grinders.

Manet Health Center Introduces 'Hospitalist' Role

Manet Community Health Center, Inc. will enhance its hospital patient care services with the added resources of William Toch, M.D., Internal Medicine physician, serving as a "hospitalist" announces Executive Director Ellen Hafer.

Dr. Toch will work at the hospital all day providing continuity for Manet's hospitalized patients, she said. All the family practice physicians will still cover evenings and weekends. There will be on-going communications between Dr. Toch and the patient's primary care provider to maximize continuity of care.

The "hospitalist" role provides a more comprehensive presence of Manet with its patients at the hospital, Hafer said. Dr. Toch has been granted admitting privileges at Quincy Hospital. He served as Chief Resident at Boston Medical Center where he completed four years in the Internal Medicine Residency Program. He is a graduate of Northwestern Medical School and has a Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Illinois in biology.

The "hospitalist" role is growing nationally, said Hafer, as the intensity of illness of patients who are admitted to the hospital increases. The need to coordinate care within options available to patients whether they are uninsured or covered by managed care and to provide transitional and discharge care plans has increased the complexity of hospital physician services. A recent article in the April 1999 Managed Care Interface recognizes that this approach has been utilized in Europe for over two decades and it's seeing rapid growth in the US. "Instead of a morning check-in visit by the attending physician, most patients need two to three visits a day."

Manet Community Health Center, Inc. has also added two board certified family practitioners to its staff. Robert Shiner, MD, will primarily work out of the North Quincy office and Kristin Perini, MD, will work at the Hull Medical site. Both Dr. Shiner and Dr. Perini received their Bachelors degrees in anthropology. Dr. Perini graduated from Yale University, taught biology for two years, then attended Tufts Medical School and completed the Beverly Hospital family residency program. Dr. Shiner attended the University of Michigan for his Bachelor degree, Robert Wood Johnson Medical School, and completed the Malden Hospital Family Practice Residency, serving as Chief Resident. He has an interest in sports medicine and has experience as a team physician. Both Dr. Shiner and Dr. Toch will be available for the transition of Dr. Jonathan Han's patients. Dr. Han will be leaving to go to an academic practice in Pittsburgh the end of October.

Hafer said:

"Manet continues to see an average growth in its patient visits of 6% annually and has seen a 40% growth in hospital visits since 1996."

Manet's physicians admit to Quincy Hospital. Fred Dolgin, MD, Medical Director and a physician at Manet since 1980, says that "the addition of a 'hospitalist' and two family practitioners will increase much needed appointments in Manet's four medical offices for patients." The "hospitalist" role will begin in September.

Interfaith Social Services Hosting Adoption Information Meeting

Interfaith Social Services (ISS) will host an Adoption Information Meeting Wednesday, Oct. 30 at 7 p.m. at the East Milton Congregational Church, 610 Adams St., Milton.

The meeting is free and open to the public.

Adoption social workers from ISS will present information on adopting children born in the U.S. and internationally. A local family, who has adopted through ISS, as well as an adoptee, will share their personal experiences and answer questions.

Adoption offers children a chance to live in loving, nurturing homes. Massachusetts has thousands of children waiting for families; while countless other children throughout the U.S. and the world also wait. At the information meeting, learn more about becoming adoptive parents and how to help the children be part of their caring home.

Interfaith Social Services (formally Protestant Social Service Bureau) is a private, non-profit, non-sectarian agency, which has been providing adoption services since 1974. ISS places children of all races and religions.

She was the mother of the late Frank J. Pantano.

Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Are you a sentimental person? Do you blot out tears at weddings? Do you show and share grief and sorrow at funerals? Do you like to touch loved ones, and walk hand-in-hand with loved ones? Yes? ... Then you are a sentimental person ...

The late Jeanette MacDonald, one of Hollywood's most popular singer-stars, was once asked, "What's wrong with sentiment?" - This was her reply:

"Today, anything that has a suggestion of sentiment is quickly dismissed as "corn" - Frankly, what's wrong with it? Have we become so sufficient that we can live without sentiment?

"Sentiment, after all is basic. Without it there is no love, no life, no family."

Most Americans and all funeral directors will agree ...

Dennis Keenan Norfolk County Correctional Officer Of The Year

Dennis Keenan of Quincy has been named Officer of the Year at the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office and Correctional Center, announces Sheriff Michael Bellotti.

The award is sponsored by the County Correctional Officers Association and is given to an outstanding officer who has worked at the Correctional Center for less than five years.

"Dennis was voted for this award by his peers because of his exceptional attitude, demeanor and appearance," said Kevin Nagle, president of the CCOA.

Keenan has been employed as a Correctional Officer for four years. For the past six months he has been the Field Training Officer where he has passed his knowledge onto other officers.

QUINCY'S DENNIS KEENAN (right) is congratulated by Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti as the Sheriff's Office and Correctional Center Officer of the Year.

"The Norfolk County Correctional Center is proud to have officers like Dennis Keenan," Bellotti said. "He performs his duties professionally and without complaint. It is not a surprise that he has been recognized by his peers as the Officer of the Year.

Foot Notes

by Dr. Richard A. Hacker
Surgeon-Podiatrist

SUPPORTIVE SHOES & INSERTS

Poor foot mechanics - the way your foot moves as you walk - can lead to pain and problems in the knees, hips and back. Supportive shoes, shoe inserts and customized orthotics may help suppress unnecessary foot movement. Shoes with good arches and low heels support the foot well. For more support, wear shoes that firmly hold the heel so it does not slip and slide when you walk. Most drugstores and shoe stores sell arch supports and heel cups, which you insert in the shoe to control some problems. Orthotics are made from casts of your feet and allow only a prescribed amount of foot movement. They may also serve as shock absorbers when the foot strikes the ground.

Just like individualized foot care, custom orthoses are designed to meet the specific needs of each and every patient who comes to us for treatment. They also are the most non-invasive, professional way to begin treating problems with foot mechanics. Tired of painful steps taking the smile out of your day? It's time, then, for specialized podiatric care. We welcome your call at 617-472-3466. Office hours are by appointment at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy.

P.S. Orthotics may also help compensate for a hip or knee problem that affects foot movement.

Your Horoscope

by Natasha

For a fast way to look at how your week will be, check the rating: 10 is the best week, 0 the most difficult.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) This week is a 9. Youíre quite indispensable, both in the home and in the office. A crisis is forestalled thanks to your ingenuity and quick thinking.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) This week is a 6. Donít attempt to force a situation which is quite beyond your control. Sometimes, it may be much better to just cut your losses.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) This week is a 10. You are likely to have the Midas touch at this time, and a wise bet could pay off handsomely. Single Geminis captivate a stranger with their unique style.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) This week is a 7. While you are determined to see the best in a situation, someone else may be determined to be pessimistic. Donít waste your energy hanging around with emotional vampires.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) This week is a 7. You are likely to be unexpectedly reunited with an old friend or family member. Finally, you may be able to ask those stored-up questions.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This week is a 6. As the saying goes, itís better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all. Let go of your fears; allow yourself to be a little bit vulnerable.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) This week is a 9. Inspiration comes easily at this time, so make the most of it. A creative project will lift your spirits and open your eyes to potential.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) This week is a 10. Justice is truly satisfying when it occurs to those who most deserve it. At long last, someone listens to your story.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) This week is a 5. Make sure that you are not shutting your eyes to some of your options. You may be seeing things as you wish they were, rather than as they are.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) This week is a 6. Remember that how you see yourself is bound to affect how others treat yourself. It might be time for a boost in the self-confidence department.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) This week is an 8. Donít be thrown if someone tries to deliver you an ultimatum. If you stand your ground, youíll find out that he or she might have been bluffing all along.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) This week is an 8. Donít get so caught up in the details that you forget the bigger picture. A friendship made at this time is likely to last forever.

YOU BORN THIS WEEK: Your ability to feign modesty is the only thing that keeps people from being envious of your many creative talents. You have an extremely large heart and giving nature. A touch of naivete may make it easy for others to take advantage of you.

OBITUARIES

Charles G. Johnston, 85
Retired Welder For General Dynamics

A Funeral Mass for Charles G. Johnston, 85, of Quincy, a welder for General Dynamics, will be celebrated Friday at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Quincy.

Mr. Johnston died Monday at his home.

An 81 year resident of Quincy, Mr. Johnston worked as a welder at General Dynamics in Quincy for 25 years, retiring in 1980.

He was a member of the South Shore Model Railway Club, co-founder of Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore, and a member of the Knights of Columbus in Quincy.

He is survived by his wife, Mildred (Bean) Johnston; a daughter, Mary Jane Johnston of Braintree; two sisters, Elizabeth P. Brunick of N.J. and Eleanor J. Lebel of Quincy; and many nieces and nephews.

Burial will be in Mount Benedict Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to the South Shore Model Railway Club, 11 Hancock Rd., Hingham 02043.

Frances M. Runci, 83
Bookkeeper For State Street Bank

A Funeral Mass for Frances M. (McCarthy) Runci, 83, of Quincy, formerly of Dorchester, a bookkeeper for State Street Bank, was celebrated today (Thursday) at St. Ann's Church, Wollaston.

Mrs. Runci died Sunday at her home.

Mrs. Runci worked as a bookkeeper at State Street Bank for 25 years, retiring in 1981.

Born in Boston, Mrs. Runci lived in Dorchester before moving to Quincy 51 years ago.

She was a member of the St. Ann's Marianns and the Quincy chapter 430 of the National Association of Federal Employees. She enjoyed reading, visiting the library, and knitting afghans for several members of her family.

Beloved wife of the late William P. Runci, she is survived by two daughters, Marsha Courtney of Fla. and Pamela McIntire of N.H.; two sisters, Josephine MacDonald of Vineyard Haven and Dorothea Moran of Braintree; three grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

Burial was in St. Michael's Cemetery, Boston.

board, has come under fire from many West Quincy residents led by Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico. They believe that Quincy's first pawnshop would be a danger to their community.

D'Amico and several West Quincy residents spoke during the meeting. D'Amico said that, besides a petition with nearly 600 signatures, he had received many faxes and phone calls and that it was "very, very clear that the residents are opposed."

Solicitor Timmons made a point of saying that Mr. Van Dam's proposed pawnshop was "a reasonable business plan" considered legitimate and very different from illegal acts such as drugs or prostitution. He said that Van Dam's detailed articulation of a business plan was not countered by "timely objections" from the other side, who made blanket statements about "undesirables" and whose input came after the public hearing. "You need specific reasons... just because you don't like a business is not enough reason to shut it down," Timmons said.

Chairman Joe Shea agreed that Van Dam's business plan was legitimate and well presented. Although Shea said he was eager to do right by the wishes of the community, he also said that, "At no point did we feel that Mr. Van Dam and his partners were not suitable to do business in this community."

$2.4M Bond Proposed For School Renovations

By CRAIG SALTERS

After six months waiting in the wings, the renovation of Quincy Public Schools is beginning to take center stage.

The renovation of schools had been put on hold because of the hospital crisis, but Tuesday night's City Council meeting saw an approximately $2.4 million school renovation bond issue move to both the Finance and Education Committees for discussion.

That discussion will take place Dec. 7 at 7 p.m., leading to public advertisement and an eventual vote.

The $2.4 million appropriation allows for the remodeling, reconstructing or making extraordinary repairs to Adams Shore Library and the Broadmeadows, Atherton Hough, and Atlantic Schools.

The bond, according to Mayor Sheets, marks the second phase of a $73 million dollar package approved in principle by the council and which includes the construction of a new Quincy High School.

The first phase was the construction of the Point Webster Middle School and the moving of 300 students from Sterling Middle School to Point Webster.

After this second phase, the improvements to Adams Shore Library and the schools mentioned, phase three was to be the construction of the new high school, the moving of Central Middle School to the by-then-renovated former Quincy High School, and finally renovations to Sterling Middle School, in that order.

But Mayor Sheets said the delay caused by the hospital crisis has shifted priorities somewhat. Now, said Sheets, Sterling Middle School will take precedence over the new high school.

"The six month delay created a window of oppor-

Flooding Concerns Stall Flatley Parking Permit

The Flatley Corporation wants to build a parking lot in West Quincy, but the City Council says it just isn't that simple anymore.

The developer's request for a special P.U.D. permit grant at a public hearing Tuesday sparked fears from city councillors that increased water run-off would threaten the Town Brook and the residents whose homes are continually flooded.

Debate went on for so long that no decision was made, with the hearing scheduled to continue Nov. 15 at 6:30.

The proposed 3.5 acre, 280 car parking lot in Quincy would be part of a larger Flatley development at the 13.6 acre Braintree Hill Office Park. There are currently 4 buildings on the site but Flatley wants to add a 104-room hotel and an office building.

John McKinnon, a site engineer for H.W. Moore Associates, spoke at length trying to ease the fears of the council. He said that all utilities, sewer, and drainage would be connected to Braintree systems only. When pressed, however, he admitted that the water run-off would eventually flow to the already overburdened Town Brook.

But, McKinnon said, three catch basins would be installed at the site to trap the water and release it at a reduced rate, leading to an actual decrease in the level of peak run-off, from a current rate of 57 cfs (cubic feet per second) to 27 cfs.

Robert Fleming, an attorney representing Flatley, supported McKinnon's claim. Referring to the water run-off, Fleming warned, "If you leave it as is, you'll get twice as much." Fleming also added that the project was well received at a neighborhood meeting Sept. 7.

But some councillors, especially Councillor Dan Raymondi, weren't so sure McKinnon's statistics added up.

"I won't vote for any project that increases flooding to Town Brook," Raymondi said flatly, adding that 40 years of basement flooding, combined with a $50 million dollar flood control project that

A Night Without Water For Some During Pipeline Work

MWRA began conducting a routine water pipeline valve replacement in Quincy Wednesday evening.

The Authority plans to repair a valve for a water pipe that serves parts of Quincy. To perform this work, water was to be turned off at midnight Wednesday and remain off through the night. The system is expected to be back to full service by 6 a.m. today (Thursday).

Streets where impact was anticipated included:

Beale St. from Adams to Summit; Dockray St., Hilda St., Eddie St., Greenview St., Theresa Rd., Campbell, Myopia Rd., White St., Connell St. and Adams St. from Beale to Furnace Brook Parkway.

The work was scheduled in the evening to take advantage of off peak water use. The work may cause temporary low water pressure, discolored water and a possible loss of service for several hours in Quincy.

While discolored water poses no health threat and is safe for consumption, residents may wish to store several gallons of water for drinking and cooking purposes. In addition, residents should avoid washing white or light colored clothing in washing machines for their period of time.

MWRA has been improving its water service to Quincy during the last three months. Eight of 10 unreliable valves responsible for interconnecting the MWRA water system and the Quincy water system have already been replaced.

The ninth valve was scheduled to be replaced Wednesday. In addition, the Quincy DPW will replace two valves on the same night in the same area.

For more information, call MWRA Community Coordinator Michele Gillen or Ted Cosgrove at (617) 788-1170.

GROUNDBREAKING CEREMONIES for the new CVS pharmacy on Southern Artery were held Friday, Oct. 15. Those lending a hand were (left to right) Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to the mayor; Jeffrey Coffman, president of Coffman Realty, Inc.; Councillor Paul Harold; Senator Michael Morrissey; Councillor Dan Raymondi; Councillor Frank McCauley; Mayor James Sheets; Council President Peter Kolson; Councillor Tim Cahill; Leo Kelly, chair of the Mayor's Beaches and Coastal Commission; Domenic Schiavone, Esq., real estate deal manager, N.E., for CVS; and Scott W. Pray, president of D.F. Pray General Contractors.

BERNICE MADER, special assistant to the mayor, receives a bouquet of flowers from CVS' Domenic Schiavone, Esq., as Mayor Sheets joins in the applause. Mader was given special thanks for her role in the CVS/Souther Tide Mill project. "This project would not have happened without her," Schiavone said. (Quincy Sun photos/Robert Noble)

Groundbreaking At Southern Artery

New CVS Store And A Future For Tide Mill

By CRAIG SALTERS

Jeffrey Coffman, president of Coffman Realty, had a problem.

Mayor James Sheets had a problem.

They put the two together and got a solution.

City officials, business leaders, and conservationists were on hand Friday, Oct. 15 for the groundbreaking of the new CVS/Pharmacy on the Southern Artery. The project gives CVS a much needed venue and allows for the conservation and restoration of the Souther Tide Mill, an adjacent parcel of land purchased and donated by CVS. The project was hailed Friday as a fine example of public/private partnership.

Coffman related the story of coming to Mayor Sheets with a problem: CVS' lease on Sea St. was due to expire and Coffman just could not come up with the right location for a new store.

Sheets also had a problem: Souther Tide Mill and the surrounding area were in a state of disrepair and in need of restoration.

The solution: CVS purchased the roughly five acres of land, using two for its 12,150 square foot "New England Style" pharmacy and donating the 3 acre, $2 million Souther Tide Mill site to a non-profit conservation agency to be named by the city.

"I said to the mayor, 'Mayor, you've got yourself a deal,'" Coffman recalled at Friday's ceremony.

According to Domenic Schiavone, Esq., CVS' New England real estate deal manager, CVS was enthusiastic about the idea "from the beginning" and held a year's worth of meetings with Quincy's Planning Department and conservation groups like the Fore River Watershed Association and Friends of The Souther Tide Mill. Schiavone said that CVS was also giving $25,000 as a "kick-off donation" to the mill's restoration.

Schiavone said that the new CVS, one of the largest in New England, will "not be your typical CVS." The architecture will be in the tradition of New England, including a cupola, wood siding, and granite detailing, so as to blend in with the soon-to-be renovated Souther Tide Mill and the proposed Waterfront Heritage Park.

The new CVS will be built on the 2.3 acre site. It will have 99 parking spaces and a double drive-through.

Affiliation Pact Privatizes Quincy Medical Center

With the Clinical Affiliation Agreement between Quincy Medical Center and Boston Medical now official, the City of Quincy is no longer in the hospital business.

That was Mayor James Sheets' message Friday as he, along with QMC CEO Jeff Doran, BMC CEO Elaine Ullian, and BMC Vice President Paul Drew, signed the last of papers turning what was a publicly owned municipal building into a private hospital.

What the parties actually signed was an umbrella agreement containing all the various agreements between the city, the unions, and the two hospitals. It completes the transitioning process.

The signing took place in the mayor's office. The four, along with Council President Peter Kolson, made brief remarks.

Sheets called the agreement, and the saving of the hospital, "a success story with many authors." He thanked members of the city council, Quincy's legislative delegation, and gave a special thanks to Boston Medical Center for its dedication to QMC. "All through the process, you were there," the mayor said.

Ullian, in turn, thanked Mayor Sheets for his leadership and offered an answer to Quincy relatives who asked her what the affiliation meant for the city. "It means the best is getting even better," Ullian said.

Doran added that an "active and aggressive workplan" for the hospital was taking shape and that changes at QMC had "already begun."

Drew expressed his gratitude toward the mayor. "Today is his day," Drew said.

Council President Kolson, in comments both during and after the ceremony, said that the Quincy taxpayers deserved the lion's share of the credit for making the hospital a priority and for paying their $33 million share of the re-structuring.

Related Story Page 35

"Remember the largest financial segment comes from the citizens of Quincy," Kolson said. "There were three very different pieces (federal, state, city) to meld into one, and every time one piece was slipping, there was that rock of commitment from the citizens of Quincy. Without that first commitment, saving the hospital wouldn't have gone anywhere."

After the ceremonies Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi was asked if he had any doubts during the entire process. "It wasn't an option," Raymondi said, pointing out the heavy population of seniors with fixed incomes in his district. Raymondi also said that he did not receive one phone call in opposition to saving the hospital.

Councillor Frank McCauley found it ironic that the signing took place almost ten years to the day after Quincy Hospital dedicated its new addition when McCauley was mayor. Asked in May of 98 to chair the 23 member Health and Hospital Committee, McCauley praised the Mayor for his leadership and his ability to work with both Democrats and Republicans, but was also glad that the issue was finally over.

"Counting today, this is my 76th meeting on hospital business," McCauley said. "But as a former mayor and present councillor, I'm privileged to have played a role in it."

Concerning the hospital, Mayor Sheets seemed to be speak for many when he said that "there has not been an issue in my tenure of public life that has so captivated the imagination of the people of Quincy and the South Shore."

Breast Cancer Memorial Service At Quincy Medical Center

The Quincy Medical Center Breast Cancer Support Group will hold the sixth annual Breast Cancer Memorial Service in memory of women who have lost their lives to breast cancer and in honor of women who are living with breast cancer.

The event will take place on Sunday, Oct. 24 at 1 p.m. in the Education Center of Quincy Medical Center, 114 Whitwell St.

Memorial bricks will be dedicated at the service in memory of Maggie Cove, RN, Linda Currul, Mary Louise Edgar, Ruth E. Hart, Jeanne Henderson, Deborah W. Johnson, Jean Elizabeth McGuinness, and Margaret J. McMullin.

To find out more information about this service, call the Public Relations Department at Quincy Medical Center at 376-4018.

Free Legal Clinics At Quincy Court

Three more free legal clinics sponsored by the Norfolk County Bar Association will be held this year at Quincy District Court.

They will be held Tuesdays from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Oct. 26, Nov. 2 and Dec. 7.

Four more are scheduled for the year 2000: Jan. 4, Feb. 1, March 7 and July 11.

At the clinics, attorneys will be available for a private one-on-one confidential consultation to discuss legal issues or concerns residents may have.

The clinics are conducted on a first come, first serve basis with no appointments necessary.

Quincy, Wash. A Little Different

Imagine if Quincy had only two sets of traffic lights and the streets were all alphabetized by letter instead of having regular names?

That's the way it is in Quincy, Wash.

And they get along very nicely out there, says Vickie Render and her son, Gabe, who were here last week for the Quincy-To-Quincy Day at the Beechwood Community Life Center in North Quincy.

Barbara Gilliland, whose hobby is visiting or keeping in touch with the other Quincys in the country (16) coordinated the get-together.

GILLILAND

She escorted Vickie and her son to The Sun office for a visit because Vickie works for a community newspaper, The Quincy Valley Post-Register and is interested in other community weeklies like The Sun. She's an advertising salesperson but also does some writing.

Quincy, Wash. is a 92-year-old city with a population of about 4,000 to 5,000 located half-way between Spokane and Seattle. Agriculture is the main industry.

Vickie says the streets are alphabetized A to O on the southwest side and A to Q on the southeast side. Her address, for example, is: 333 Q. St. SE.

The two sets of traffic lights are on Central Ave., the main street, and at Highway 28.

"We were interested in reading about the problems at your Quincy Hospital while we were here," says Vickie. "We had the same problems, too, and worked them out."

Small world note: their facility is named the Quincy Medical Center.

Other representatives attending the Beechwood get-together were from Kansas, Missouri, Illinois (via Weymouth) and a unique two-some from Texas.

The Illinois representatives were Bill Jackson and his wife, Shirley of Weymouth. Jackson is originally from Quincy, Ill. and he and his wife return there on frequent visits.

But here's one: Also attending were Quincie Edmonds and her husband, Moulton, from Houston, Texas, who were celebrating their 40th wedding anniversary. She thought she qualified with the name Quincie.

The group had a ball while here.

A reception was held for them at the Beechwood Center and Mayor James Sheets held a pizza party for them in his office. Each got to sit behind his desk.

They also visited the historic sites and were taken on a tour of the Fore River shipyard by Bill Morrill who last year motored to all the other Quincys as our Quincy's "Ambassador of Goodwill."

He and Vickie instantly recognized one another from his visit to Quincy, Wash.

But one of the things that impressed young Gabe Render most were the colorful "Welcome To Quincy" banners displayed in the Quincy Center area.

"They're great," he said.

Gabe, incidentally attends Quincy High School back home and wants you to know that his QHS teams were the state football and baseball champs.

The group was presented with Cleaner, Greener Quincy shirts to bring home. Vickie and Gabe were presented special Quincy mementos by QCBPA Executive Director Maralin Manning while they were at The Sun. And Vickie and we exchanged copies of our newspapers.

Quincy, Wash. has a mayor and five city councillors, one high school, one junior high school and three elementary schools.

The city, incorporated in 1907, was originally a short siding for the Great Northern Railroad which opened the area to settlers. A sign post near the siding had the name Quincy on it.

Legend has it that the daughter of James Hill, the man who built the railroad, gave her a list of such names as he brought the railroad west. And without seeing the area, she picked Quincy as the name for the city to be.

So, it wasn't named after John Quincy Adams, as some of the other Quincys were. If it had been, there would have been a presidential connection of sorts.

Ten miles south of Quincy is George, Wash.

So there is no link to John Quincy Adams.

And, yes, you guessed it: out there they pronounce it Quin-cee like most of the other Quincys do.

Just can't convince them it's Quin-zee like the Quincy family pronounced it.

COUNCILLOR Tim Cahill reports he has paid off his legal fees in his successful defense against the criminal conflict of interest charge brought against him over the controversial proposed Highpoint development on Quarry St.

CAHILL

The South Shore Building Trades Council brought the charge claiming Cahill was in conflict when he took part in council hearings and voted (against) the project because family members own property near the site.

But Cahill was cleared in Quincy District Court when the special prosecutor said his office would no longer investigate the charge "in the interests of justice."

Cahill is now waiting to hear from the Massachusetts Ethics Commission. He said he was informed last April that the commission was looking into the matter but has heard nothing so far.

"If the Ethics Commission happens to rule against me, I will appeal," Cahill says. "I feel I have violated no ethics."

BILL WEED, runner-up in the Ward 1 City Council preliminary election, has thrown his support to Greg Hanley.

WEED

Hanley and Russell Patten won the nominations and will square off in the Nov. 2 final election.

"Greg is a Democrat and I am a Democrat even though this is a non-partisan election, being Democrats we have similar feelings and beliefs.

"He has worked long and hard campaigning and I think he will make a good ward councillor."

Weed, a court officer, finished third in a five-candidate field with 374 votes. Hanley took the top spot with 830 and Patten the second with 539.

IN POLITICS, there's a long-time adage that if you are running for office, "run scared."

Meaning don't take anything for granted even if you are the odds on favorite. Get out there and campaign hard. Get your signs up, etc.

D'AMICO

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico must have taken that old saying to heart. He has campaign signs sprouting all over the ward even though he is running unopposed. He seems to have more signs than some of the candidates in contested races.

Well, you do have to look out for those write-ins.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1920'S REAL PHOTO postcard is a view of Conant Road in Atlantic looking towards the ocean from East Squantum Street. The automobile was probably owned by Henry Frink the Quincy photographer who published his postcard. It was common practice at that time for photographers to include a personal identifier in their pictures; and most of Frink's postcards show this automobile. The young trees shown here have all matured making the street look quite different today.

Save The Historic Souther Tide Mills

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing to direct Quincy citizens' attention to the critical challenges with the Souther Tide Mills. These mills were last seriously vandalized in September, 1998. Since that time, some good progress has been made. The State awarded grant monies to begin repairs. Home Depot donated 200 sheets of plywood to secure and winterize the buildings.

The International Tide Mills Museum declared a "Preservation Emergency" and recommended repairing the perimeter fence. The City agreed to select a non-profit organization to take title, and to manage the project. The City further declared the mill conversion to a new history museum to be its special Year 2000 Millennial Project.

CVS agreed to purchase and donate the mills for preservation. CVS was the "rescuer" of the mills. Three community non-profits (Friends of the Souther Tide Mill, Fore River Watershed Association and Save the Harbor-Save the Bay) forged a new alliance to provide assistance and support.

Yet during the last year, state grant monies were never spent, because important deadlines were missed. As a consequence, the mills were never stabilized. The perimeter fence was never repaired. The Preservation Emergency remains in effect. The 200 sheets of plywood and roof coverings were not put on the buildings because no agreement was worked among the various parties to carry out the work. Water infiltration causing structural decay remains a critical and ongoing problem. It will remain a critical problem until the Grist Mill is better lifted or propped, and the roofs better covered, walls painted, and sills repaired. Tide water, rain water and trespassers continue to enter the mills, the water on a twice-daily basis.

The City never stated how it would evaluate interested non-profits, and never named a non-profit to own or to manage. The buildings now look worse than ever, and are indeed, improperly covered and fading fast. The Year 2000 is almost here, but no formal plans have been prepared about how to develop or utilize the mills or park during the next Millennium. Will these earliest and most significant of New England's historic tide mills be doomed to perpetual decay and permanent loss?

Quincy has proved it can save endangered resources -- like the Hospital -- when community need and desire are evident. The Souther Tide Mills have been State recognized to be "Most Endangered" and historically significant for many years. The tide mills deserve equal commitment, coordination, vision, and productive action.

Even though Quincy historian H. Hobart Holly has passed away -- and other visionary local leaders have been distracted by other subjects -- Quincy can still save these mills, and boast a 200 year old maritime resource if stabilization is begun immediately, before 1999 and this opportunity passes us by.

Say 'No' To Question 1

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On Tuesday, November 2, voting day, please vote "no" on Question 1, the referendum to allow casino boats to dock in Quincy. Although it's non-binding, let's make it clear to these casino operators that they and their boats are not welcome here.

I'm afraid that if these boats are allowed here, it's only the tip of the iceberg. Sooner or later, more "gambling" activities will develop and flourish. I know Quincy is looking for ways to raise money, but we can find other, more positive ways to do that.

Casino boats have no place in Quincy. Let's not be nicknamed "Sin City", too.

President Truman's Train Thunders Through Quincy

Oct. 21 - 27
1952
47 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

President Harry Truman was campaigning for the Democratic ticket in New England but skipped a stop in the City of Presidents.

He made a major campaign appearance in Brockton, but traveled straight through to Boston on his special 7:45 a.m. express train. Traveling with the President were Democratic Congressional nominee David Crowley of Houghs Neck and Quincy Democratic City Committee Chairman Joseph Doherty.

New England contained the largest pool of undecided voters and both presidential nominees were stumping the region. Adlai Stevenson was scheduled to visit Quincy on Oct. 27, with no confirmation from the Quincy Eisenhower-Nixon Club of a visit by the Republican nominee. Sen. Charles Hedges and Republican City Chairman Theodore Parsons were pushing for an Eisenhower visit here to boost the re-election campaign of Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge who was locked in a battle with Congressman John F. Kennedy.

FORE RIVER LEADS THE NATION

A report by the Shipbuilding Council of America noted that Quincy's Fore River shipyard led the nation in the number of ships under construction. Of the 96 ships being built in the nation's 14 shipyards, Fore River had contracts for 20; 15 tankers and five Marine Class cargo vessels.

The council references the recent lag in ship work, reporting that for the first time the number of ships under construction nation-wide was under 100, with no passenger ship work.

MAYOR McINTOSH: 'REGISTER YOUR CAR IN QUINCY'

Mayor David McIntosh urged city residents to list "Quincy" as the registration address of their automobile to insure that the city received the excise tax.

City officials found out that the excise tax of those residents who used neighborhood designations in place of the city name, was being sent to the state treasury.

For example, the mayor said: "If you registered your car from Norfolk Downs, instead of Quincy, the excise tax goes to the state unless you bring the check to City Hall to have it endorsed by the city." He was alerting residents to end this leak of city revenues into the state coffers.

QUINCY-ISMS

The School Committee asked City Solicitor George Arbuckle for an option on the legality of renting out space in the new Snug Harbor School for dancing classes... The city council held a hearing on accepting Miles, Puritan and Joan Drives and Priscilla Lane in the Spinelli development... Quincy Point Congregational Church sponsored a "Gala Theatre Party" at the Lincoln Theatre with 10 stage acts plus a feature film. Headliners included singer Donald Gohl and pantomimists Irving Boyes and Evelyn Dupont. . . Ward 2 Improvement Association President Irving Coughlin announced a meeting to protest the construction of a tank farm on the Town River to store petroleum naphtha products. . . Gov. Paul Dever was among the guests invited to the Morrisette Post installation. George Leary was the new commander. Co-chairmen for the event were William Keefe (past commander) and John McManus. . . John Brownell of Houghs Neck was named assistant department chief of staff for the state VFW. . . Richard Koch was chairman of the Ward 6 Democratic Committee was James Kelley as vice president and Paul Carosi as treasurer. . . The Hunting School PTA held a reception for the school's first principal, John Mahoney. . . Mrs. Reid Ward, president of the League of Women Voters, announced the league's endorsement of PR (proportional representation) voting. . . Milton Katz of Myopia Rd. was chairman for the Jaycees Fall Frolic dance. . . George Flavin was the South Shore chairman for the Henry Cabot Lodge re-election campaign. . . Charles Sweeny was residential chairman for the Quincy Red Feather campaign. . . James Rago was elected president of the Quincy Employees' Association; James Gilcoine was vice president. . . There was a re-dedication ceremony at Atlantic Methodist Church following an extensive refurbishment.

20th Century Quincy Exhibit At Historical Society

The Quincy Historical Society's annual Open House meeting Thursday, Oct. 28 at 7 p.m. at the Adams Academy will highlight Quincy's 20th century history.

Society Director Dr. Edward Fitzgerald will present the story of the changes, personalities, events, and trends that shaped the city and discuss some of the major interesting anecdotes and public memories from those years.

The presentation will offer a close-up look at numerous pictures and artifacts from the Society's extensive 20th century collections, including photos and artifacts from Fore River Shipyard and a collection of Howard Johnson memorabilia, including one of his original ice cream scoops.

A special feature will be a display of elegant early 20th century dresses from the Society's collection, just returned from exhibit at Boston Public Library as part of the John Singer Sargent celebration.

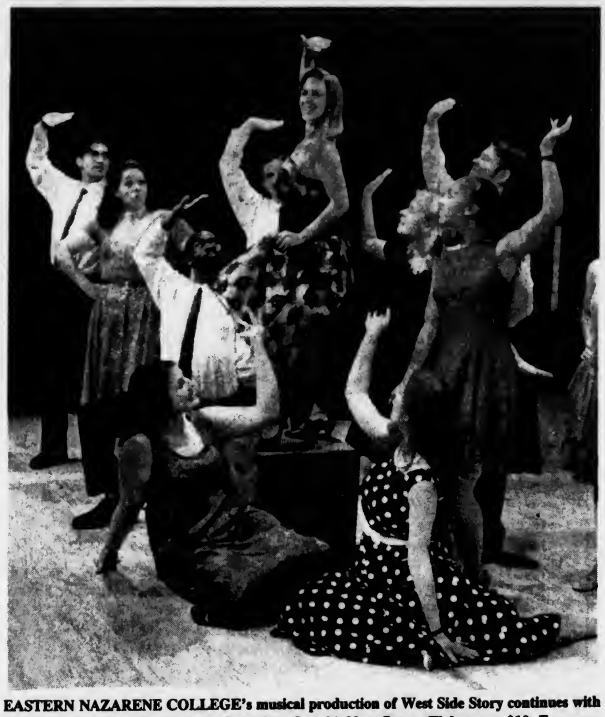
The evening will also give visitors a chance to learn about the Society's programs and services and its plans for the new century and an opportunity to explore the Academy for a once-a-year, behind-the-scenes look at the Society's collections.

The event is being scheduled to provide everyone a full evening at the Society and still give them a chance to watch that evening's World Series game. Everyone is welcome to attend. There is no admission fee.

Six Local Residents Forbes Museum Winners

Six local students were recently recognized for their entries in the 1999 Lincoln Essay and Drawing Contest sponsored by the Captain Forbes House Museum in Milton.

Lincoln Essay Contest local winners are:



Michael Maxey, a fourth grade student at St. Agatha School; third place; and Kathleen Flaherty, a six grader at St. Agatha School, second place.

Lincoln Drawing Contest local winners:

Ryan Gorman, first grader at Squantum School, second place; David Gibson, first grade St. Agatha School, honorable mention; Cara Leonard, second grade St. Ann School in Wollaston, honorable mention; Brianne Carnell, third grade St. Ann School, Wollaston, third place.

An awards ceremony was recently held at the Captain Forbes House Museum, 215 Adams St., which includes an Abraham Lincoln and Civil War collection.

The essay contest attracted more than 270 submissions. Students in grades 4-8 were challenged to write an essay answering the question, "Why does Lincoln live on?" The drawing contest winners were selected from 333 submissions on the basis of originality, accuracy, and care. Students in kindergarten through grade 3 were invited to submit drawings of Abraham Lincoln based on the theme of Lincoln

(Debra Fisher Photo)

Elisete Giubelini Engaged To Edward Rossini

Ana Giubelini of Weymouth and Eliseu Giubelini of Revere announce the engagement of their daughter, Elisete Giubelini to Edward W. Rossini of Quincy.

Mr. Rossini is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rossini of Quincy.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Weymouth North High School and Fisher College in Boston and is employed at KPMG LLP. Mr. Rossini is a firefighter for the city of Quincy.

A July, 2000 wedding is planned.

N.Q. Catholic Women Rummage Sale Saturday

The annual rummage sale for the Catholic Womens Club of North Quincy will be held Saturday in the outer cafeteria of Sacred Heart School from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m..

Chairwomen for the event are Mrs. Mary Blake and Mrs. Mary Ann Sheedy.

Members are requested to drop off articles Friday from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Sacred Heart School PTO will also have a Cake Sale in the main cafeteria.

QHS 1974 Class Reunion On Nov. 26

Quincy High School class of 1974 will hold its 25th anniversary reunion Friday, Nov 26, from 7p.m. to midnight, at Amelia's Restaurant, Victory Rd, Marina Bay, North Quincy.

Price per ticket is $25 and includes hot and cold hor d'oeuvre's, pasta station, salad, desserts and coffee.

Make checks payable to "Christina G. Mendez". For more information, contact Christina G. (Wagner) Mendez, 20 Filbert St., Quincy, MA 02169. Telephone number is (617)479-9029.

BERTONI FAMILY members get together at a recent reunion in Mexico. Twenty of the 42 family members were born or lived in Quincy for a portion of their lives. Those attending (in no particular order) Hayley Gotlieb, Ashley Marden, Brian Vazzano, Liam Harrington, Joseph Gotlieb, Gretchen (Van Houten) Gotlieb, Daniel Gotlieb, Linda O'Halloran, Randi Gaura, Jonathan Bertoni, Joyce Vazzano, Gayle Marden, Sarah Marden, Cheryl Bertoni, Aislinn LaCroix, Arianna LaCroix, Andrea Vazzano, Zebadiah Scibelli-Gotlieb, Rayne Marden, Janet Bertoni, Lynne Harrington, Kevin Harrington, Alex Vazzano, Ed Marden, Eric Harrington, Stephen Gotlieb, Erika (Goldring) Gotlieb, John LaCroix, Dale (Gotlieb) Lacroix, Tony Vazzano, Stacey Scibelli, David Gotlieb, Joseph Bertoni, Exilda Bertoni, Frank Bertoni, Alan Gotlieb, Beverly Bertoni, Kara Harrington, Frank Keenan, Diane Gotlieb Bertoni, Barbara Bertoni, and Griffin Scibelli-Gotlieb. Born since the reunion is Wyatt Scibelli-Gotlieb.

Bertoni Reunion Spans Four Generations

Forty-two members of the Bertoni family -- including 20 with roots in Quincy -- representing four generations and spanning 77 years recently held a family reunion in Playacar, Mexico at the Iberostar Resort.

Family members living in the northeast convened and flew out of Boston, while others traveled from Baltimore, MD and Fresno, CA.

Exilda Bertoni -- mom, nana, or great-grandmother to all) facilitated the trip. She lives in Quincy.

Lovingly remembered was the late Roy Bertoni (dad, grampa, great-grams) who, along with his wife, began the tradition in 1986 of vacations as family reunions--starting with a Caribbean cruise. The trip was a tribute to him, and the family commitment of both Exilda and Roy. Everyone other than Jeffrey Bertoni, one of Mrs. Bertoni's grandchildren, was able to attend.

Beechwood School PTO Festival Saturday

The Beechwood-Knoll School PTO will hold its annual "Fall Festival" Saturday, Oct. 23 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on the school grounds, Fenno St., Wollaston, rain or shine.

This year's festival will feature a "food court" with many food items donated by many local restaurants and distributors, such as chowder, sausage sub sandwiches, hot dogs, soda, juice, chips, candy, and more.

A bake sale will offer homemade breads, cakes, cookies and brownies.

All food will be sold inside the gym with plenty of seating available.

A silent auction and prize drawing will include tickets to the Patriots, Bruins and Celtics; Riverdance at the Wang Center, and other movie tickets; restaurant gift certificates, beauty salon treatments, and other goods and services donated by local merchants.

There will also be music, games (including a chance to win and trade Pokeman cards), arts and crafts for children, clowns, a moonbounce, pony rides, and hayrides.

Quincy Harvest Festival Fun Day For Families

Under gorgeous fall sunny skies Saturday, hundreds of persons gathered in Quincy Center to enjoy the 9th annual Quincy Center Family Harvest Festival..

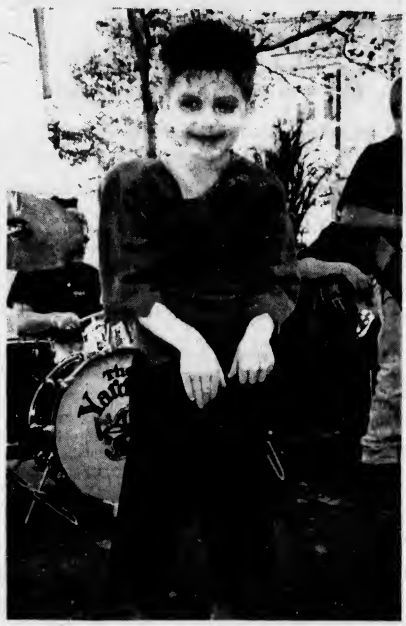
According to Maralin Manning, executive secretary to the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA), "the weather was so perfect, even the ice cream vendors did super."

The highlight, according to Manning was the more than 100 children in costumes from almost every school in Quincy participating in the Costume Parade. She said the parade was "enjoyed by the parents as well as the children," she said.

Vendors were selling the traditional T-shirts and sweaters, while other fall merchandise and fall decorations were in view. Also, there were displays of holiday gift items.

Manning said "business was brisk inside and outside." She said several of the restaurants had food outside as well as inside.

SMITTY FAMILY of Quincy won the best overall costume contest under age 6 by dressing up as a family entertainment system. From left Andrew, Stephen, Bridget and Michael.



(Maralin Manning Photos)

The North Quincy Youth Group decorated a pumpkin booth for their fund raiser.

Other stores throughout the square held open house.

In addition to clowns entertaining the group, and outdoor games, performances by "Hats Off", a rock group that usually plays at the Yard Rock Cafe across from the shipyard.were featured.

The festival was organized the by the QCPBA and sponsored by Victory supermarkets.

JONATHAN KING of Quincy as the Hunchback of Notre Dame won the ugliest category costume prize in the over 6 age group.

SARAH ESTERGUEST of Quincy came as the Y2K Bug and won the most creative prize for the over 6 age category.
